Richest Man in 1933 Nets 5 Million.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—Forty-six Americans boasted net incomes of more than a million dollars last year, and one multimillionaire, richest man in 1933, netted more than five million dollars, Guy T. Helvering, federal commissioner of internal revenue, disclosed today in his annual report on the nation's income.

Millionaires, corporations, and speculators were the first to profit under the New Deal and its incipient business recovery, while 1933 brought still smaller incomes to the great American middle class and to those who depend for their living on salaries, interest on investments, and business earnings.

Richest Man Unnamed.

Concerning the unidentified richest man of the year who made more than five million dollars net, Helvering would reveal no details. The bureau of internal revenue was similarly taciturn about the other 45 wealthy persons whose net incomes were over a million dollars last year.

Of the 46 millionaires, however, it was learned that 29 made between 1 and 1½ millions, six made between 1½ and 2 millions, eight made between 2 and 3 millions, one made between 3 and 4 millions, one made between 4 and 5 millions, and the richest of them all netted over five million dollars.

In 1932 no one made more than five million dollars, and only 20 persons made a million or over, compared with 46 last year.

Total Income Declines.

Total net income for all persons in the country decreased slightly to 10 billion 846 million dollars in 1933, compared with 11 billions 185 millions in 1932, Helvering estimates in his report. This decline reflected the fact that the bulk of the people—those with net incomes between $1,000 and $25,000—suffered a shrinkage both in numbers and earnings, while the comparatively few wealthy persons—those with net incomes from $25,000 to five million—enjoyed an increase in numbers and income.

Corporation income showed a slight improvement last year, according to Helvering. He reported that 104,702 corporations showed net taxable incomes of 2 billion 506 million dollars in 1933, compared with 78,775 corporations reporting net income of 1 billion 852 millions in 1932.

The great majority of corporations, however, still show no profit at all; 316,856 firms reported that instead of net income in 1933 they had net deficits aggregating four billion 511 million dollars.

Approximately 3,660,100 private individuals had filed income tax returns on their 1933 incomes up to Aug. 31 of this year, Helvering said. Of these returns 1,928,989 showed net incomes so small that they were not taxable. The other 1,731,116 individuals fell within the income tax brackets and were assessed a total of $372,967,761 in taxes.

The 46 millionaires, although they accounted for only a fraction of 1 per cent of the number filing tax returns, paid almost 7 per cent of all private income taxes collected. Their aggregate incomes were reported as 81½ million dollars, and on this sum they were assessed approximately 26 million dollars in federal income taxes. These 46 persons receive three-quarters of 1 per cent of the total private income for the country.

Persons netting between $50,000 and $100,000, of whom there were 5,927, paid the largest tax of any income group. Their aggregate incomes were 395 million dollars, on which they paid 57 millions to the government in income taxes. This was 15 per cent of total tax collections from all income groups.

Majority $5,000 or Less.

Of the 3,660,100 returns received, 3,339,602 fell into the categories of $5,000 or less, lowest income group listed by Helvering. This great classification, embracing the majority of the people, reported 63 per cent of the total net income, but paid only 11 per cent of the income taxes. Aggregate income for the group was 6 billion 792 million dollars, largest total reported. The income tax paid, however, was less than 40 millions.

Compared with the record for last year, Helvering's report showed that the number of persons making from $1,000 to $25,000 declined from 3,735,300 in 1932 to 3,634,000 in 1933. The

FEAR JUGO-SLAV PLAN TO ACT ON OWN IN HUNGARY

Great Powers Offer New Compromise.

GENEVA, Dec. 10.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Hungarian disclosures that Jugo-Slavia has threatened to withdraw her appeal to the league of nations and "act on her own" unless she obtains satisfaction from Hungary in the perilous assassination backwash caused grave concern here early today.

BARON POMPEO ALOISI.

The Jugo-Slav threat, revealed last night by Hungarians, was said to have the support of Rumania and Czechoslovakia, the others of the little entente.

In the early morning hours, after ceaseless conversations between the British, French, and Italians, the British delegation announced a compromise formula had been worked out.

Nations to Get Text.

Capt. Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, will submit the text to the little entente and Hungary and try to get their formal adhesion.

At the quickly called meetings Eden, Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France, Foreign Minister Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia, and Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy were in solemn conference until after midnight.

The developments as a result of the new disclosure caused the entire central European conflict to be viewed as having reached its most delicate and dangerous stage.

By acting "on her own" Jugo-Slavia would no longer accept a league solution to the charges against Hungary of harboring terrorists and the assassins responsible for the killing of King Alexander. It was explained Jugo-Slavia would seek a direct accounting with Hungary.

Act as Go-Betweens.

Laval and Aloisi, acting as go-betweens for the little entente and Hungary, respectively, earlier met with no fruitful results.

It was stated that at this meeting Laval communicated the little entente threat to Aloisi, who later informed Tibor Eckhardt, Hungarian delegate to the league.

At a second interview Laval and Aloisi likewise failed to reach any solution. Laval then discussed the situation with Eden, Benes, and Nicholas Politis of Greece, chairman of a special committee of the disarmament conference.

In view of the continuing and ever increasing tension the session of the league council scheduled for this morning was postponed, probably to the afternoon, although the time had not been fixed at an early hour today.

A spokesman for the little entente denied the threats revealed in Hungarian quarters, but admitted that public opinion in Jugo-Slavia might cause the government to do something on its own initiative unless the council showed a disposition to do more than agree to repress terrorism.

Jugo-Slavia Displeased.

It was reported that Jugo-Slavia is displeased chiefly with Italy for her insistence upon post-war treaty revision, and also to a lesser extent with Eden of Britain because of his criticism of Jugo-Slav deportation of Hungarians.

Eckhardt, the Hungarian representative, in an interview said he had agreed not to deposit the memorandum replying to Jugo-Slavia's charges on condition that the council discussion would remain within certain agreed limits.

He said the president of the council had notified him Saturday night that the Rumanian foreign minister, Nicholas Titulescu, had insisted upon addressing the council today in answer to Eckhardt.

"I therefore felt it my duty to file the memorandum Saturday," Eckhardt explained.

All Charges Denied.

This memorandum denied all the charges made by Jugo-Slavia. It was Hungary's formal answer to the issue that has caused all the trouble.

"It was a moderate document," Eckhardt said, "in the interests of conciliation. I purposely eliminated evidence concerning the internal situation in

Czarist Circles Vision Duchess Wales' Bride

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 9.—Russian monarchist circles here are bubbling with excitement over rumors that Grand Duchess Kira, 25 year old daughter of Grand Duke Cyril and Grand Duchess Victoria of Russia—czar and czarina to thousands of emigres—has been getting extremely chummy with the prince of Wales.

According to Russians who attended the wedding of Princess Marina of Greece to the duke of Kent, better known as Prince George, youngest son of King George and Queen Mary of England, the prince of Wales showed such marked attentiveness to the Romanoff grand duchess, who was one of the bridesmaids, that many began whispering about another royal romance. Later Grand Duchess Kira was received with exceptional cordiality by the British rulers at an intimate family tea.

Prince Invited to Villa.

What is most suggestive of all to those who attended the wedding is the understanding that Grand Duke Cyril and Grand Duchess Victoria have invited the heir to the British throne to visit them in their modest villa at Saint Briac in Brittany. Whether the prince of Wales has accepted the invitation is not known.

Nevertheless, the more excitable Russian emigre circles close to the Saint Briac "court" declare flatly that the announcement of Kira's engagement to the prince, hitherto incorrigible bachelor, may be expected any day.

More practically minded observers are highly skeptical. If there is any question of marriage between the prince of Wales and the grand duchess it must be a real love match because her parents are about the poorest crownless crown heads in Europe.

Frowned Upon by Alfonso.

The family's political importance is not regarded very highly. Former King Alfonso of Spain judged that Kira was not promising enough to be the bride of the prince of Asturias, his eldest son. The prince of Asturias, present count of Covadonga, renounced his right to the throne to wed a Cuban girl, Edelmira Sampedro y Robato.

Kira is said to have been madly in love with the Bourbon prince. She previously had turned down a chance to marry King Boris of Bulgaria, who became the husband of Princess Giovanna of Italy in 1930.

3 DIE IN GALE; JAP STEAMER ASKS FOR HELP

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—With three of its officers reported dead, the storm lashed Japanese freighter Victoria Maru apparently was holding its own on the mid-Atlantic tonight as other craft steamed to her aid.

"Present conditions not so much dangerous," said an S O S received at 9:22 p. m. by the S. S. Washington and relayed to the Mackay Radio corporation's station at Rockland, Me.

Other wireless messages received by Mackay said the steam trawler Amsterdam, one of several ships in the vicinity of the crippled freighter, was speeding to its assistance from about 100 miles away at a speed of 10 knots.

The Victoria Maru, bound for New York, wirelessed earlier that her captain and chief officer had been killed, the third officer lost overboard, and seven seamen hurt. The bridge was swept away by the storm and apparently her rudder was disabled, since subsequent messages said she was steering with her engine.

The Victoria Maru, a 385 foot vessel of 5,875 tons, left Hamburg, Germany, for New York on Nov. 16. She cleared from a Holland port eleven days later.

Liner Loses Propeller.

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Helpless in an almost calm sea, the Ward liner Cauto with a lost propeller was drifting slowly away from the east coast of Florida late today, but was in no danger, the coast guard announced.

JUDGE BORRELLI'S HOME IS ROBBED; $5,000 LOOT TAKEN

While he and his wife and two daughters were visiting friends yesterday, burglars broke into the home of Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli at 6800 Bennett avenue, ransacked the house and carried off loot valued at $5,000. It was the first time in two years that the Borrellis had not spent Sunday at home, the judge said.

The thieves apparently gained entrance by jimmying a window in the library. Articles stolen included fur coats, dresses and other clothing belonging to his wife and daughters, silverware, a radio set, and all of Judge Borrelli's suits except the one he wore and two at the cleaners.

Dog Gives Up His Life to Save Family from Gas

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A dog saved a family of six from asphyxiation today and died itself from gas escaping from a leaky main. Fumes from the main filled the Henry A. Spitzer house while the family slept. The dog, Major, awakened Spitzer, who called aid. An inhalator squad revived Mrs. Spitzer's mother and three children. Major was found dead in the basement.

Strive to Free Irish Plumber Stuck in Well

GREYSTONES, Irish Free State, Dec. 10 [Monday].—(AP)—Hundreds of soldiers, police, and volunteers worked frantically early today in an effort to save the life of a plumber, who was wedged immovably in a well by the collapse of the sides. The sides of the well collapsed while Joseph O'Leary was working in it at 8 p. m. Saturday. Throughout the night his body remained wedged by the rock mass, which covered him up to his neck. His legs were held painfully by the rungs of the ladder, which were broken. By careful operations from above, which nevertheless threatened a further earth movement, O'Leary's arms were freed at noon yesterday.

Ropes were passed under his arms to prevent him from sinking, and a saw was lowered to the suffering man. With extreme difficulty O'Leary reached down and tried to saw through the torturing rungs of the broken ladder. A greater pain told him he was sawing his own leg. Meanwhile the workers hastened at digging a tunnel in an effort to reach him from below.

LIFER IS FREED AFTER 23 YEARS; TO WED IN ITALY

Stillwater, Minn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—It will be a bright Christmas for Michelangelo Gentilcore, 47 year old lifer at the Minnesota state penitentiary.

By yuletide he hopes to be on his way to his native Italy to marry his childhood sweetheart who has waited for him 23 years.

The word that he soon will be free—pardoned by the state pardon board so he can be returned to the country of his birth—reached him at the prison shoe shop yesterday.

The pardon, his attorney said, was in the mails and soon Michelangelo can emerge from behind the prison walls.

In 1911 Michelangelo, an iron miner, killed a man at Virginia, Minn., in a quarrel over theft of some money he was saving to bring his mother and sweetheart to America.

Prison gates closed on him May 3, 1912. He was 24 then, and in Italy Maria Delando was waiting to marry him. She promised to wait.

Crippled Vets Fight Police in Paris Streets

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 9.—Swinging their crutches and canes like war clubs some 1,500 crippled war veterans battled furiously with police for two hours in the boulevards this afternoon. The vets were repeating their weekly demonstration against pension cuts.

The veterans were allowed to mobilize in Place de l'Opera, but a macabre riot was precipitated when they tried to break through police lines to march down the boulevards to Place de la Concorde and Quai d'Orsay.

Today the vets carried signs saying they got from their government only a half to a third what the crippled veterans of America, Germany, and England were receiving.

Boulevardiers Join In.

Many policemen were injured by the flailing cudgels of the rioters, one so seriously that he had to be hospitalized. Scores of Sunday promenaders who joined in the fray suffered minor contusions from the fists and clubs of the police, but the veterans themselves had few casualties and not many arrests were made.

The police had strict orders to hold the veterans back, but not to hit them under any circumstances. Even the hard boiled mobile guards who reinforced the municipal corps displayed exceptional self-control before the charges of the veterans, whom they outnumbered two to one.

Despite efforts of the police to deal gently with the embittered heroes, nearly all of whom are lacking one or more limbs and who wore on their chests the medals they had earned by their sacrifices for their country, the riot was a heart-rending spectacle.

New Uses for Crutches.

Legless veterans had their crutches knocked out from under their armpits by the impact of the police charges and rolled on the pavement in serious danger of being trampled. Others balanced themselves on one leg and swung a crutch with both hands at the heads of the police. One held on to his crutches and kicked at them with the wooden stump which replaced his leg.

At moments it looked as if the riot might get out of hand and develop into something really grave. Possibly it would have, as the temper of the crowd seemed to be mounting the longer the fight lasted, if Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin at 4 o'clock had not received delegations of the veterans and assured them that their petition would be taken under consideration and an answer made to them by next Wednesday.

Rain Cools Off Mob.

This, together with a downpour of rain, cooled down the mob and by 5 o'clock the boulevards had practically recovered their Sunday afternoon tranquility.

The veterans planned new demonstrations next Friday and Sunday. A leader declared, "The fight will continue." On previous occasions they have sat down in the middle of busy Paris thoroughfares, nonchalantly reading newspapers while thousands of taxis and private automobiles, their passage blocked, created a din with their horns.

SECOND YOUTH FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN TULSA

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—Sidney Born Jr., 19 years old, son of a department head at the University of Oklahoma, today was found fatally wounded with a bullet hole in his head, in an automobile parked in a Tulsa street. He died a few hours later in a hospital.

City and county authorities, accepting a theory of suicide, announced a belief that Born had taken his own life because of his connection with the sensational killing of John F. Gorrell, 23 year old dental student, on Thanksgiving day. Philip Kennamer, 19 years old, son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, has admitted slaying the student, but has given no explanation of his motive except that he "had to do it."

Father Believes Him Slain.

Prof. Sidney Born, father of the second victim in the strange case, which has filled Tulsa with a multitude of rumors, took issue with the authorities and indicated he believed his son was slain.

The professor asserted that the bullet entered the youth's left temple, and that, being right handed, he would not have shot himself on that side. There were no powder marks about the wound, Prof. Born added.

Investigators have been cautious about advancing theories in connection with the Gorrell mystery, but it has been made plain that they expect to uncover a widespread extortion plot as the background for the crime. Victims of this plot were to have been the daughters of some of Tulsa's wealthiest citizens, and the extortionists the black sheep sons of residents almost equally prominent.

In the amazing mass of only half clarified evidence that has come to light thus far, Gorrell is pictured as one of the leaders. Holly Anderson, county attorney, announced on Dec. 5 that young Kennamer was another chieftain, and that he believed the gang had been active in robbery and whisky smuggling as well as extortion.

Three Theories for Killing.

There are three principal guesses as to why Gorrell was killed by Kennamer. One is that Gorrell had decided to quit the gang and tell what he knew. The second is that he and Kennamer had quarreled over the division of funds. The third, and favorite, is that Kennamer resented a plan of Gorrell to extort money from H. F. Wilcox, wealthy oil operator, under a threat against his daughter, Virginia Wilcox.

Kennamer was a friend of Miss Wilcox, it was said, and resented any move being made against her.

The body of Gorrell was found in his automobile not far from the spot where Born was discovered dying today. There were two bullet wounds in the head, both made by Gorrell's own pistol. However, it was speedily determined the wounds were not self-inflicted and the search for the slayer was started.

Bares Threat to Murder.

On Saturday, Dec. 1, Jack Huff, an air pilot, informed Kansas City detectives that young Kennamer, on Nov. 23, told him of his intention to kill Gorrell.

"Gorrell was a licensed pilot," said Huff. "Kennamer said he intended to hire a plane and start out from Kansas City to Tulsa with Gorrell at the controls. On the way, he said, he would hit Gorrell on the head, bail himself out in a parachute, and let Gorrell crash and be killed. And Kennamer showed me the note which he said Gorrell had addressed to H. F. Wilcox. It contained a demand for $20,000."

Reluctant, even after the statement of Huff had been taken, to arrest the son of a federal judge, the authorities continued to investigate. But their problem was solved in the mid-afternoon of the same day, Saturday, when young Kennamer went to the sherif's office and announced with dramatic simplicity that he had killed Gorrell. He was accompanied by Attorney A. F. Moss, who announced his client would plead self-defense.

Calls in 20 Companions.

The county attorney called in, for questioning, twenty youths and girls, all belonging to prominent families. Among them was young Born. Just what he told has not been disclosed fully. He told, however, of meeting his friend Kennamer in a drug store about an hour before the time established for the killing of Gorrell.

At Kennamer's request, declared

Born, he drove the judge's son to a hospital eighteen blocks away. Born did not remain with Kennamer, he added. It was in front of the hospital, according to the investigators, that Gorrell, home from his Kansas City dental college on a vacation, appeared a little later with a nurse to whom he was attentive. Presumably Kennamer was waiting and joined Gorrell there.

There has been, so far, no detailed explanation of Born's connection, if he had one, with the alleged extortion plot. It is not clear whether he was a close confidant of Kennamer or merely an accommodating acquaintance.

Report Call to Kennamer.

There was a report that he had talked to Kennamer, who is now in the county jail, on the telephone a few minutes before he was found fatally wounded. The jailer said Kennamer had not been allowed to use the phone, but that some one, he thought a "young man," had asked to talk to the prisoner.

The confessed slayer and his advisers have refused to elaborate on his first statement that he was a killer. He is said to have expressed no regrets and to have spoken contemptuously of "informers."

Since the Gorrell killing there have been numerous meetings of church and school organizations which have condemned the operation of beer and gambling places in the city, holding that such resorts are the breeding places for serious crime.

Governor Elect E. W. Mariand, ho was in Tulsa yesterday, guardedly expressed his opinion of the investigation being made here.

"Law enforcement is still in the horse and buggy days," he averred. "Isn't it ridiculous that the state enacts the law and then leaves the prosecution of violators to local figures? Why shouldn't the enforcement be in the hands of state officers?"

Youth Asks Gun Permit.

Soon after learning of Born's death, Robert Thomas, son of George T. Thomas, a real estate owner, appeared at police headquarters and asked permission to carry a gun. He was refused and went directly to the courthouse, where he made the same request to Assistant County Attorney Tom Wallace.

"I refused to do any such thing," said Wallace.

Young Thomas did not explain to the prosecutor, he said, why he wished the pistol permit.

Prof. Born said tonight that he had questioned his son closely to learn if there was any other connection with Kennamer.

"Sid told me there was nothing else that he knew about the case, and when I pressed him he assured me he was holding back nothing," he said.

QUIZ "FOOTBALL" GANG; SEVERAL ADMIT HOLDUPS

Fifteen alleged members of the "football" gang, which mapped its robberies as a football eleven plans its plays, were being questioned at the state's attorney's office early this morning. According to Assistant State's Attorney F. J. Christianson, several of the band confessed a number of robberies, including some pay roll holdups.

Four of the men previously had admitted robbing the Aetna State bank, 2375 Lincoln avenue, of $18,500 on Oct. 20, and starting the raid on the Beverly Savings bank, where they were routed by tear gas. They said they were among the seven robbers who got $900 or $1,000 on Nov. 29 at Ireland's Oyster house on the north side, but they refused to name the other three holdup men. They disclosed also that they had laid plans to rob the Pullman Trust and Savings bank, 400 East 111th street, this morning.

The suspects were questioned last night about the murder of Willie Francis, north side gambler, and suspect in the Aetna bank robbery.

Fraternity Boys Save Two Young Women in Holdup

Members of the Chi Psi fraternity rushed out of their house at 5735 University avenue, on the University of Chicago campus, last night in time to save two young women from being robbed by two colored youths. The girls are Miss Aileen Jeisy, 23 years old, 6020 Drexel avenue, a nurse at the Billings Memorial hospital, and Miss Mabel Kruger, a secretary in the hospital's metabolism clinic. The robbers escaped.

FIND A BOY OF 7 SMARTER THAN CHILD EINSTEIN

New Teaching Methods to Preserve Brilliancy.

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—New ideas in schools for genius are brought to light by the two New York 7 year old boys whose Einstein ratings on mental tests were reported last week.

It appears that contrary to the popular notion that child prodigies do not often make men of rare attainments the world is likely to see an increase in its geniuses from this prodigy source.

This prospect is not due to birth of larger proportions of geniuses, but to innovations in education promising to save more of them than in the past from early life pitfalls.

Psychologists and educators say they have reliable proof that intelligence ratings like those of the two 7 year olds are permanent life endowments, instead of mere flashes of early years. One boy, known only as K, has an "I. Q.," or intelligence quotient, of 196. The other, Arthur Greenwood, rates 230.

Einstein Rated at 205.

These were compared with a mythical rating for Albert Einstein of 205. The comparison is between these boys and what Einstein's rating would have been at about the same age if I. Q. tests had been given to him.

It is of historical record that young Einstein was a child of unusual mentality, who would have been called a prodigy if publicity had caught him in childhood.

The records of other geniuses and famous men and women for a century, as compiled by careful psychologists, indicate that many of them were similarly unusual children. A record of 300 famous persons was compiled by Lewis M. Terman.

As children were handled differently in earlier generations, the data for estimating their I. Q. are lacking in many of these 300. A striking fact is that where records are available these I. Q. ratings were high.

Goethe's Set at 190.

Goethe was close to 190 I. Q. as a child. At 6½ he was arranging plays on a puppet stage. Thomas B. Macaulay, the historian, also was near 190. At 3 he did not care for toys, but liked to tell stories, real and imaginary.

Voltaire ranked between 170 and 180. John Quincy Adams, our sixth President, had 165 I. Q. He was vexed with himself because his thoughts would "run after birds' eggs, play, and trifles."

William Pitt, statesman and orator, rated from 160 to 180, and "never seemed to learn but only to recollect."

Above the average also are the I. Q. ratings given to such men as Robert Fulton of steamboat fame, who failed to distinguish himself at school; Nathaniel Hawthorne, who disliked school, and William Lloyd Garrison, the abolitionist, who had trouble in mastering the alphabet.

Treated as "Handicapped."

At the Brooklyn Ethical Culture school, which has the 230 I. Q. boy, these children gifted with specially high general intelligence are treated as if "handicapped." That is, unless they can have special classes they are almost as truly "handicapped" as the backward child.

This boy belongs to a class which takes reading and arithmetic only about once a week. Its members spend more than average time on the playground and much time in clay, painting, drawing, and woodwork.

VICTIM OF AMNESIA IS IDENTIFIED AS DARTMOUTH YOUTH

JOHN G. MOODY.

Taken to a hospital for treatment of a kidney ailment, he told doctors that "My name is Jack and I used to play football at some college."

Moody, whose home is in Derry, N. H., had been missing from the Dartmouth campus since last Monday. John J. McDonald, a Dartmouth alumnus and a friend of the Moody family, and Mrs. Harry C. Kimball, who also knew the boy, identified him after McDonald had connected the story of the amnesia victim with those of young Moody's disappearance.

A blow on the head received recently in a tough football game is believed to have caused the injury inducing the amnesia. Doctors said he would recover his memory as soon as the injury heals.

PAL OF SHELTONS SHOT TO DEATH BY DEPUTY SHERIFS

East St. Louis, Ill., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Coroner W. W. Boyne of St. Clair county announced tonight that James Hickey, 32, associate of the notorious Shelton gang, was shot and killed by sherif's deputies yesterday at Signal Hill, exclusive East St. Louis residential district. There were seven bullets in his body.

Dr. Boyne made his announcement after police declined to affirm a report that a man had been killed in an attempted kidnaping or extortion plot.

The sherif denied that the shooting was the culmination of an attempted kidnaping or extortion plot in which a report said Hickey was involved.

Hickey, although never convicted, had a long police record. He was arrested last Jan. 26 in a raid here, when deputies confiscated a virtual armory of weapons.

NAVY CALLS OFF AIRPLANE HUNT FOR 3 FLYERS

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The far-flung navy airplane search over the mid-Pacific for Lieut. Charles T. P. Ulm and two other Australian flyers lost at sea since last Tuesday ended today, but surface vessels continue the hunt.

Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, district naval commandant, called off further flights, but said planes in their routine movements would keep "an intensive lookout" for traces of Ulm's luckless monoplane, the Star of Australia, which came down somewhere off the Hawaiian Islands when she ran out of fuel. The Star of Australia was attempting to fly from Oakland to Honolulu en route to Australia.

Col. D. C. Emmons, army air officer, said he will decide at a conference with Gen. Dorey tomorrow morning whether the search will be continued by army airplanes. He added, however, he considers such a continuance propably would be futile.

FORGOTTEN GOLD MINE DISCOVERED BENEATH A CITY

Rich Brazilian Metropolis Excited by Find.

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A gold mine once operated by the Company of Jesus, forgotten for more than two centuries, is reported to have been discovered almost under the busy streets of this "Chicago of South America."

August Ullman, 49 year old mining engineer, who once prospected in Kenya colony, South Africa, and Richard Mollenhauer Jr., claim to have found the Sao Paulo mine in Itapecerica, which virtually is a suburb of Sao Paulo.

The sensation here is comparable to the finding of a vein of gold while digging for a subway in New York city. Sao Paulo claims industrial supremacy throughout South America and is a busy manufacturing center of considerable wealth.

Several Attractive Features.

The fact that gold mined here would find a ready and profitable market is not the least attractive feature of the reported discovery.

The Bank of Brazil is paying the London price of approximately $1.20 a grain for gold, and its purchases for 1934 have totaled already more than $8,000,000.

The bank's readiness to buy at the highest world price has sent hundreds of prospectors to other gold bearing districts, including Minas Geraes, Mattto Grosso, Goyaz, and Para.

The suburb of Itapecerica, site of the newly discovered mine, now is half in ruins. It figures strongly in Brazilian history among the early settlements which sprang up in the footsteps of the famous Father Jose de Anchieta.

Diggings Covered Up.

The Jesuits who founded Itapecerica discovered gold in the region and did what they could to exploit the underground wealth. Their diggings became covered up and remained hidden until now.

"We stumbled on the gold," Ullman said. "We have barely drilled the surface of what must be a very rich mine."

They started their diggings, the two prospectors said, with implements quite as rudimentary as those of the ancient Jesuits.

LEAVES $5,000 A YEAR TO MAN HER DAUGHTER WEDS

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP)—There's $5,000 a year waiting for the man who marries Miss Justine C. Perot.

Miss Perot's mother, Mrs. Eleanor du Pont Taney, late member of the prominent Delaware family, arranged for the annual income to her daughter's husband—whoever he may be—in her will, filed yesterday.

But Miss Perot is somewhat annoyed over its possible results.

"O, dear," she lamented, "I'm afraid all the publicity will bring a deluge of proposals from cranks or possibly kidnap threats."

ICY ROADS IMPEL SAFE DRIVING AND END TRAFIC TOLL

No Deaths in Four Days as Caution Is Rule.

The snow covered, slippery streets and highways, which have caused imprecations from motorists in a hurry to get somewhere, have saved a dozen or more lives in the last four days in Cook county, according to the motor fatality records.

No fatal accidents have been reported in the county since the heavy snow fell last Wednesday night. Under ordinary conditions, taking the daily average for the year, 12.5 persons probably would have been killed in that period. Since Jan. 1 there have been 1,182 deaths in auto accidents in the county.

Driving Still Difficult.

Driving continued to be difficult yesterday with a sheet of ice coating the streets. The pall of darkness hanging over the downtown section of the city, caused by little wind movement to dissipate low lying clouds and smoke, caused motorists to turn on their driving lights earlier.

Officials also pointed out that this period in which there have been no deaths was almost certain proof that even under ordinary conditions practically all fatal accidents are the result of carelessness on the part of some one. Not only have motorists been more careful the last few days, because of slippery streets, but pedestrians also have refrained from taking needless chances.

One Death from Old Injury.

One death, that of Arthur Rauba, 63 years old, 5421 South Mozart street, was reported yesterday, but Rauba's death was due to injuries incurred Nov. 30 while crossing the street at Mozart and 55th streets.

Four persons were killed near Michigan City, Ind., Saturday, but Cook county, over the week-end, continued its spotless safety record.

"There is only one explanation for this surprising record," Lieut. Paul Klatzco of Lincoln park said, "and that is the caution being exercised by motorists. With the streets in their present condition practically all drivers are on the alert for possible skidding. Cars remain in line and only the extremely careless motorist dodges in and out of his trafic lane, a practice which causes many of the crashes even in good weather. Also, as a result of this slower speed, when a collision does occur the damage is slight."

Caution Is Keyword.

Motorists on county highways are exercising the same caution, according to Sergt. Anton Paulus of the Homewood station.

"All cars on highways in our jurisdiction have been running cautiously during the last four days," he said. "Those who do not are warned, but they are the exception. The few collisions reported have been slight. The weather has put a fear in motorists that nothing else could."

Plans for pledging Chicago motorists to drive safely during 1935 will be discussed at a meeting of the committee on community participation in safety, a sub-committee of the Keep Chicago Safe committee, in the Morrison hotel at 8 p. m. today.

The attendance will include chairmen of community safety councils which have been organized in all Chicago neighborhoods. Mayor Kelly and George Fleming, general secretary of the Keep Chicago Safe committee, will speak. Edgar L. Schnadig, chairman of the participation committee, will preside.

DEBORAH CLUB'S 27TH 'BUY A BOY' DRIVE LAUNCHED

The twenty-seventh annual "buy a boy" campaign of the Deborah Boys' club, 2441 Division street, was launched last night when Superior Judge Joseph Sabath "bought" the first boy of the season from Mrs. Joseph Wolf, honorary president of the club.

"I'm buying one and selling a few others to my friends," said the judge, patting the head of Max Brown, 13 years old, 1307 Oakley street. "Maybe I'm buying the education of a future President of the United States."

"No, sir," retorted Max. "I won't ever be President of the United States."

"Why not?" demanded the judge. "You can't tell now."

"Yes, I can," retorted Max, who knows his constitution. "I was born in Poland."

By "buying" Max, Judge Sabath agreed to pay the costs of his education and annual membership in the club, which has a registration of 1,601 boys and a daily attendance of 500.

SEEK TO SELECT JURY IN SLAYING OF EX-PASTOR

Lebanon, Ind., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The story of a strange intrigue between a 35 year old woman and a 19 year old boy, alleged to have ended in the slaying of the woman's husband, a former minister, awaits a jury in Circuit court here.

Mrs. Neoma Saunders, widow of the Rev. Gaylord V. Saunders, is on trial, accused of having conspired with Theodore Mathers for the murder.

The jury is likely to be completed tomorrow. Mrs. Saunders' attorneys will seek to show she plotted her husband's death while mentally ill as the result of abnormal relationship he is alleged to have forced upon her.

The case was tagged "the $10 murder" when police produced a confession from Mathers in which he was quoted as saying Mrs. Saunders gave him that sum to hire some one to kill her husband, but instead used the money to buy a gun with which he himself killed the former pastor.

The Rev. Mr. Saunders was found shot to death in his automobile at Indianapolis last February.

CAMPAIGN TO END TAVERN ABUSES GETTING RESULTS

One Violation Reported; Police Arrest Four.

Supervising and district police captains reported that liquor dispensing was shut off promptly at 2 o'clock yesterday morning in practically all the city's saloons and night life cafés. The law requires the retailing of drinks to cease at 2 a. m. on Sundays and 1 a. m. on other nights of the week, and the police were ordered last week to see that this ordinance is strictly enforced.

One downtown violation was reported. Police found thirty couples dancing and dining in Stillson's Crystal bar, 624 South Michigan avenue, at 3:20 a. m. This place, formerly known as the Samovar, recently came under new management with a name reminiscent of the old drinking days in the loop, but no owner was found by the officers.

Take Four Into Custody.

Detectives Otto Seils and Gilbert Murray took into custody two bartenders, Benjamin McLean, 849 Townsend street, and Arthur Dampson, who gave the address of 600 South Michigan avenue; a waiter, William Faber, 1504 North Dearborn street, and a clerk, Louis Nickolls, 2700 Best avenue.

The patrons were sent on their way and the employés will be arraigned today in the South State street court on a charge of violating the closing law.

The enforcement order was issued by Mayor Kelly and Police Commissioner Allman. The officials said they were not as much concerned with closing drinking places on the minute as they were in ridding them of vicious conditions. Sherif Toman joined in the campaign, one purpose of which is to eliminate the hostess evil. Hostesses—girls who dance and drink with patrons for a fee or for a percentage of the cost of the drinks—came into vogue with prohibition, the officials recalled, and they now present a problem.

Visit Many County Cafés.

Sherif Toman said his men visited many cafés in the county, outside the city, Saturday night and Sunday morning, issuing warnings that vice will not be tolerated, and no young girls will be permitted to be employed as hostesses. Sherif Toman said he found 95 per cent of the café proprietors willing to coöperate with him.

In the city, it was reported, nearly all places that offer entertainment with drinks, have one or more young women handy for the accommodation of the lonesome male visitors, but the proprietors and the hostesses themselves assured visiting police that this new [since 1920] profession is respectable. They are not to be confused with fan dancers whose exhibition largely inspired the order for stricter police vigilance, it was explained.

Orders for another tour of the city's districts by police lieutenants on duty after midnight were given last night, and all places were warned to close at 1 o'clock.

DIES AFTER FALL ON STAIRS.

Joseph Kowswics, 45 years old, 1437 Walton street, died yesterday in the County hospital of a skull fracture incurred on Friday in a fall down stairs in his home.

TOMAN'S FIRST ELECTROCUTION COMES FRIDAY

John Toman will superintend his first electrocution as sherif next Friday night when Armando Boulan, 38 years old, a Porto Rican, and Walter Dittman, 29 years old, of Aurora, die in the electric chair for the murder on Sept. 1 of Policeman Earl Jensen of Oak Park.

The two condemned men were interviewed yesterday in the sherif's office at the county jail. Guards took the precaution of bringing them in one at a time, for both are bitter enemies and would like nothing better than to "get at" each other. Each blames the other for his plight. Boulan is a widower and the father of two children. Dittman is separated from his wife.

"They framed me," said Boulan. "I didn't shoot the cop. It was Dittman."

Visitor from Freeport Dies in Street Here

William F. Straub, 60 years old, 822 State avenue, Freeport, Ill., suffered a stroke at Harrison and State streets last night and died while being taken to the county hospital. He was carrying a small package done up in colored paper, supposedly containing a Christmas present.

SERBS THREATEN TO ACT 'ON OWN' IN BALKAN FEUD

Powers Offer Scheme to Soothe Hatreds.

Jugo-Slavia. But if the little entente attacks again I must naturally answer back. I cannot abandon all my defenses."

The memorandum said in general terms that King Alexander's assassination was due to prevailing discontent within the borders of Jugo-Slavia itself and not fostered upon Hungarian soil.

Mediators last night had hopes that a compromise solution would be accepted under which the council could adjourn the dispute to the January session, meanwhile appointing a member to make a report. They especially wished to avoid explosive speeches at public sessions of council.

Representatives of the little entente had planned to loose caustic broadsides at today's meeting. They made no attempt to conceal their anger at Italy's attitude in supporting treaty revision, which Hungary wants and Jugo-Slavia doesn't.

With Italy definitly lined up on the side of Hungary, and France, through Foreign Minister Laval, flatly stating her allegiance to Jugo-Slavia, the lines of battle were clearly drawn.

"We have the impression that moderation in our attitude has been entirely misunderstood," said a spokesman for the little entente. "The problem is grave; it affects peace."

Little entente statesmen were represented as being particularly incensed at Italy over a statement made Saturday by Aloisi that "the council heard with horror that a sentence of death had been pronounced at Brussels against King Alexander one month before the assassination, and that this sentence had been published in the world press."

EXODUS SLOWS DOWN

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Dec. 9.—The forced exodus of Hungarians from Jugo-Slavia has slowed down, according to reports reaching here tonight. Nevertheless a tense situation exists along the border of the province of Banat, near Szeged, Hungary's second largest city.

Both Jugo-Slavians and Hungarians, it is reported, are only awaiting a favorable opportunity to attack each other, but are being restrained for the moment by a desire not to commit a blunder which would alienate the support of their respective friends among the big powers.

Austrian sympathy seems for the most part on the side of the Hungarians. Political observers believe the Austrian government will offer assistance to the Budapest government in caring for the expelled refugees as a gesture of solidarity.

Reports from Szeged said 137 Hungarian refugees arrived there today. They were met at the railroad station by the mayor of the city and the national anthem was played. Many are being cared for in an agricultural exhibition hall which has been converted into a barracks. A schoolhouse in the capital is being prepared to house 500 exiles.

The Hungarian government tonight announced that 2,639 Hungarians have been forcibly ejected from Jugo-Slavia so far.

The Hungarians denied Jugo-Slav charges that large numbers of Jugo-Slavs have recently been expelled from Hungary. They declared that in the last twelve months only 66 Jugo-Slavs have been deported.

GIRL PATIENT AT COUNTY HOSPITAL LEAPS TO DEATH

Miss Florence Lasky, also known as Florence Lare, 19 years old, 1519 West Adams street, leaped to death last night from a window on the fourth floor of the county hospital, where she was a patient.

A nurse, Mrs. Mary Piscopo, who saw Miss Lasky step over to the window, attempted to stop her, but the patient wrestled her way over the sill and carried out her plan to die.

Miss Lasky had been in the hospital since Thursday under treatment for a chronic ailment. She had been despondent, according to other patients, and had told them she intended to commit suicide. The police learned from friends of Miss Lasky that she was an orphan and that she had been a hostess in a tavern on the northwest side.

CENTRAL EUROPE—A PATCHWORK OF HATREDS

Racial antagonisms of hundreds of years standing and territorial aspirations resulting from the partition of the great Austro-Hungarian empire after the world war have played a master role in the grave embroglio in which that part of Europe finds itself as a result of the Jugo-Slav-Hungarian crisis.

Wandering Slavic and Germanic tribes long ago settled the rich valley of the Danube, the great plains of Central Europe and the hills and valleys of the upper Balkans. They fought each other, then joined to fight the Turk, then split to fight among themselves again. Each kept its own racial characteristics and language.

Suspicions and jealousies arose to keep them apart. United politically, as many of them were under the Austrian empire, racial aspirations and differences split them spiritually.

The treaties of Versailles, St. Germain, and Trianon, humbled the dual kingdoms, Hungary and Austria, partitioned huge slices of their territory among the "succession" states, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and Serbia, and created new problems of clamoring racial minorities that have troubled Europe from that day to this.

INSISTS CROATIANS ARE READY TO TAKE BLAME FOR MURDER OF KING

Sharon, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Ante Zubak, president of the Croatian national congress, said tonight the Croatian people "are willing to accept responsibility for the assassination of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia," but that he does not believe any one in the United States knows just where or when the death plot originated.

"The plan that was successful might have originated in South America, Europe, or even Africa," said Zubak, who claims his organization, the national representation for the independence of Croatia, includes 1,000,000 Croats living in America.

Informed that Hungarian sources understood Jugo-Slavia is threatening to "act on her own" in the dispute over the assassination dispute, Zubak asserted:

"If Jugo-Slavia tries to act more than half of her army will revolt."

Last night Zubak and his chief aid, Capt. Ante Doshen of Pittsburgh, cabled the league of nations in the name of the congress, a demand that it force withdrawal of "Serbian troops" from Croatia.

Bolivia Accepts League Offer to Arrange Peace

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The Bolivian cabinet met late today and agreed to answer Geneva, accepting without modification the recommendations of the league of nations for the settlement of the Chaco war with Paraguay. At the same time the cabinet approved a decree announced yesterday for a general mobilization, and ordered the decree to be published in the newspapers tomorrow.

German Secret Police Seek To Nab Associates of Roehm

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—The political character of yesterday's raids against at least three restaurants in west-end Berlin was emphasized today when the raided restaurants and bars were reopened. Many youths who had been placed under arrest gaily told how they had been cross-examined and released after they described the elder guests who frequented the restaurants. The authorities evidently are attempting to seize the last associates of the group led by Capt. Ernst Roehm, who was slain in Chancellor Hitler's "blood purge" last June.

The arrested servants and youths were taken to GSP [secret police] headquarters and released between 5 and 7 o'clock this morning. They claimed they were ignorant of the identity of the elder men who were arrested with them and held by the secret police.

Princess Reported Seized.

Similar raids have been carried out by police in recent weeks. It is reported that young Princess Bentheim was among those arrested. She has caused her family anxiety for several months due to her alleged friendship with "shady elements." Young Von Gagow and Prince Kropotkin, gay blades in this capital's night life, also were listed as among those seized in a bar. One of their friends, Herr Pape, was arrested in a boarding house.

Relatives of persons arrested in raids ten days ago said that when they called at the GSP headquarters they were warned not to attempt to get in touch with the prisoners or they would be suspected of conspiracy.

Plea of Kin Rejected.

Von Gagow's relatives implored a Nazi member of the family who holds a high official position to help the youth. They declared his "youthfulness should be an excuse for wrong associations." The Nazi official rejected their plea.

"No Nazi should dare to attempt to intervene in the activities of the Schutz Staffel [Hitler's hand picked bodyguard], which is responsible for the safety of the state," he declared.

FRENCH UNCOVER $660,000 SWINDLE; ARREST NOTARY

NANCY, France, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The arrest today of Jean Andre, charged with embezzlements which may reach 10,000,000 francs [$660,000], added one more to the epidemic of French financial scandals.

Andre, who is one of the chief notaries of Lorraine, was charged with using for himself funds entrusted to him for investment, meanwhile paying income checks to his clients out of the capital itself.

Police said Andre recently tried to commit suicide. He surrendered himself upon learning that complaints were about to be presented in the courts. He was immediately jailed pending the appointment of an investigating magistrate. Several local families have been ruined by Andre's mishandling of funds, it was reported. He was highly regarded in the community.

GERMANS IN SAAR ARE INSTRUCTED TO REMAIN COOL

SAARBRUECKEN, Saar Territory, Dec. 9.—(AP)—In order to "show the world what German discipline can do" the German front staged a massmeeting today at which speakers impressed upon an audience of 40,000 persons the necessity to "hold out calmly but firmly until Jan. 13 and take no notice of provocations." Jan. 13 is the date of the Saar plebiscite.

Speakers at the meeting paid tribute to the achievement of the Saar plebiscite conference at Rome for having "paved the way for the inevitable return of the Saar to the reich."

Italy to Skip Switzerland.

GENEVA, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Italy decided today to dispatch her troops to the Saar across a corner of France, without traversing neutral Switzerland, it was learned today.

Italy is one of the nations which has agreed to help police the Saar during the Jan. 13 plebiscite. Some apprehension had been expressed here that sending Italian troops across Swiss territory might be a violation of an old treaty.

Wants "Army" by Christmas.

Col. Geoffrey Knox, chairman of the Saar governing commission, told authorities today he wants his international forces in the Saar Territory by Christmas.

Holland, it was learned, has agreed to contribute a contingent of troops if Sweden does likewise.

VIENNA, Dec. 9.—Startling evidence of the stage reached in the rapprochement between the Schuschnigg cabinet and Germany was furnished today by the release—without the public being allowed to hear about it—of 2,500 Nazis, more than half of the number interned, from the Woellersdorf concentration camp.

JAPANESE WARSHIPS "TOPHEAVY," UNSAFE, SAYS NAVAL ANNUAL

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Grave doubts as to the stability and fighting worth of many of Japan's warships is expressed in the new edition of Jane's "Fighting Ships," the authoritative British naval annual which will be published here tomorrow.

For the last few years naval experts have been increasingly critical of the new trends in Japanese naval design. Some have said Japanese marine architects were exceeding the bounds of safety in piling colossal superstructures onto their warships and loading decks with armaments out of all proportion to the size and weight of the hulls beneath them.

American and German naval officers, too, have reported the Japanese ships are "top heavy" and that their gigantic control towers would offer an easy target for shell fire. Only last March the torpedo boat Tomotsuro capsized with a loss of more than 100 lives because the Japanese designers had placed three 5 inch guns on the vessel of only 527 tons.

TINY CHICAGOANS TENSELY AWAIT GOOD FELLOWS

Hundreds Have No Other Hope for Christmas.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

"Her name was Nuncio—that means messenger," said the Goodfellow. "She was washing dishes in the kitchen, and she was barefooted—in December!"

"I wish I could help you to find her again," regretted the girl behind the counter at THE TRIBUNE's Public Service bureau, 1 South Dearborn street. "But unless you can remember the family name it's hopeless. Look at these lists—hundreds of families, just as poor, waiting for baskets on Christmas eve. Goodfellows like you are the only Santa Claus those little children dare hope for."

The heavy set, gray haired man who explained that it was his fifth year as a Goodfellow, was obviously disappointed at the result of his appeal.

"Of course," he finally conceded, "I'll take some other names. It was just that I never saw a kid so happy, when she danced around that basket last Christmas eve, as I set it on the floor, still holding the wet dishrag in one hand. She was about six, with a mass of kinky dark curls and big brown eyes. Somewhere not far from the Schiller school. I've looked everywhere for the place."

Plenty of Worthy Prospects.

"But at least, you can be sure that if their fortunes haven't improved, some other Goodfellow will be taking a basket there, while you and your granddaughter are making a happy Christmas for some other children," counseled the bureau girl ruffling her sheaves of applications for another prospect. "Here, right in the same part of town, there's—listen to this:

"Five children, all under ten. Father deserted. Mother not well. The oldest girl does most of the housework, and has no dress to wear outside the home. Mary, four years old, has never owned shoes except what some other child outgrew. She wants a doll badly. Three of the children share one bed, and bed clothing is urgently needed."

"Now, don't you think you'd like to get a blanket for them, and a little doll, perhaps—"

But the gray haired man wasn't listening. He had already reached for the slip and was reading it over for himself.

"Give me a couple more—as bad as that—and I'll forgive you for not finding Nuncio for me again," he told her. He got them.

No Toys, Few Clothes, Cold.

One family, according to his slip, lives "third floor, rear," in the same section of the city. For three years the father, an unskilled laborer, has looked for work in vain. Their three small children cannot be permitted to play outside because they have no wraps, and inside, they have only spools and spoons or other makeshifts for toys. Warm underclothing is needed as well as outer garb.

The other slip told the simple annals of a middle aged couple with a growing boy, dependent through an accident to the husband and the loss of a leg by the mother years ago. Despite her crutch, this woman is a splendid housekeeper, who hasn't owned any dress except an apron, for the last five years. She hopes ardently for a simple silk dress, and for shirts and coats for both her husband and son.

More Goodfellows Sign Up.

In the first six days of the Goodfellow mobilization for 1934, the number enlisting in the enterprise of providing a happy Christmas for some poor home has nearly doubled the list for the same period in 1933. The total is 131 as against 69 last year, and they will care for 196 families, as against 112 taken during the first six days of the preceding Goodfellow campaign.

The number of approved applicants shows a decrease from 2,464 at this time in 1933 to 2,047. It takes a lot of baskets to go around. Can't you fill one for a less lucky home? Just telephone Superior 0100 and ask for the Good Fellow department.

SIGN UP AS GOOD FELLOWS TO 12 FAMILIES

Miss Ramona Weigel of Tribune Good Fellow bureau gets signatures of employes of Insurance Company of North America, which has raised a Good Fellow fund every Christmas for the last fifteen years. Each year this group supplies twelve appreciative families with baskets. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Old Mexico Cafe Building Damaged by $2,000 Fire

A $2,000 fire yesterday destroyed most of the first and second floors of the former Old Mexico café at 6351 Cottage Grove avenue, renamed Club Tivoli by the management which took control on Nov. 9. Several firemen were overcome while fighting the blaze. One of them, Frederick Barden, truck company No. 16, was taken to Woodlawn hospital. Fire Chief William Dillon of the Fifth division said the fire may have started from a cigaret or defective wiring, as there was no evidence of incendiarism.

STALIN WARNS WORLD NOT TO WAR ON SOVIET Sees New Struggle Near; More Revolutions.

New York, Dec. 9.—[Special.]—A warning to other countries not to war on Russia is issued by Joseph Stalin in a report published today by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The report is in this month's issue of International Conciliation.

A preface by Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the endowment, which is responsible for the publication, says that the next issue will contain an exposition of Fascism by Premier Benito Mussolini.

Concerning international relations, Stalin said that war has come to the front as a means for a new redistribution of the world and spheres of influence in favor of the strongest states. "Idle talk about disarmament," he said, "is being replaced by businesslike talk about arming and rearming.

Sees New War Coming.

"Things are moving toward a new imperialist war," Stalin said, "which will certainly unleash revolution and put in question the very existence of capitalism in a number of countries, as was the case in the course of the first imperialist war."

He warned that soviet Russia "will fight to the very death to preserve the gains of the revolution." He warned any aggressor that such a war would be fought also in its rear "by the numerous friends of the working class of soviet Russia who would strike a blow for the fatherland of the working class of all countries."

"There is no doubt," Stalin said, "that a war against soviet Russia will lead to the complete defeat of the agressors, to revolution in a number of countries in Europe and in Asia, and to the overthrow of the bourgeois-landlord governments in these countries."

Report to His Party.

Dr. Butler explains that the soviet document is an English translation of the report made by Stalin, as secretary general of the communist party, to the seventeenth all-union communist party congress held in Moscow early this year.

Stalin, in the report, states that the national income of soviet Russia has increased from 29 billion rubles in 1929 to 50 billions in 1933, while during the same period there has been a decline in the national income of all capitalistic countries without exception.

Two types of workers who retard the party, Stalin characterized as those who have become "aristocrats," who consider that the lawe of the party and soviet were not written for them but for fools; and those whom he calls "chatterboxes," who are honest and loyal to the soviet, but who are incapable of organizing anything.

Working Class "Desperate."

Viewing the national economies of principal capitalistic countries, Stalin declared that four years of industrial crisis have exhausted the working class and reduced it to despair, and four years of agricultural crisis have finally ruined the poorer strata of peasantry. He did not believe that these masses of people have yet reached the stage when they are ready to storm the citadel of capitalism, but he declared that the idea was certainly maturing in their minds.

600 SOURDOUGHS RECALL LIFE OF GOLD RUSH DAYS

See Better Times Ahead for Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Six hundred sourdoughs, many of them in dinner dress, danced, played and talked here today, reviving memories of the Klondike and the Yukon.

It was a banquet to relive the wild old days of the Klondike gold rush and the mad stampede over the Chilkoot pass, but dinner jackets, airplanes and civilization crept in. The pioneers from Alaska, the United States and Canada were supposed to wear Indian parkas and mukluks of fur, but they went sophisticate.

The Rt. Rev. Peter Trimble Rowe, Episcopal bishop of Alaska, started out to tell of his friendship with "Soapy" Smith, Tex Rickard, Jack London, and the other oldtimers, and ended by confessing he used an airplane instead of a dog team nowadays, and found no criminals, fight promoters or authors to convert.

"Soapy" Smith Treasurer.

"'Soapy' Smith, one of the slickest confidence men in the territory, was my treasurer at Skagway,' the ruddy, iron gray haired prelate said. "He used to take care of the collection for me after I preached in a saloon or dance hall in the old days. He was a good treasurer while he lasted."

"Soapy" was shot to death by one of his enraged victims.

President Roosevelt's new gold price, which started Alaska back on the road to prosperity, was cheered, and government policies in Alaska "cussed and discussed" between helpings of moose meat.

Capt. Joe Mathews, Yukon river boat operator, brought the moose from the Northwest Territory, "by special permission of the Canadian government," he said.

Celery from Fairbanks.

Besides moose, there were celery from Fairbanks, smoked salmon from the Yukon, potatoes from the Matanuska, string beans from Dawson, salad with Aleutian Island dressing and Klondike rolls.

Judge Charles E. Claypool, who was th first United States commissioner in Alaska, was toastmaster.

"We need a great air base, a submarine base and the Alaska Yukon Pacific highway," said speakers at the reunion, "and it looks as though congress and the President are going to give us a break at last."

William Gilmore, first mayor of Nome during the gold rush, described the enthusiasm of the territory for the President, whose new gold price has gone far toward shattering the depression in Alaska.

Airline Base Urged.

"Alaska is the stepping stone for a giant airline to the orient and Asia," he said. "We need that air base and aerial development so that the United States can start commercial air lines. It is only a step across a mud puddle from Alaska to Siberia."

BLAME POISON DENATURANTS IN DEATHS OF 18

Portland, Ore., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A sudden change of denaturants in nonbeverage alcohol was blamed tonight by police investigators for the death of eighteen men and the illness of several others.

Chief of Detectives John J. Keegan said authorities were debating whether to file murder charges against certain vendors of the cheap potion which spread death through Portland's north end rooming house district.

Sale of the fluid, when labeled "poison," is legal for purposes other than drinking. Some of the victims were known addicts, police said. If the vendors knew the men were treating and then drinking the alcohol, Keegan said he beleived murder complaints would follow.

Wood alcohol, which had gone out of use as a denaturant, was found in the stomach contents of a victim.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Stricken with a heart attack as she walked at 3657 South Michigan avenue yesterday afternoon, Miss Blanche Longboan, 50 years old, 3426 South Michigan avenue, died a short time later at Mercy hospital.

250 SCOUTS AT WINTER CAMPS

250 Assemble

Winter sports were in full sway this week-end in the three forest preserve camps operated by the Chicago council of Boy Scouts when 250 scouts assembled for a two day winter camp outing.

Just as in summer, the scouts cooked their meals out of doors, but they slept in stove warmed tents. For pastime they went trailing, hiking, skating, and skiing, and even managed to squeeze in a few hours of winter nature study.

"It doesn't make any difference whether it's winter or summer," said Alfred C. Nichols Jr., chief camp director of the council. "No matter what the weather may be, we have twice as many requests as we can fill with the available facilities."

Camp Kiwanis is located at 95th street and 100th avenue in the Palos Park forest preserve. Camp Fort Dearborn is located south of Irving Park avenue and east of the Des Plaines river. Camp Harrison is in the forest preserve at Thornton.

MIKADO INSTALLS FIGHTER AS ENVOY TO MANCHUKUO

Stern Minami Successor to Amiable Hishikari.

TOKIO, Dec. 10.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Gen. Jiro Minami, 59, stern and strong willed soldier, was installed today as Japanese ambassador to Manchukuo and commander in chief of the empire's military forces in that Japanese advised nation.

The powers of the ambassador, who was appointed yesterday, are inclusive enough to make him actual ruler of the former Manchuria on behalf of the Japanese emperor.

Instalation took place in the imperial palace in the presence of Emperor Hirohito. Minami will leave for Hsinking Dec. 19. He succeeds the amiable Gen. Takashi Hishikari.

Described as Fighter.

Japanese writers who have followed his career closely describe Minami as as unwavering believer in his country's imperial destiny on the continent of Asia and in direct, forceful methods of dealing with any that oppose the Japanese mission "to maintain the peace of east Asia."

His record shows him to believe especially in a strong policy in dealing with China.

Gen. Minami stepped into his ambassadorial post from membership on the supreme war council in Tokio. In 1931 he held for a few months the post of minister of war in the cabinet of Baron Reijiro Wakatsuki. He was war minister when the Japanese army seized control of imperial policy by launching the campaigns which resulted in Japan's occupation of Manchuria.

Commands Force of 60,000.

As head of the Japanese forces in Manchuria, a highly trained and magnificently equipped body of about 60,000 men, Gen. Minami is responsible for the defense and policing of Manchukuo. This was provided in the Japan-Manchukuo protocol of Sept. 15, 1932.

As ambassador he will act as Japan's "adviser" to Manchukuo.

ONE DAY DRIVE NETS $1,400,000 TO NAZI RELIEF FUND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—"Solidarity day" collections for the winter relief fund on Saturday throughout Germany realized $1,400,000, according to official estimates.

Berlin people contributed $90,000, of which $5,000 went into the collection boxes of Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of air, and Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda. Police state that 2,000,000 people were on Berlin streets, from whom the average contribution was 4½ cents per head.

As the Nazi group leader Dr. Gustav Zunkel was motoring from Weimar to collect in Apolda his car skidded into a tree and Dr. Zunkel was killed instantly.

3 Mexicans Die; 62 Hurt in Collapse of Bull Ring

PATZCUARDO, Mexico, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Three persons were dead and sixty-two others were under treatment today for injuries suffered in the collapse of a section of the bull ring during a corrida yesterday. Others are expected to die, although the majority suffered fractures of the arms and legs.

FAMILY GROUP ROBBED.

James Gallick, 629 Alaska street, his wife Pearl, and the latter's mother, Mrs. H. E. Skolnisck, were held up in front of 2229 Kimball avenue early yesterday by three armed men who robbed them of $175 and two diamond rings valued at $225, and escaped.

U. S. COMPANY TO LAUNCH AIRLINE TO CHINA IN 1935

Speeds Program to Meet Japanese Rivalry.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The prospect of becoming next door neighbors of their good friend Uncle Sam through the inauguration of four to five day trans-Pacific airplane service has caught the imagination of the Chinese people.

The interest mounted today with the knowledge that by spring or early summer air liners will be flying the 8,000 mile expanse of Pacific ocean from the coast of California to Canton in trail blazing trial flights.

Japs Favor Zeppelins.

This information followed upon recent advices from Tokio that Japanese aviation interests, not to be outdone by American enterprise, have started a movement for the establishment of a trans-Pacific Zeppelin service.

It was learned here that organization of the Pacific Air Service company has been started in Tokio with the backing of Japanese and Manchukuan capital.

The new company proposes to purchase three Zeppelins from Germany. If the plan goes through Zeppelin service will be started early next year between Hsinking and Tokio and will be extended later to the south seas, the Hawaiian Islands, and the American mainland.

Clipper Planes for U. S. Line.

Besides bringing China and the United States closer, the proposed trial flights of Pan-American Airways are expected to prove enormously beneficial to American aviation interests in China.

China has thousands of miles of domestic air lines, but no air link with the outside world. Never has China seen an airplane equal in size to the four motored, forty-two passenger amphibian planes which the Pan-American company will send.

RUSSIA DEFIES FOREIGN CRITICS OF EXECUTIONS

MOSCOW, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Karl Radek, leading soviet publicist, today used the columns of Izvestia, official organ of the central executive committee of the communist party, to denounce as lies stories circulated abroad about alleged uprisings in Russia following upon the murder of Sergei Kiroff. Under the caption "The Jackals Are Still Howling," Radek declared the foreign bourgeois press was attempting to defeat Russia's rapprochement with France by creating an impression that the soviet union was unstable and that the agreement would not be lasting.

"We prefer to shoot if necessary several hundred of the White Guard rabble which attempts to defeat peace, rather than reduce millions of workers and peasants to suffering," he wrote. "Did the gentlemen [bourgeois editors] understand?

"If you did you should know you may howl as much as you want. This will not produce any impression on the U. S. S. R., and the punishing hand of the proletarian state will not hesitate a single minute in fulfilling its compulsory duty."

LYNCH IS OUSTED AS HEAD OF A. F. L. TEAMSTER UNION

Records Seized as Group Meets Under Guard.

James [Lefty] Lynch, veteran Chicago labor organizer, was deposed yesterday as secretary-treasurer and business agent of the Coal Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Hikers and Helpers union, Local 704, which is affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, American Federation of Labor organization.

Leslie G. Goudie, president of the teamsters' joint council for this vicinity, acting on orders from the general executive board of the international brotherhood and accompanied by police from the state's attorney's office, went to Lynch's office at 2322 North Harlem avenue, Elmwood Park, and seized all records of the union.

Meet Under Police Guard.

The seizure of the records was accomplished just prior to a meeting held at Car Men's hall, Van Buren and Ashland avenue, for the purpose of nominating candidates for election to union offices on Dec. 23. The meeting, attended by nearly 1,000 teamsters, was held under police protection, Lieuts. Frank Johnson, Thomas Kelly, and Charles Egan of the state's attorney's police being present.

Goudie said that he had been appointed receiver to handle the affairs of the union until the election is held late this month. He said that some of the charges which prompted the action of the international brotherhood in ordering Lynch's removal were: Holding rump meetings where special assessments were levied; not accounting for disbursement of union funds, and ousting President Al Weber and Vice President Steve Meyers without proper authority.

Lynch Booed at Meeting.

Lynch, who attended the meeting, was booed noisily when he attempted to explain his conduct as secretary and treasurer of the union. His name was placed in nomination in opposition to Al Weber for that office. Goudie said that the joint council will meet Tuesday to hear charges against Lynch and other candidates.

Local 704 was organized last February by Lynch when considerable opposition arose to the conduct of the Chicago Teamsters union, which was alleged to have been dominated by gangsters. Murray Humphries and the late George [Red] Barker are said to have formerly controled the union.

The new union was given a charter in the international brotherhood and is recognized as the official union by coal dealers and the public officials.

COAL MEN URGE: ELECTRIFY RURAL U. S.; MAKE JOBS

Point Way to Take Million Off Relief Rolls.

A new plan for furthering national recovery, calculated to take one million persons from the relief rolls, has been presented to Secretary of the Interior Ickes by George J. Leahy, chairman of the National Job Saving and Investment Protection Bureau for the Coal Industry, 139 North Clark street.

Mr. Leahy's letter to Secretary Ickes was made public yesterday. In brief, it proposed curtailment of the enormous governmental expenditures for federal hydro-electric power development and the substitution of a nation-wide plan to electrify 88.7 per cent of the farm homes of America.

Relative Merits of Plans.

Leahy contrasted the advantages of the federal projects and the coal industry's proposals in this fashion:

"The government's present hydro-electric program of building unnecessary generative facilities will eventually cost more than $4,000,000,000, put more than 200,000 persons out of work and electrify only a few hundred thousand farms over a long period of years.

"The coal industry's program of widespread electricity from present sources of supply would put nearly 600,000 men in permanent jobs instead of eliminating 200,000 persons and would electrify 6,000,000 farms instead of a small number. We have recommended to Mr. Ickes that a committee be appointed from representatives of the coal industry, railroads, utilities and the Federal Public Works administration to discuss the possibilities of such a gigantic program.

Government Would Get Its Cash.

"The capital investment in our program of building transmission lines to serve the unelectrified farms would total about $2,000,000,000, while the wiring of homes would total approximately $1,628,000,000. This money and an additional $4,500,000,000 to supply electric appliances to farmers in order that they might be able to take advantage of electricity would be returned to the government over a long period of years without any loss or burden to the taxpayers.

"Complete electrification would greatly reduce the present cost of generation and distribution of electricity, resulting in lower rates to all consumers. The present rural districts would benefit particularly by very large reductions, while it would be possible in nearly all sections to provide rates equal to, if not below the Tennessee Valley authority yardstick rates.

"Our statisticians and engineers have estimated that the working program for complete electrification would provide work for 576,222 men, and such work would be spread in nearly every county of the country.

"This complete electrification would mean an additional 5,000,000,000 kilowatt hours annually. Should only one-half of this amount be generated from coal, it would require 94,000,000 tons of coal, giving steady employment to 117,500 miners in addition many thousands of men in allied industries. The additional annual freight revenue to the railroads for hauling this coal would be $141,000,000, of which $78,960,000 would go to labor, thus furnishing employment to 52,600 additional persons permanently."

SUBURBAN GROUP TO SEEK HORNER'S AID FOR SCHOOLS

Gov. Horner's aid will be sought by a committee of suburban citizens who fear the schools in several country towns in Cook county will be unable to open after the Christmas holidays unless relief comes from the state or the federal relief agencies.

Leo W. Chulock of Maywood, president of the Illinois School Board association, said yesterday that the committee will decide this week when it will appear before the governor. It will probably ask first that the governor use his influence with the relief commission to obtain a $153,000 loan to pay a month's salary to more than 400 country school teachers who have not been paid since the schools opened in the fall.

Before the legislature convenes Jan. 9, the committee, working in conjunction with teachers' organizations and school board groups, will probably prepare an extensive program for submission to the assembly.

SCHOOL FINANCE TO BE TOPIC IN TAX CONFERENCE

Public school financing will form a major topic of tax commissioners from six middle west states who are to meet today in the Hotel Sherman for a two day conference. Other problems to be tackled by the commissioners include regional uniformity in taxation and control of local expenditures.

The states to be represented in the conference are Illionis, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

Barnet Hodes and Simeon E. Leland, members of the Illinois tax commission, will speak at the opening of the meeting. Congressman Elect Scott W. Lucas of Havana, retiring chairman of the Illinois tax commission, will attend.

Wealthiest Man for 1933 Nets Over 5 Million.

total net income for this group slumped from 9 billion 834 million dollars in 1932 to 9 billion 367 million dollars last year.

Meanwhile, the number of those netting from $25,000 up into the millions increased from 17,658 in 1932 to 18,168 in 1933. The aggregate income of these comparatively wealthy people jumped from 1 billion 351 million dollars in 1932 to 1 billion 479 millions in 1932.

Sought to Cut Big Incomes.

This trend is exactly contrary to the New Dealers who started their social experimentation in 1933.

Speculation was almost the only source of income to show an increase during 1933 despite the launching of the brain trust regulations. Helvering's report shows that the American people made a net profit out of speculations in 1933 for the first time since 1929. Gross income from speculation was estimated at 414 million dollars last year while speculative losses were 345 millions, leaving a net profit of 69 millions, first speculative net to be shown since 1929.

Business Earnings Drop.

Wages, business earnings, rents and royalties, dividend payments, and interest payments all declined in comparison with 1932 while speculative profits increased. Since the wealthy classes derive a greater percentage of their income from speculative and investment sources than do the less wealthy wage earnings classes, the number of big incomes boom with speculation and the number of middle class incomes dropped with wages and business earnings.

Analyzing the nation's income, Helvering broke it down for 1933 as follows:

Wages and salaries, $7,196,800,000; business earnings, $1,393,500,000; partnership earnings, $563,400,000; investment profits, $132,900,000; speculative profits, $414,000,000; rents and royalties, $411,400,000; interest on federal bonds, $30,800,000; dividend payments, $1,589,200,000; fiduciary work, $264,500,000; other interest payments, $964,700,000; and other income, $156,300,000.

Earnings Over 13 Billion.

These earnings ran up a total gross income of 13 billion 118 million dollars against which people deducted losses aggregating 2 billion 272 million dollars, leaving a net income of 10 billion 846 million dollars.

The various losses were estimated by Helvering as follows:

Speculative losses, $344,900,000; business and partnership losses, $86,500,000; contributions deductable for tax purposes, $251,100,000; and miscellaneous losses, $1,589,400,000.

Industrial Chiefs Invited to Conference on Recovery

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—Prompt consideration of the administration's invitation to coöperate in a program for recovery was assured today. Two leading industrial groups, the committees for business recovery recently appointed by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the National Association of Manufacturers called the meeting for Dec. 17 at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Invitations have been sent, it was announced, to 100 leaders in the fields of commerce, industry, finance, and agriculture "to consider various suggestions for a constructive program to accelerate recovery from our existing economic condition."

Roper Gives Invitation.

At the joint meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers and the Congress of American Industry in New York during the last week, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper spoke on behalf of the administration. He told the industrial leaders their suggestions would receive careful consideration in the forming of policies for "the second stage of recovery."

Mr. Roper's six point program included an assumption by the states and cities of a much greater share of the public relief burden and the planning of "a sound public works" program that would provide projects of lasting value and not interfere with private business.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in its weekly Washington review, says the question of unemployment "continues as the one overshadowing problem confronting the government." The review adds that the new congress will be faced with arguments both for and against large public spending, but that there has been no indication of any final conclusion. It is believed in most quarters that even the President himself has not yet made up his mind as to how much the government should spend in further efforts to "prime the pump."

"Within the last year," says the Chamber of Commerce Review, "the country has seen the apparent anomaly of gains in employment being accompanied by increases in the number of persons on relief rolls. For this condition there are causes. One lies in the general exhaustion of personal resources of those out of work. A further cause, of undoubted seriousness, is due to the liberalization of relief programs."

Direct Relief Favored.

The chamber of commerce makes the conclusion that direct relief payments are the least expensive and that so-called work relief programs, if involving the production of goods, raise the question of government competition with business. In other forms, the review says, work relief programs put relatively few people to work.

"The current public works program has proved disappointing in the amount of employment furnished," the Chamber of Commerce Review states. "The somewhat vague suggestions brought forward for a mammoth government housing program would seem to threaten the success of the federal housing administration's plans for encouraging private home construction."

This referred to the recent conflict in the views of Administrator Ickes and Housing Administrator James A. Moffett, the latter contending that a program such as Ickes advocated would prove "disastrous."

It is said by some that if the President decides against the advocates of huge spending, but reserve authority to make appropriations by executive order in new emergencies, he could take credit for success and blame industry for failure.

POLICE NARCOTIC SQUAD SEIZES 6 IN WEST SIDE RAIDS

A series of surprise raids on the west side by the police narcotic squad under Lieut. William Cusack early yesterday added four women and two men, drug addicts and peddlers, to the number seized in the last several days as part of a nation-wide drive on "dope."

One of those arrested was Benjamin [Bennie] Bean, 56 years old, who recently served a term in federal prison for selling drugs. He was arrested at Laflin and Madison streets.

Although police found no drugs on Bean's person, he was carrying a bank book showing deposits of $1,300 and a key to a safe deposit box which will be opened today, police said. When Bean refused to give his address he was locked up at the detective bureau.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—After facing death for more than 20 hours in a freezing gale, William Griek Jr. and George Smeric were rescued with their fishing smack, the Fay G., today by the coast guard cutter Mendota.

"NIGHT OF STARS" ADVANCE SALE PASSES $100,000

The "Night of Stars," a Christmas benefit show at the Stadium on Dec. 19, for which Mayor Kelly is chief sponsor, will offer an outstanding program of entertainment, according to an announcement yesterday by Barnet Hodes, secretary of the benefit organization.

"More than $100,000 worth of advance tickets has been sold, making the goal of $200,000 seem assured," said Hodes.

Entertainers who have been scheduled for the show include Clifton Webb, Helen Broderick, Dorothy Stone, Ethel Waters, and George M. Cohan, stage favorites; Lina Basquette of Hollywood, film actress, and possibly other screen stars, and a large number of radio and café entertainers. Proceeds of the show will go to the benefit of Chicago's needy children.

Mobile, Ala., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—R. A. Barkley of Madison, Wis., is held at Selma, Ala., today as a suspect of the $5,000 bank robbery at Marion Junction. Madison police have been asked for the record of Barkley.

ETHAN ALLEN KIN LEADS VENTURE IN NORTH WOODS

Band to Set Up Co-operative Community.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Ethan Allen, descendant of the American soldier of that name who led a band of Green mountain boys against Fort Ticonderoga during the revolutionary war, headed a little band of forty-nine adults and fifty-five children from Minneapolis into snowbound northern Minnesota Saturday to begin life all over again.

They will spend the winter in a community building on 640 acres of land in Itasca county and in the spring their coöperative homestead project will get under way in earnest.

Men Will Hew Timbers.

During the winter the men, representing various trades, will saw logs for twenty small houses to be constructed in the spring. Women and girls will sew and cook.

The project was devised and carried out by Allen, former superintendent of construction for a gasoline company here, after he lost his job a year ago. He hitch-hiked to Washington, D. C., last summer and presented his plan to government officials.

After investigation they approved the homestead project and advanced $9,000 to purchase the 640 acres, promising additional funds for the construction of houses and to provide each family with two cows, two pigs, a hive of bees, 100 chickens, and farm machinery.

All on Coöperative Basis.

All the work will be done on a coöperative basis, each man drawing on a central store of supplies and paid in cash for the hours he works over what he is charged with. The balance will be divided among the twenty families.

The project will be carried out under observation of the Minnesota State Emergency Relief administration, which is planning similar coöperatives for 5,000 families in the state.

DIVORCED WIFE OF BANKER KILLS EX-POLICEMAN

Shoots Sergeant 5 Times with Own Pistol.

Edward O'Keefe, 62 years old, 3909 Jackson boulevard, who retired six years ago as sergeant of police, was shot five times and fatally wounded yesterday by his housekeeper, Mrs. Antoinette Frey Stein, 38 years old. Mrs. Stein is the former wife of Joseph Stein, chairman of the board of the defunct State Commercial and Savings bank. O'Keefe died shortly after being taken to the Garfield Park hospital.

In a statement made at the Fillmore police station, where she was held over night for the inquest today, Mrs. Stein said she shot in self-defense. O'Keefe, she asserted, had been on a drinking spree for a week.

Cornered in Her Room.

Yesterday he became abusive when she returned from church, Mrs. Stein related. When he threatened to throw a pot of stew at her she fled to an upstairs room. When O'Keefe attempted to force his way into the room, Mrs. Stein said she grabbed the revolver he was holding and pulled the trigger.

Mrs. Stein became O'Keefe's housekeeper twenty months ago on her return from a trip to Europe. Her voyage was the aftermath of several years' domestic litigation with her husband.

Stein's bank was closed by the state in 1924, but he engaged in the real estate brokerage business and was considered wealthy. On Oct. 27, 1927, as Mrs. Stein was on a train about to leave Chicago, her husband had her arrested on a charge of stealing securities and valuable jewelry from him to pay her gambling debts. He alleged also undue friendliness to another man.

Court Hearings Drag On.

Stein had the charge dismissed the next day in court, and attempted a reconciliation with his wife. Failing, he sued for divorce a few days later. An attempt by Judge Joseph Sabath to reconcile the couple ended with Mrs. Stein's filing a cross bill for divorce.

It was not until 1930, after prolonged hearings, that she was awarded a decree on grounds of cruelty. Mrs. Stein then went abroad to visit relatives. After the death of her former husband, she returned, and sought work. In her position as O'Keefe's housekeeper, Mrs. Stein used her maiden name of Frey.

So Few Ask Citizenship Court Quits Giving It

ENVOY IS DEAD

DR. MANUEL STERLING.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The Cuban ambassador, Dr. Manuel Marquez Sterling, died today at his embassy. He was 62 and had been in ill health for several years, but was not confined to bed until Friday.

Señor Marquez Sterling was instrumental this year in arranging abrogation of the famous Platt amendment to the Cuban basic laws, and only three months ago negotiated the first reciprocal trade treaty with the United States.

Señor Marques Sterling was sent to Washington by Provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes to succeed former President Gerardo Machado's rpresentative, Oscar Cintas. He continued under President Carlos Mendieta. He was a journalist before becoming a diplomat in 1909. He served as minister to Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro until 1912, when he was transferred to Mexico. He again was sent to Mexico by the Machado government.

Much of his diplomatic work he put into "Las Conferencies del Shoreman," published last year in Mexico and secretly circulated in Cuba.

NIAGARA SAFE FOR 2,000 YEARS, SAYS PROFESSOR

Rock Slides Are Described by Geologist.

BY O. D. VON ENGELN.

Professor of Geology, Cornell University.

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 9.—When humdrum Niagara, even its thrill as a spectacle dulled through its familiarity from pictures, begins cavorting, making the front page with a great rock fall every few months, Mr. General Public begins to ask what it's all about.

Are the falls going to be ruined in a few years? Are these breaks something new? Mr. General Public is dimly aware that the falls must have existed a very long time. Are they now suddenly being overtaken by some dire fate?

No Immediate Danger.

No—the falls are in no immediate danger of extinction, but they are moving along upstream, and are declining in height steadily as they recede.

These three breaks, each involving many feet of the crest line and thousands of tons of rock, the first on Jan. 17, 1931, on the American side, then one on Aug. 13, 1934, and another Dec. 5, 1934, both in the Horseshoe fall, occurred at surprisingly short time intervals and in a shockingly big way in each instance, but they are nevertheless only representative of a process that has been going on for approximately 30,000 years.

Probably the big breaks are uncommon, indeed they may be a sort of shaking itself down to a more stable condition on part of the big cataract.

Retreat Is Constant.

Nevertheless, a smaller fretting away, the dropping of unnoticed lesser fragments from the crest is constantly going on, so that the line of the falls is retreating at a rate calculated to average four feet annually along the Canadian fall and only two inches a year on the American side.

These average rates are the results of a long series of surveys, the earliest in 1842, the most recent and most accurate by W. H. Boyd in 1927 for the geological survey of Canada.

Although the recession from year to year varies, depending on the incidence of such larger breaks as those now in the news, in the 85 years between the earliest and latest surveys the recession of the apex of the Horseshoe fall definitly is established to have been 288 feet.

How Much Longer?

If it can so certainly be known that in approximately 100 years of historical time there has been a recession of 300 feet, it is an easy inference that the same process very surely was in progress a hundred years, a thousand years, before then, and equally easy to make the deduction that the whole seven mile length of Niagara gorge is the product of the long continued retreat of the cataract upstream from its original site at Lewiston, N. Y.

Then comes the temptation to figure just how many years were required for the job and how much longer will Niagara last. The simple division that is apparently the only operation necessary for solution of the first problem gives a quotient of 12,000 in round numbers.

Height Once 300 Feet.

At their inception the falls were for a time about 300 feet high, now the height is only 160 feet; the volume of water coming over the falls has varied greatly over long periods; the thickness of the Lockport dolomite that forms the caprock of the falls, and holds it up, is not uniform, and part of the gorge may have been produced before the present Niagara river came into existence.

No accurate estimate of the effect of these many variables can be made, but by reference to other geological time scales a guess of 30,000 years is waranted.

Because what is going on now is so well known, it seems safer to predict the future of Niagara than to read its past. The surface of the cap rock declines in height upstream from the present crest line. There must also be a slope upstream of the water surface below the falls in order that there be flow.

Thus the height of the cataract must decline steadily, and long before the position of a crest line could be brought to the foot of Lake Erie the falls of Niagara will have disappeared because of the meeting of the descent of the upper river with that of the lower river in an unbroken slope.

Meanwhile, however, the crest of the Horseshoe fall will have been creeping back around the head of Goat island, and, in about 2,000 years, will cut off the water supply of the American fall, leaving it a dry cliff. Such is the indicated prospect. But 2,000 years is a long time. Before then Niagara falls may be taken in charge by mankind and its recessive proclivities much curbed if not completely stopped.

POLICE RECEIVE CLOTHING AND TOYS FOR POOR

Police stations began yesterday to look like rummage stores as Chicagoans responded to the first call issued on Saturday by Mayor Kelly for unneeded articles about the house which might be given to the city's poor at Christmas time. Clothes, toys, and a variety of other things were being brought in through the day to make sizable heaps in the corners of virtually all stations in "prosperous" neighborhoods. The articles will be taken to the Bridewell for repair, and will be given out later to the needy. "Tell your policeman" was the advice to persons with articles to give away. Squad cars will gather them.

Harold Clifford, for whom the poison was believed intended, and two other prisoners recovered. Clifford was about to testify for the state against Edward Piranio, alies Frank [Fat] Estes, and Edward Konowski. Clifford had said Piranio and Konowski were hiscompanions in the "ride" ski were his companions in the "ride" Bellwood last August. Later they were convicted and sentenced to prison for terms of one year to life. Cozzi has been identified by three witnesses as the man who delivered the sandwiches to the jail.

LEFTISTS START 3D PARTY; PUSH U. S. OWNERSHIP

See It as Means to 'Avert Fascism.'

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A national third party movement, hopeful of consolidating all leftist factions in the United States behind a common aim based on sweeping public ownership, was started today by ultraliberals from eight midwest states.

Predicated on the theory "capitalism has failed" and if fascism "is to be prevented, a national third party must be organized," delegates adopted a declaration of principles, approved first steps looking toward a formation of such a national movement, and prepared for a meeting next spring, probably in Chicago, which ultraliberals from throughout the nation are expected to attend.

Five Draft Principles.

The declaration of principles was drafted by a committee consisting of Alfred S. Dale, North Dakota; John L. Wirds, Iowa; Congressman George Schneider, Wisconsin; D. D. Alderdyce, Michigan, and Arthur Lesueur, Minnesota.

Howard Y. Williams, national organizer for the Farmer-Labor party, said the meeting, which conferees today were hopeful leaders of midwest third parties could be induced to call, would definitly launch a "radical third party."

Julius Emme, St. Paul, told the conference sentiment in the country was for "a distinct class party," predicting the "struggle in the future is going to be between representatives of capital interests and representatives of the working class."

"Party Consolidation Near."

"The consolidation of the Republican and Democratic parties is impending," said Emme in his address. "When big business promises to cooperate with President Roosevelt where NRA is concerned, that spells one of two things—unification of both old parties to meet the rising third party, or Fascism."

Williams lent impetus to the movement in declaring the conferees should not wait to see what President Roosevelt is going to do before deciding whether to call a national meeting for a leftist party.

"The President has shown courage and some vision," said Williams, "but as far as touching the roots of the poison in the capitalistic system, he has not gone far.

"There is no doubt we are approaching the end of the old system. The exploitation by monopolies has got to go. No hope can be expected from the national Democratic administration because it is committed to the profit system."

Mexico Offers $5,500,000 Jan. 1 for Farm Loans

The National Bank of Agricultural Credit will make the loans to holders of communal grants in order that they may acquire machinery, cattle, seed, and other necessities.

Former Customs Collector Convicted as Embezzler

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Consoling himself that the verdict was "not so tough," George D. Hubbard, former United States collector of customs for this district, today awaited sentence on his conviction of embezzling 84 quarts of customs seized liquor for his own use. "I was acquitted on one indictment, wasn't I?" he asked, referring to the jury's verdict after the ten day trial here.

Two Wounded as Mexican Police Disperse Reds

BALK MINISTER'S EFFORT TO SHIFT VENIZELOS TRIAL

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

ATHENS, Dec. 9.—The attempt of Minister of the Interior Chloros to postpone the Venizelos assassination trial and remove it from the former premier's electoral district of Piræus was frustrated today.

Chloros based the attempt on the ground that outbreaks were planned by sympathizers of both Eleutherios Venizelos and fourteen men accused of killing his chauffeur and wounding Mrs. Venizelos. However, court officials, conferring with police and constabulary heads, decided the trial will reopen Dec. 22.

It is said the Tsaldaris government intended to throw the trial, which legally cannot be held in Athens, into one of the nearby cities where jurors would be sympathetic to the government affiliations of the accused. The Venizelist press says Chloros obtained inspired evidence of proposed outbreaks by ordering officers friendly with several of the police among the accused to manufacture testimony in order to move the trial from Piræus.

EXTENDED MERIT SYSTEM ASKED OF ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt was asked in a letter by the National League of Women Voters today to issue an executive order extending the merit system by placing the federal-state employment service in the classified service. This, it was contended, would insure greater efficiency in the public service.

The league also urged the President to recommend congressional support of extension of the classified service to include field service of the regular departments and agencies of the federal government and of postmasters to the first, second, and third class.

It further expressed a desire to see the acts creating the emergency agencies amended so that positions in these agencies could be placed on classified service by executive order, if it becomes evident these agencies are to be permanent.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

A TRANSPORTATION POLICY.

The Railway Age has charged that the transportation policy of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is indefinite. According to its editor, "THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has contributed nothing as yet toward solution of the transportation problem because, while consistently denouncing both railway regulation and management with sweeping, unsupported generalizations, it has never troubled itself to state specifically what changes and all the changes in the regulation of railways and other carriers it favors." Our esteemed contemporary has merely drawn our attention to the fact that we have not recently summarized our views as expressed in various editorials. In this respect, perhaps, we have been a little remiss. Few of our readers keep scrap books and obviously the editor of the Railway Age is not among their number. We will proceed to remedy the defect.

Mr. Eastman, the coördinator of transportation, has suggested that "What the railways need is a rejuvenation." Railway regulation has vested much of the details of management in the interstate commerce commission, which has not substantially changed its method of procedure for twenty-five years. Cumbersome investigations drag their weary way over periods varying from three to eight years to build up records that are archaic and therefore useless when finally submitted to the commissioners for decision. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has expressed the opinion that rejuvenation of the railways must commence with an overhauling of regulatory law.

The power of the commission to grant reparation should be immediately rescinded. As the statute has been administered in the past the securing of reparation has become a profitable racket and is the incentive for seventy-five per cent, or even more, of proceedings before the interstate commerce commission. It costs the railways millions annually and clogs the machinery of the regulatory body.

We have consistently fought for the modification of the fourth section to enable the railways to secure profitable trafic to termini served by water. The present policy has resulted in the destruction of the Pacific coast market for middle west industries.

Our opposition to the continued operation of the Federal Barge lines by the government is well known. Its usefulness as an experiment, if any, has long since disappeared, and it is now engaged in cutthroat competition with the very private operations it is presumed to have fostered.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has suggested that the commission should permit the railways to establish trainload rates. It has been shown that if the rail carriers were permitted to use this most powerful arm of their service they could frequently regain trafic that is now moving by water or pipe line. Were they not forced to continue the carload as the maximum unit of rate measure they could prevent or discourage the uneconomical extension of transportation facilities.

Subject to commission approval, railroads should be permitted to make contracts to promote the freest possible interchange of commodities. Standardization has ousted ingenuity in the railway field but encouraged it to construct unnecessary transport facilities.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has published a comprehensive regional consolidation plan and still considers that economies based on the elimination of multiple routes, that do not compete but merely duplicate service, will constitute the longest possible step toward carrier health.

Government interference with private initiative should be administered, if at all, in minimum doses, and then only in the interest of the entire public. The demand for the extension of regulation to waterway and highway transport originated in railway circles and represents an effort to prolong the status quo of the railway industry. The regulatory laws suggested would be meaningless gestures that would in no way assist in the solution of the railways' problem because the trafic either would be driven to private transport or dried up. The solution of the railways' difficulty lies within the industry itself.

A FOOLISH PROPOSAL.

The present trend toward government control inevitably expresses itself in the hearings on armament manufacture before a senate committee. Members of the committee are government minded and as politicians make the most of the pacifist myth that armament manufacturers carry on a perpetual and often successful conspiracy to foment wars. This notion is not supported by substantial evidence, but it serves as a background for the proposal to prohibit private arms manufacture and impose that essential of defense upon government.

There is no chance that the other great powers will thus destroy the huge private munitions and chemical manufactures developed in their countries, whatever in these days we may be willing to do in the United States, and in the absence of international agreement it may be hoped our inclination toward grandiose experiment will be checked on that ground. But even if an agreement were reached the result of confining munitions supply to a government department would weaken our defense disproportionately. Our congress and our people are incurably optimistic as to war possibilities and expenditures on defense are always kept at a minimum until war actually occurs. Government supply of munitions would be controled by our habitual reluctance to prepare for war and there is not the slightest likelihood that congress would maintain in peace times an establishment capable of being expanded to meet war conditions.

Our only alternative, as Woodrow Wilson pointed out in regard to the encouragement of the dyestuff industry, is to rely upon private enterprise, which in the ordinary conduct of business through the manufacture and sale of diversified products can maintain plants capable of prompt expansion to meet the extraordinary needs of war.

The substitution of exclusive government manufacture for private enterprise would weaken the defense of every pacific nation and give a new advantage to autocratic governments and belligerent nations. Like many other pacifistic proposals, it would defeat its ostensible intent, and by increasing the advantage of bellicose governments would increase the prospect of war rather than diminish it.

RIGHTS UNDER THE CODES.

Several months ago a signer of the graphic arts code received a suggestion from one of the compliance authorities. He had complained of certain injuries and was told that it might prove more injurious if he made public protest in the newspapers. The specific statement was that publicity might only call attention which would compel action, but the plain inference was that any one under the code would do much better to keep his mouth shut.

The doctrine of code enforcement indicated in this incident is now carried to a further development under another code. Eleven members of the garment code authority have been thrown out because the International Association of Garment Manufacturers, to which they belong, resorted to the courts and obtained a stay against an executive order effective Dec. 1 requiring the industry to substitute a 36 hour week for a 40 hour week and maintain the same wage scale.

The NRA in discharging the representatives of the industry from the code authority denies the garment makers what the law grants them. Because they exercised the right of appealing to the courts for protection against an order they are denied the rights accorded industrialists who do not appeal to the judicial branch of government. From infringement of the right of free speech the compliance authorities proceed to punish citizens for resorting to judicial protections without which there would be an unlimited dictatorship. The NRA cannot keep citizens out of the courts so long as the judiciary will hold the door open, but it can deprive them of what belongs to them equally under the law, the right of representation in the administration of their code.

Any one who attempts to reach any dependable conclusions in speculating upon government intentions will require magic. Without it he will be hopelessly lost. Mr. Moley and Mr. Richberg appear to be the principal government spokesmen just now, and although Mr. Moley may be talking like Mr. Moley, Mr. Richberg is not talking like any Mr. Richberg who has been known in the past, but nothing they say seems to take any shape in what the administrators do. Both of them are saying that it is time to restore business to its normal rights and privileges, that emergency measures must be regarded as having done all that can be asked of them and that industry and commerce must find their permanent basis.

All this would reveal that the government was retreating to the right and that private enterprise could confidently expect a release from administrative cracking down. Nothing could defeat such expectations more than the discovery that an appeal to law is regarded as a punishable offense under the NRA. A Delphic oracle, veritably possessed of true powers, could not determine from what is said and done what the government proposes for 1935. The business standstill is the consequence of indecision and lack of reliable information. A new congress is about to sit and the people of the United States haven't much idea of what is in store for them.

Editorial of the Day

GERTRUDE STEIN'S SONG.

[Memphis Commercial Appeal.]

The group of Americans who pay any attention to such matters in the first place are apparently divided about equally among those who take Miss Gertrude Stein for a brilliant artist, those who insist that she writes gibberish, and those who are amused at the other two classes for taking the matter seriously. Not being among those who have read more of Miss Stein's stuff than has been used by impertinent paragraphers for purposes of derision, we are really not in a position to take any part, but we have arbitrarily decided to string along with the third class named, for they seem to be having the most fun out of it.

As a matter of fact, we have not deliberately exposed ourself to Miss Stein's songs, or whatever one should call them, for the rather noticeable tendency toward obfuscation in her stuff is something the average newspaper man is supposed to shun like the devil. To be truthful, we have only the shadiest idea of what Miss Stein is trying to prove, if anything, and own but the most remote recollection of how her stuff looks in print. As well as we can recall, however, she makes apparently delirious statements about when a rose is a rose, a rose is a rose, but when a rose is not a rose is a rose a rose, etc., etc. It is supposed to have rhyme and reason, but very little punctuation. For purposes of anybody's argument, we are willing to admit that the fact we can't see even the remotest trace of sense in it is evidence of a woeful lack in the eye of the beholder.

In the whole hullabaloo that has arisen and is still arising over Miss Gertrude's visit to America we are sure of one thing only: namely, that Miss Gertrude herself, if crazy, is crazy like a fox. She is placidly going her ways giving out interviews, making lectures, attending parties, and autographing copies of her books, reported selling in large quantities. Any percentages that are developed in the connection are all to Miss Gertrude. Perish the thought, by the way, that Miss Gertrude, in the midst of the welter of ideas, or whatever you call them, she is putting out, keeps as her guiding star the thought that Mr. P. T. Barnum was right in the first place and has not been disproved since.

"U. S. TO BE PEACEMAKER in Bolivia-Paraguay War."—Headline. When they find out down there that the U. S. is going to take charge they may stop fighting, but if they know anything about this country they'll have their soldiers walking up and down each other's borders wearing sign boards "This Country Unfair to Organized Paraguayans," and "Paraguay Very Unkind to Amalgamated Bolivia."

AND THE U. S. can warn each country that if their soldiers don't stay home and mind their own business it will take away their Blue Eagle. Or maybe down in South America we'd better make it the Blue Llama, because they're more used to llamas down there than they are to eagles. And if the U. S. says to 'em threatening like: "If you don't behave we'll take away your Blue Llama!" it'll scare 'em to death.

THOUSANDS CHEER.

Dear, if the time shall come,
As come it may,
With the millennium
Still far away,

When I shall find myself
Quite unemployed,
Washed up and on the shelf,
Lost in the void,

With the rude, milling mob
I shall not train,
A government job
I shall disdain.

Nor the mad movie van
Shall I infest;
I know I never can Act like Mae West.

But, like a house afire,
Burns one ambition,
This, my great heart's desire,
My cherished mission:

To join the radio
Later or sooner,
Not as a jester, though,
Nor as a crooner.

Not as a McNamee,
Darling and dapper—
No, I just hope to be
A great handclapper.

Night after night I hear,
Day after day,
People who cheer and cheer—
Some one must pay.

For the applause they give,
Naïvely, say
(Handclappers have to live),
Some one must pay.

The Tender Buttons Linebook

Every Linebook—and the Linebook of 1934 is the eleventh child—has been given a nickname. And now the new book has been christened. Ruthless Ruth writes in to say, "I hereby christen the baby Linebook 'Tender Buttons,' with thanks to Gertrude Stein. Those pants buttons they sewed on the cartoon the artist made of you to simulate eyes do not seem like coarse, common pants buttons at all when set in the picture. Ah, and indeed no! They are tender buttons. So let it be the 'Tender Buttons Linebook.'" Oh, very well. I don't seem to care for the name myself, and the sooner those tender buttons move out of the book stores and off the news stands the sooner I can walk boldly out in the open sunshine again. I can't bear to have 'em glaring at me. So one thing we have to say to you, dear little Tender Buttons, now that you've got your nickname, you beat it out of the book stores and off the news stands as quick as ever you can. Git!

COMMENT.

R. H. L.: The first poem in the new Linebook alone makes it the best book of the year. Congratulations. R. D. R.

Sir: Darn your picture, if it is your picture, I've bought three of the darn books already and every singletary solitary one of 'em has been swiped. Put padlocks on the next one. SAM'L.

Dear Dick: Eolus' introduction (lucky guy!) is a wow, but even that doesn't tell how swell the new Linebook is. The judges should have used mine. ALICE FOR SHORT.

THIS IS THE 10TH day of December! What does the fact that it is the 10th day of December remind you of? No, no! Not that we may have more snow or that we should pour more keep-'em-from-freezing stuff in the radiator. That isn't it. It's something you ought to do or start doing; now what is it? No, I'm not going to tell you; figure it out yourself. R. H. L.

SCABIES OR ITCH.

THE itch mite is a spider that has gone on the dole. It has forsaken the habits of its ancestors; has ceased its web spinning tendencies, and has found comfort and a good living in a parasitic existence in the human skin. Although this mite likes us, we do not like her or her children, for it is the female which does the burrowing beneath the skin, lays from 25 to 50 eggs, and is responsible for the intolerable itching that attends infestation.

The recognition of scabies is important because of its common occurrence, the severe discomfort it causes the patient, and the necessity of carrying out effective treatment. Itching is the most prominent symptom and is more severe at night, due no doubt to the fact that the mite becomes more active in the uniform heat generated by the covered body when at rest. The cause of the itching is supposed to be a poison secreted by the insect. Scratching with soiled fingers and fingernails adds to the discomfort by infecting the skin and thus seriously interfering with recovery.

Recognition of the disease depends upon identification of the itch mite itself or of the characteristic burrows that somewhat resemble, although in diminutive form, the mole burrows of our lawns. The burrows appear as rough lines that are sinuous and angular rather than straight. Sometimes they are difficult to see, due to their lack of prominence or to the surrounding inflammation. They are most easily seen on the wrists and the palms, where they follow the lines of the skin folds. In infants and children the best marked burrows are usually on the feet, especially the instep.

A small blister is often seen at the end of a burrow and the mite may be picked out with a needle and identified as a minute, round, yellowish, glistening body.

The parasite favors locations on the body where the skin is soft, warm, and moist, such as the sides and webs of the fingers, the palms, the wrists, the armpits, the stomach area, and the nipples in women.

The disease is unusually infectious. Sleeping in a bed recently occupied by an infected person or with a person who has had the disease is an easy way of acquiring the parasite.

Treatment is directed toward the complete elimination of the mite and her eggs, and there are remedies which are satisfactory if properly applied. Many ointments are irritating to the skin, though effective in killing the mite. Sulphur ointment, if it can be tolerated, is most useful. When the disease occurs in all the members of the family the treatment should be applied to all at the same time.

Montgomery and Culver employ two ointments, one of sulphur and balsam of Peru and the other of creolin. In cases in which the skin is not already severely irritated the patient is told to take a warm bath and then to rub the sulphur ointment into the hands, between the fingers, on the wrists, around the elbows, etc. The patient must then wear a suit of underwear coming down to the wrists and ankles. All members of the family must be carefully checked and rechecked to be sure that they have followed instructions in carrying out the treatment. Occasionally sulphur irritates the skin, leading one to believe that all the mites have not been destroyed, hence the reason for changing the ointment. Creolin should be combined with vaseline, but never with balsam of Peru. Creolin in 5 per cent strength is a relief from the sulphur, an excellent insecticide, and an effective remedy against the accompanying bacteria.

Obviously the sulphur or creolin ointments should be used until the last vestige of infection has disappeared, as one living female mite may inaugurate a reinfestation.

WRY NECK.

Mrs. B. writes: I have had spastic torticollis for over 30 years. I am now 61 years old. Is my age a barrier to operation to correct this condition?

REPLY.

Torticollis or wry neck is generally regarded as a functional disease. The cause may lie in some disease of the spine, rheumatism of the muscle, or deep inflammation of the glands of the neck. Cutting some of the fibers of the sternomastoid muscle will relieve the condition. The operation in the hands of an expert is not dangerous.

PROPERTY LINES.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Kindly tell me what to do in regard to a fence dispute. I had it surveyed and the neighbor's fence is on my line about three inches. Still he keeps on fighting about it. 2. Can I make him put his fence on his own ground? If so, what should I do? 3. Also, his gutter is broken and the rain water runs down on his cinders and washes on my property. M. K.

1. Have you tried asking him to share the expense of a new survey with the understanding that you would both abide by the result?

2. If you are sure that the fence is on your side of the boundary you can notify him that if he does not move it you will tear it down, but it seems foolish to quarrel over a 3 inch strip.

3. While at common law interference with surface drainage was prohibited, our Supreme court has said: "Where a city has established an artificial grade and provided an artificial sewerage of which property owners can reasonably avail themselves, we should probably hold it their duty to do so." WRITTEN AGREEMENTS.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A girl bought a coat from a credit clothing company on the weekly instalment plan in November, 1931. After making a few payments she lapsed and the company garnisheed her wages. Another person and myself guaranteed payment of what I thought at the time were the back payments. The clothing company then waived its claim on her wages and she paid payments to that particular date. Now it seems she never made another payment, and, after all this time, the company is trying to force collection from me. 1. Can they do this over three years after the account has become delinquent? 2. What can I do to prevent this company from annoying my employer with telephone calls, etc.? H. R. B.

1. The Illinois limitation period on a written agreement is ten years. Your liability depends on the wording of the agreement.

2. It seems probable that your best course is to pay.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—The "Habermeister" is once more restored to German custom and tradition—thanks to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, to whom Habermeister Thomas Bacher of Mangfallgau in upper Bavaria expressed gratitude for the reëstablishment of these ancient rights at the peasants' congress in Goslar.

This is a form of "popular justice," dating back to the war of succession between Bavaria and Austria in the eighteenth century. The Berlin press describes it as "a kind of secret court dealing with those who transgress against their fatherland and the public morals." About the beginning of this century these "vigilance committees" were abolished.

The denouncing of offenders against Nazi regulations seems to be growing, judging from the number of prosecutions. It seems highly improbable that the news concerning offenses could have reached official ears in many cases except through private informers. Persons and firms are being publicly branded for hoarding. There are daily reports of "protective arrests."

Many shops have been closed for raising prices. Business managers—agricultural as well as industrial—are being declared incapable of holding their jobs by social courts of honor because they do not treat their employés according to Nazi wishes.

The winter relief fund still is described as a purely voluntary organization. But discreet pressure is exercised to insure that Hitler's command for greater contributions is carried out.

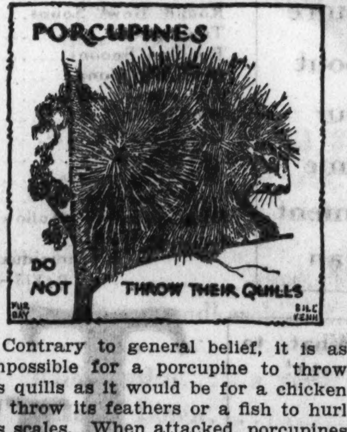
A Leipzig resident who contributed one pound of barley to the "pound collection" has been criticized in the newspapers and accused of hoarding goods, especially soap. A demonstration was staged in front of his house one night and illuminated signs bore inscriptions condemning him.

Dyed-in-the-wool Nazis recently found keen satisfaction in the exemplary punishment of Emil Koeppen, a Reichsbank director, who tried to evict an unemployed tenant for failing to pay $1.50 which he still owed on a month's rent. The Angriff branded him as an enemy of the people, publishing details of the hardships suffered by the tenant, his wife, and three children. The newspaper charged he sneered at social welfare workers who urged the banker to relent.

His address was published and a crowd demonstrated in front of his home until authorities arrested him "for his own safety." He still is in protective custody. Clubs and organizations dropped him from their membership rolls.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.



Contrary to general belief, it is as impossible for a porcupine to throw its quills as it would be for a chicken to throw its feathers or a fish to hurl its scales. When attacked, porcupines "bristle up," but never throw their quills. If the attacking animal should come in contact with the quills so that they stick into his hide, then they pull out of the porcupine and stay in the hide of the enemy, for they have sharp barbs on the end.

A CHANGE IN THE RELIEF ORGANIZATION.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—It is imperative that there should be immediate and radical changes in the Emergency Relief. The number of those receiving aid is rapidly increasing. In the meantime there is a growing dissatisfaction among those being aided. Thousands of families have accepted the relief as a regular way of living. They receive their supplies in the same spirit in which they once received their wages. They have no desire to change their manner of living. They believe that they are entitled to the support which they are receiving and there will be more than protests when adjustments are made.

The Emergency Relief plan has been fundamentally wrong. First the community should care for its own needy. They should exhaust their resources in their effort to do this. If the problem is too great for the community then the government, federal or state, could assist that community. This order has been reversed and the government provides abundantly, so that the community feels no responsibility to care for its own poor.

I wish to suggest that three well known, capable, and reputable citizens be chosen in each community to advise and direct the charity work of that community. These men would be chosen because of their knowledge of the community which they are to serve. They would receive no salary, but would give their time and ability to this work for their fellow men. Such men could be easily obtained. For Chicago there should be three men for each division of the city. They would determine the policy, make plans, and decide who should be employed. They would, no doubt, be familiar with many individual cases because they would be working in the place which they know best.

I have asked three men of fine character who live on the south side if they would serve on such a committee. They gladly consented. This could be more easily done in the small towns where people know each other more intimately. It would certainly reduce the expense and make the service more efficient.

What many of the recipients of relief need is kindly, timely advice. This could be given by their neighbors better than by any strangers. The way out of their difficulties could be best planned by the people who live near where they live. The present plans for emergency relief grow more difficult and dangerous. My plan would relieve this situation and introduce the neighborly spirit which would benefit both those who receive support and those who give it. A restless, rioting spirit can be allayed by neighborhood meetings conducted by the neighbors themselves. Thousands of these great hearted, sympathetic men could be enlisted to help their fellow men and the relief problem, now so serious, would be solved. JOHNSTON MYERS.

RUSSIAN TACTICS.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—In Russia they shoot down people who betray their country. What a slaughter we would have in our country if America would start house cleaning on the Reds that are doing their best to overthrow our government. MRS. ROBERT ROBERTSON.

UNCLE SAM, MONEY CHANGER.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—So that benevolent offspring of the administration, the HOLC, is about to crack down on the poor home owners! That cracking down will come, says Head Man Fahey, only in cases of "willful evasion"!

How very shocking is this news to the unfortunate widow or old man who, if forced to foreclose only a short year ago, was scornfully pointed out by the altruistic administration as a "money changer" and a worshiper at the "temple of greed."

It appears now that the holier-than-thou administration was not contemptuous of the method of collection, but only of the fact that the money was owing to individual citizens instead of the government.

Answer: When he is a benevolent child of the administration. THE MAN IN THE STREET.

UNCLE SAM, TASKMASTER.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—If the NRA officials are really in earnest about improving working conditions they should look into some of the federal government's departments and do some cleaning up there. Take for instance the new HOLC office in the Civic Opera building, where they are working some departments twelve, fourteen, and more hours per day. Thanksgiving day they worked the men all day. Saturdays and Sundays the same. There is no time off for overtime and no overtime money paid, not even supper money. Then, too, there is no reason for the office to open at 8 a. m., because 8:30 or 9 a. m. is plenty of time.

I suppose a lot of dim-wits will come back and tell me I should be thankful my dad has a job. I am terribly pleased he is employed, but what profiteth any of us if we never get a chance to see him, and the darn job is slowly but surely pulling him down. L. M.

DOES ANY ONE KNOW?

Chicago, Dec. 6.—What has become of that motion picture record of the Fair which I saw in the General Motors building one day? I was sure that this picture would be shown in theaters, and I have written to several of my out of town friends about it. I do not recall the name of the picture, and the Fair people do not know anything about it. The General Motors people remember having such a feature, but do not know the producer or where it will be shown. It impressed me very much because I actually saw more of the Fair in this picture than I did in the dozen or more times I went there. I can imagine the great enjoyment millions would get from these pictures who could not actually go to the Fair. J. RYAN MCBRIDE.

HE'S GETTING IT, TOO.

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 4.—Apropos your editorial on Mr. Farley's managerial ability, why did you not mention that his business was operated by a 50 per cent increase in his sales price, that he is operating a monopoly, and that when the government was compelling other businesses to increase wages he was lowering them.

He needs deflation. R. L. GRANTZ.

As If by Magic Field's Toy Window Fascinates Passers-by

Like the spell which the Fairy Godmother cast over Cinderella, the animated show, toy feature in Field's State Street and Washington window which tells this favorite story, enthralls both young and old who see it. "Ooooooo, Mother . . . just once more, just once more," bright-eyed children unanimously shout. But Mothers show no more signs of moving on than do their enthusiastic children. There's so much to see. The show itself, with the moving curtain, animated figures and many scenes . . . Cinderella receiving the prize slipper, the Godmother, the pumpkin and three mice, the coach and handsome steeds, the fine prince, the envious sisters, the grand ball! And besides these thrilling scenes, the window is full of wonderful kinds of toys and fun!

Keeping Up Appearances Means a Merry Christmas

It's not the easiest thing in the world to keep brand new looking during the mad, merry days of Christmas shopping. But now that we're actually into Holiday parties and dinners, it's a subject not to be considered lightly. That ephemeral thing called style is as much a matter of general grooming as of particular costumes. You can look surprisingly fresh through busy days after a visit to the Lanchere Beauty Salon, Fifth Floor. . . . Thanks to expert operators.

A Festive Moving Picture from Field's Electric Stairways

The ever-changing scenes from our moving stairways are as good as a show. What's more, they're stairways with ideas. Last week a nice lady, with a blank Christmas list and a worried look, stepped on from the first floor. By the time (and a short time, too) she'd reached the ninth, she stepped off with her list complete and a smile that was a little smug. Now she spends her time riding up and down just for the fun of getting a bird's-eye view of our busy panorama.

If you need inspiration on what to give your best friend or severest critic, come on down and take a ride . . . and a view of grandest and freshest assortment of gift ideas. If you don't need inspiration, there's still the thrill of satisfaction from the floor just passed, and of anticipation for the floor to come.

FROST DRIVES MERCURY DOWN FOR FLORIDANS

Orlando Has 'Cold Wave' of 47 Degrees.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Orlando, Fla., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—A frost fell early this morning in this land of palms, citrus orchards, and blooming flowers. It was part of a cold wave that swept across the section this week-end, following a light drizzle.

At midnight the official temperature here was 47 degrees and unofficial readings shortly before dawn were several degrees lower. By contrast the mercury last Wednesday ranged from a high of 81 to a low of 71 degrees. This afternoon a bright sun is helping to realize the forecast for slowly rising temperatures for today and tomorrow.

Floridans Suffer in "Cold."

Unaccustomed and unprepared for protection against the weather, the natives suffer from these Florida cold waves about as much as do Chicagoans in zero spells. They huddle about small gas heaters little bigger than a cooking flame. Some don't own overcoats. Two top coats were stolen last night from the Flamingo, a local drinking, dancing, and gambling spot.

Early arrivals in this year's blooming winter resort travel also complained of the weather. Up north they had seen advertisments picturing bathing beauties lounging in the shade of palm trees. Fur coats were more appropriate than bathing suits this morning.

Early Tourist Arrival.

THE TRIBUNE roadster is among these early tourist arrivals. It arrived here last night from St. Augustine. The route led through Daytona Beach, famous for its tide-washed, sand speedway. Sir Malcolm Campbell is scheduled to arrive there next month with his Bluebird V. to attempt to break his record of 272.108 miles per hour, established there on Washington's 1933 birthday anniversary. His runs will be made between Feb. 12 and 25.

The race track is a broad, flat beach of wave packed sand for two or three hours before and after low tide. Behind this beach, miles long, is the town of 17,000 population. R. S. Dymond, secretary of the chamber of commerce, said that hotel registrations and winter apartment rentals are from 20 to 30 per cent heavier than at this time a year ago. These indications of a big winter tourist season are reported from all parts of the state.

Drouth Hits Citrus Crop.

The roadster was turned inland from Daytona, passing through miles of semi-tropical jungle, heavy growths of palms, vines and live oaks draped with Spanish moss. South from Deland, where Virginia Van Wie, woman's national champion, learned her golf, the highway proceeded through miles of citrus orchards before reaching Orlando.

The citrus crop has suffered from the drouth, which has not been relieved and the cold snap was a threat, although the experts do not expect any serious frost damage. This may affect prices in buying fruits for the holiday punch. A grower is quoted in the local paper as saying that half the grapefruit will be lost unless there is a rain soon.

Orlando is a city of 43,000 summer population in an area that entertains about 30,000 northerners at its resorts during the winter. Homes, with palms and blooming poinsettias and bougainvilla, are spread along winding pavements through rows of giant live oaks. Within the corporate limits are shores of thirty small lakes fed by springs. THE TRIBUNE roadster is heading for Palm Beach from here.

N. Y. MERCURY SLUMPS TO 11, SEASON'S LOW

New York, Dec. 9.—[Special.]—The cold wave that rolled down from Canada last Friday continued today through its third successive day. Stretched along the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Southern Florida, it was accompanied, off the coast, by gales and mountainous seas.

New York's minimum, 11 above zero at 3 a. m., was the lowest here this season. One man was frozen to death, and two others were taken to a hospital, suffering from exposure.

Sub-zero temperatures were reported at many coastal ports north of Boston. In Boston itself, the temperature reached a minimum of 3 above zero.

News of The Tribune Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

A New Sirup Feeder.

December 9, 1934.

NORTHERN Illinois farmers for miles around have been coming to THE TRIBUNE Experimental farm near Yorkville to see the improvised self-feeder being used in feeding corn sirup to steers. Faced with a shortage of grain, Clarence Thurow, manager of the farm, bought 15 tons of corn sirup and suddenly found himself in need of a convenient method of feeding this appetizer in large quantities daily.

"Well," said Clarence to his coworkers at the farm, "since we are in the business of conducting practical experiments, I think we will just figure out some scheme of feeding this sirup to avoid a lot of extra work. We have worked out a plan that works like a charm. Farmers who have seen this self-feeder for cattle are convinced that it is a success."

The corn sirup is brought to the farm in metal drums, each containing 650 pounds of the sweet material. The self-feeder is made by turning the drums up side down in metal pans or vats 24 by 30 inches and four inches high set in the feed bunks. It works on the principle of a water fountain commonly used in poultry yards. The drums rest on two strips of wood 1 inch thick and three inches wide. The metal plug in the end of the barrel is removed and the sirup runs out of the drums as rapidly as it is consumed by the steers. The steers are allowed to eat all they wish.

Since the steers were started on sirup on Nov. 17, they have eaten an average of 5½ pounds daily. Experience of other feeders indicates that a pound of sirup, selling at the rate of $36 a ton, is worth 2½ pounds of corn selling at the rate of 80 cents a bushel.

Mr. Thurow has found that the sirup is not only valuable as a feed but increases the appetites of the steers and increases their thirst. He finds that the 117 two year old steers drink about twice as much water now as they did before they were fed the corn sirup.

Wooden trays may be used instead of the metal containers in feeding the sirup. Smaller trays, 2 feet square, are best where the self-feeder is used in feeding sirup to hogs. In this case the trays are set on one inch platforms that rest directly on the ground.

Mr. Thurow advises having the feed bunks water tight where the self-feeder is used in feeding the sirup to cattle. This precaution will prevent the loss of sirup where an excessive amount runs out of the drum, as may happen if the drum has a small air hole in the bottom.

FREAK OCEAN WAVES SMASH BEACH HOME NEAR LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Heavy ground swells pounded today along the coast near Los Angeles, centering at Newport Beach and wrecking a home in that seashore colony.

The mysterious swells, in addition to high tides, appeared to be a repetition of last summer's ocean disturbances which caused considerable damage to homes close to the beach.

Buenos Aires Hit by Heat Wave; Many Prostrated

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 9.—Wintry spring weather changed overnight to blazing summer here today with the thermometer reaching 93.5 degrees. The sudden change from yesterday's conditions, when light overcoats were generally worn, resulted in the prostration of a large number of persons.

MARTIAL LAW IS THREATENED IN HARLAN ROW

Must Maintain Order, Guard Chief Warns.

Harlan, Ky., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A warning that military rule will be established in this southeastern Kentucky coal center unless local authorities maintain law and order was sounded today by Adjt. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt, head of the Kentucky National guard, at a conference of city and county officials and coal operators here.

The conference was held after a group of labor leaders, reported to have been "hemmed in" by an opposing group at a hotel last night, was escorted from Harlan to the county line by National guardsmen.

Tells Sherif to "Clean Up."

Gen. Denhardt, who with Brig. Gen. Ellerbe W. Carter of the National Guard came to Harlan this afternoon to investigate reports of strife between labor and mine operators, also served notice on Sherif T. R. Middleton "to clean up" his staf, saying he was informed there were "too many killers" on it. Middleton, however, defended his deputy sherifs, describing them as "high class men."

It was brought out at the conference that the county has more than 100 deputy sherifs, including a number in the employ of coal operators.

The conference, called to secure peace in the Harlan coal field, appeared to end in a deadlock. Operators and some of the officials insisted the only way peace could be had was to keep out "outside organizers."

Situation Is Eased.

A tense situation prevailed last night when William Turnblazer, Jellico, Tenn., president of district 19, United Mine Workers of America; Thomas Jones and Dale Stapleton, Jellico, union representatives, and a group of sympathizers reported they were "hemmed in" by armed men and that it would not be "healthy" for them to leave the place.

The situation eased today when National Guardsmen took command. No armed clashes were reported. It was reported the labor leaders, who announced they came here to investigate alleged violations of labor contracts, indicated they would return. Troops were dismissed on Gen. Denhardt's arrival.

WHAT MILK DOES FOR YOU, SIS?

● Lucky the child whose parents have made him understand why he should drink milk. All his life the "milk habit" will stand him in good stead.

Through adolescence, milk will help him grow . . . to build strong muscles, sound teeth and bones. It will give him energy for work and play. Later on in life he will depend on milk to help protect him from digestive and nervous troubles . . . to help him retain "the characteristics of youth." Pure, clean, rich milk will fortify him in many ways.

Bowman Milk is that kind of milk—pure and rich and clean. Many safeguards keep it so: constant inspection of dairy herds; the most error-proof methods of pasteurization known; the most careful sterilization of bottles and equipment; scientific laboratory tests.

And you can depend upon Bowman service. More than three generations of Chicago mothers have relied upon it for their families' most important food.

Potter Palmers Will Give Party for Two Debs

Girls and Their Beaux Face Hectic Christmastide.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NEW parties—different kinds of parties—more parties—invitations in every mail! Such is the life of the debutantes and their beaux these hectic days before Christmas. Interesting this morning is the news that Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer are giving a breakfast for Miss Ethel Johnston and Miss Caryl Ely on Dec. 29 at 12:30 o'clock in their Astor street apartment. This is the same day that Miss Johnston's brothers, Hulburd and Hugh McBirney Johnston, are giving a dance for her at the Blackstone.

The Palmer breakfast will be a most delightful party. Gordon Palmer will be at home from Harvard and, of course, many of his university friends will be present as well as the Palmers' subdebutante daughter, Pauline, and their son and daughter-in-law, the junior Potter Palmers, and several of their young married friends.

G. Corson Ellises. to Give Luncheon.

Another midday party for Miss Johnston is the Sunday luncheon that Mr. and Mrs. G. Corson Ellis will give next Sunday for her and Miss Ursula Cull, the attractive English girl who is visiting Mrs. Ellis' sister, Miss Laura Thorne. Miss Thorne and Miss Cull have just returned from a visit in Arizona with another sister, Mrs. George Gillespie. Mrs. Ellis has invited some debutantes and post-debs and their beaux to her house in Lake Forest. The luncheon will be small.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey Jr. [Marjorie Goodman] are giving a dinner dance for Miss Johnston Saturday night at the Casino.

Miss Ethel Wacker and her parents, the Frederick G. Wackers, are at the Ambassador East for the rest of the season so Miss Wacker may be nearer the Christmas festivities.

Nancy Brown to Bring Guest for Christmas.

Because Smith college has extended its holiday vacation after New Year's and shortened it before Christmas, it will be Dec. 21 before Miss Nancy Brown, the debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Vail Lapham Brown, gets back to Winnetka. Miss Brown will arrive the 21st, just in time to change into an afternoon dress and get to the Arts club for the debutante luncheon Mrs. Ernst Freund is giving.

Coming with her is her Smith roommate, Miss Annette Philbrick of Hartford, Conn., who will enjoy the round of Christmas festivity. Miss Brown's parents are presenting their daughter to society Christmas afternoon at a reception at their Winnetka home. Among the other parties that will be given especially for her are a luncheon that Mrs. George E. Frazer of Winnetka is planning and a dinner at which Dr. and Mrs. Dallas B. Phemister will be the host and hostess.

Princeton Triangle Show Boxes Selling Rapidly.

Boxes are going rapidly for the Princeton Triangle show, "Stags at Bay," which will be produced the evening of Dec. 22 at the Auditorium theater. Mrs. Lester Armour has taken two for a small party she will give for her daughter, Betty, a student at Miss Walker's school, and the Junior Edward L. Ryersons have taken some for their young people, Nora and Edward III., who is a student at Hill. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Ross, whose son, Kennedy Paul Ross, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Cremin, whose son, William A. Cremin, are acting in the show, are others who have taken boxes and so have Mrs. William O. Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Phillips, and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick.

Robert MacPherson Wood, younger brother of Artie Wood, who was a great hit in last year's show, is playing the part of the leading lady in "Stags at Bay." He is a son of the R. Arthur Woods of Highland Park. John Peter Theurer, Mrs. Peter S. Theurer's son, also has a major singing part. He is also vice president of the club. H. T. Gilbert Jr. and

THE Dodd twins, Miss Lois and Miss Helen, are two of the pretty girls who will assist in the checkrooms and behind the bar at the "Show Boat party" the Kenwood Social Service club will give aboard the Dixiana next Friday night for the benefit of the Infant Welfare society. The performance, a thrilling melodrama, will start at 8:30 o'clock, but the bar, which will serve steaks as well as drinks, will be open at 5 that evening, and there will be as many persons dining there as can be accommodated. Mrs. Paul B. Schoff is chairman of the ticket committee and Mrs. Wilson Killough is chairman of special entertainment. Mrs. George B. Cross is president of the club. The Misses Dodd are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Dodd.

Versatility—
Saxophone—
Modern Child—
Scotsman—
Slip.

FURTHER proof of the versatility of Architect Edwin H. Clark, besides the fact that he has turned sculptor, came to light a few afternoons ago at the party he gave in his office to show his sculpture. While his guests were exclaiming over the beauty of his latest work—a figure of Mona Leslie, a dancer at A Century of Progress last summer—one of them recalled the example of his widely divergent talents. It seems that Mr. Clark, architect of the new zoo at Brookfield, was the first man in Chicago to play the saxophone.

* *

THAT was, surprisingly enough, in 1908. The first saxophone to make its appearance in Chicago arrived that year with an assortment of musical instruments sent to Charles S. Dewey from a musical supply house for the use of the University club members' orchestra. None of the men who were making up the orchestra knew how to play the queer, long, complicated looking pipe, but Mr. Clark took it home with him and sent for a book on "How to Play the Saxophone." Then, by dint of following instructions carefully, he learned. And played it in the University club members' orchestra.

* *

INQUIRING of Aaron Copland, the composer of the music for the ballet, "Hear Ye, Hear Ye," to be produced again at the opera next Friday evening, as to the history of the saxophone, he said that it had been invented by a man named Antoine Joseph Sax, known as Adolph Sax, in 1846. Previously he had invented the saxhorn and some cylindrical instruments called saxotrombas, but the saxophone was registered under that name in January, 1846. Debussy, he said, wrote a concerto for saxophone and orchestra about 1890, he thought. Thus it was sixty-two years after its invention that the saxophone was first heard in Chicago. . . . And if I'm wrong I'll probably hear plenty about it in the next mail!

* *

JOHNNIE, who is 10, was working at his lessons, and looked up to inquire:

"What was De Soto's first name?"

* *

THEN there was the old Scotsman who was approached by a Salvation Army lassie with proffered tambourine.

"Will you give a quarter to the Lord?" she pleaded.

"Yes; but, as I expect to see him before you do, I'll give it to him myself," he retorted, keeping his hands in his pockets.

* *

THAT the Republicans haven't all been forgotten was indicated by an incident reported from the Empire room at the Palmer house the other evening. It seems that Mayor Kelly, accompanied by Mrs. Kelly, was sitting with State's Attorney Thomas F. Courtney and Mrs. Courtney at a ringside table, and that a party of six, all strangers to the mayor and his party, occupied the adjacent table. Apparently one of the men wanted to impress his companions, because as he came back from dancing he spoke to the mayor.

"Good evening, Mayor Kelly," he said, "may I introduce my wife?"

The mayor greeted him, and added:

"Have you met the state's attorney?"

The table crasher extended a cordial hand.

"Yes," he said, "Good evening, Mr. Swanson."

Jean Tennyson, Grace Moore Charm Hearers

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Two of the recent and lovely stars in the musical world, Jean Tennyson in opera and Grace Moore in concert, made their first Chicago appearances over the week-end. The third, Hope Hampton, is to make her local debut at the Civic Opera house tonight.

Miss Tennyson, presenting herself as Mimi in "La Boheme," justified herself both as singer and personality of the operatic stage. She has a voice with both beauty and quality in it, one that takes the high ranges of the score with complete ease and gives warmth and vitality to all its song considered as a dramatic medium. She was a tremendous success with the patrons, and this department casts its vote willingly alongside of an overwhelming majority.

The remainder of the cast was as before. Mario Chamlee would have been the Rodolfo, but he arrived in Chicago with a touch of laryngitis, so Giuseppe Bentonelli returned to the part, easily and eloquently. Margery Maxwell was once again the world's best Musetta, and there was much good singing by others.

Miss Moore, giving a recital at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, was likewise both new and charming. Clad in shimmering gold and green metal cloth, she looked like a blonde bronze statue, and her singing was nothing short of delightful. Her voice seems to have been given to her for the express purpose of putting extra radiance into French songs. She sings other songs also, and sings them well, but in modern French works she goes beyond being meritorious and becomes exquisite. She was greeted by the largest audience that has come to Orchestra hall this season. Once again seats on the stage were in demand, quite like the old times.

Before either Miss Tennyson or Miss Moore had stepped upon the stage, there was a performance of "Tannhaeuser" at the Civic Opera house that gave new reasons to approve of opera. Lotte Lehmann returned after too long an absence to sing Elisabeth, a dramatic figure as she entered the stage, a dramatic voice as she sang her greeting, a moving combination of good voice and good brain throughout the performance.

Coe Glade was the most striking and persuasive Venus this reporter bears in memory. Paul Althouse, of noble and brilliant tenor voice, did a vocally superb Tannhaeuser. Chase Baromeo, who ought to be greeted by all America as one of America's great artists, was at his finest and most commanding as the Landgrave. Fred Patton came in at short notice to sing Wolfram in place of Carl Schiffeler, who was ill, and did a good job in spite of having a cold. And Henry Weber, once again leaving his conductor's post at station W-G-N to return to former operatic associations, did as Gennaro Papi did with "La Boheme," enlivening and vitalizing the score, covering the points that seemed thin because of too few players, and giving pace, spirit, and pep to the whole performance.

Two orchestras assisted in yesterday's music. The Chicago Business Men's orchestra, the best amateur organization in memory, played a morning concert at the Goodman theater to the memory of its founder and first president, George Lytton. George Dasch conducted and Karleton Hackett spoke.

Late in the afternoon came the Woman's Symphony orchestra, the best, in fact the only fully organized orchestra that operates and plays without masculine aid. Ebba Sundstrom, the conductor, demonstrated that she has wrought well and intelligently in rehersals of Brahms' Third Symphony and other major works. Leola Turner, soprano, was the soloist, but unfortunately other musical events prevented hearing her.

The Chicago String quartet began a new series of chamber music concerts at the Chicago Woman's Club theater. These four men play well, and they take pains to pick out new and interesting music. A quartet in D minor by Gustave Samazeuilh and a movement from another by G. Karnovitch made good impressions, as did the better known work in A by Robert Schumann.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The crack performances of May Robson and Walter Connolly in the first scenes of "Lady by Choice" are that picture's best selling point. Not that it hasn't others. It has.

Let me say that I have never seen Carole Lombard give a more sincere characterization nor look one-half so beautiful as she does this trip. There are times when her rôle isn't convincing, but her reading of the lines always is. There's a new vitality about her work.

The story's interesting. Has elements of originality. F'rinstance—when a mamma adopts a baby, why that's nothing out of the ordinary. But when a baby takes a mother to rear—why THAT'S news.

Now the bebby in this case is a fan-dancer. [Yes, Sally Rand, we bet you gave 'em the idea.] The mamma? My dears! A gin sodden harridan named Patsy! Patsy—terror of the booze joints and despair of Judge Daly of the night court, whom she regards as a friend and who takes a deep and despairing interest in the frantic, reprehensibile, appealing, cunning old character.

"I just don't know what to do about you, Patsy!" sighs His Honor. "But do something I must! You have apparently been laid on my doorstep. I seem to have inherited you. . . ."

◆

There comes a day when Patsy finds herself in an old ladies' home. . . . Thither—for publicity purposes—comes Fan Dancer "Alabam'," who, once upon a time had been haled into Judge Daly's court at the same time as had Patsy. . . .

How the two come together and the influence each has on the other's life is screened in quite entertaining fashion—though there are stretches when everything is just too—too—— and I know you know what I mean.

In spite of occasionally hampering lines and scenes, Miss Robson and Mr. Connolly are sheer joy throughout the production. Roger Pryor is nice as the wealthy young counselor, who, like Judge Daly, takes a peculiar interest in the affairs of Patsy. His reasons for wanting her to be a nice old lady are revealed to you in due course of time. . . .

Minor rôles are handled aptly and direction is as good as the scenario deserved, which means dandy at the start and fair from then on.

[I sure would hate to have you miss those first scenes of "Lady by Choice!"]

La Argentina Enraptures Full Theater with Dancing

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

An arresting event of the week-end entertainment schedule was La Argentina's dance recital in the Auditorium theater last Saturday night—a program sponsored by the society of professional musicians called the Bohemians for the benefit of their relief fund. It illustrated the fact that high art dancing has earned the ranking of a major sport in Chicago. This was a one woman plus pianist affair, with a dozen changes of costume to garnish the austere scene; but it filled the Auditorium to its ceiling with a rapturous audience.

Argentina appears to be the present world's champion in Spanish dancing, which, when you consider it closely, is a somewhat limited field, consisting largely of castanet clicking, heel tapping, and hip swinging. It is, however, a decidedly popular form of the dance among American spectators, deeply bitten with the Carmen complex.

This wiry danseuse has an eager smile, a gift for suggesting peasant and bourgeois character which seems subtle, although its method is fairly obvious, and a brilliant sense of physical rhythm. She is, moreover, a past mistress in the manipulation of the castanets. Her costumes are a show in themselves, and she must be congratulated on her flair for color and design in fabrics.

The program of twelve dances included three new numbers—"Madrid in 1900," to music of Granados; "Alegrias-Colera," to music by Ballesteros-Romero; and "Zapateado," to music by Granados. Her "Jota" in Aragon style, to a gay number by De Falla, was my favorite item.

Argentina's accompanist, Luis Galve, had the platform to himself for four numbers, while the señora was selecting new raiment, and gave an excellent account of himself as a pianist. This recital was Argentina's only Chicago appearance of the year.

Velvet Beauties Set Styles in Evening Coats

Jewel Colors Perfect Foils for Pastel Gowns.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

After dark coats and wraps are long, dramatic, picturesque affairs of velvet, of gleaming metallics, of stiff silks, and of furs. Most of them are long, completely enveloping the lucky owner. Most of them have high, flattering collarlines to snuggle comfortably in on the coldest nights.

A lot of them have the wide puffed sleeves that always end tightly at the wrist. A few have petal collars. All of them are unbelievably warm with interlinings of lamb's wool.

So far the velvet beauties are the most successful. Stunning jewel colors—ruby, sapphire, emerald, and garnet—with and without fur accents, are perfect foils for pastel shaded dance dresses and evening gowns.

You get the most out of your night life if you wear long velvet coats! The last boxes to be unpacked held the new ivory white coats, breathlessly beautiful creations, simple of silhouette, very picturesque and flattering, with long sleeves and with the flaring stiffened stitched collar. They are the most gorgeous coats in town and what a good clothes hound can do with these snow white beauties as a contrast for the fashionable dark toned evening gowns will probably make fashion history. These lovely coats are usually furless, but your pet silver foxskin cape or one of mink will transform them for the most gala occasion.

If long evening coats do not win your fancy, there are some three-quarter lengths in velvets made with big puffed, rolled, and shirred collars, long sleeves rather full, and a goodish flare to the backline.

These are effective with velvet and velveteen evening gowns in matching or contrasting shades. All of these evening wraps are surprisingly low in price, especially the furless models, and they make grand Christmas gifts for the gay younger set with all the holiday parties looming over the vacation horizon.

The fashion photograph today shows the loveliest of evening wraps, a loose, wide sleeved three-quarter length coat of the most flattering of fur, chinchilla. The great beauty of the fur is unaccented, and the simple silhouette is completed with the notched lapels and narrow standup collar. It is available in a Chicago shop.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

The Forgotten Honeymoon

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Maj. Ralph Stornack is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Brierley, who is serving sentence unjustly for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Chief witness against Colin was Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. Caermaen takes Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. After a brief honeymoon Colin returns to prison. Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. To admit her marriage would be fatal for Caermaen. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited the fortune of a Canadian relative. The solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. Caermaen has his solicitor, Jarroman, investigate Stornack. Rhoda is placed under her mother's charge by court order. Mrs. Cornboise takes Rhoda to France, where the son of Rhoda and Colin is born. The baby is left there when they return to London. Caermaen arranges to get Colin out of prison again for a few days. Rhoda flies with Colin to see their son. Mrs. Cornboise sees Colin and penetrates the mystery of his excursion from jail. She threatens to expose Caermaen if Rhoda doesn't marry Stornack. Colin again changes places with Caermaen and arrives in time to rescue Rhoda after she has married Stornack. Colin forces Stornack to make a written confession that he killed the solicitor, and obtains the papers from him which Rhoda had signed, transferring her fortune to him. Stornack admits the marriage was a fake. Colin allows him twelve hours to get away. Then he and Rhoda go after Stornack's confederates, Leningway and Galston.

INSTALMENT XLIII.

A COLLECTION OF CONFESSIONS.

Colin turned to Leningway. "I should explain, Mr. Leningway, that I was convicted of the murder of Simpson—instead of Stornack, you understand. That little trick of jumping over the table threw dust in the eyes of the jury. And I've broken prison. Er—before I go any further, would you like to call the police and give me in charge? They'll take me at once, you know. I'm indisputably an escaped convict. I think I ought to apologize for being here—I've no earthly right to come into your room like this."

Leningway moved toward the bell, then checked himself.

"Ah! That's the question, isn't it?" chuckled Colin. "Until you know what my stunt is you don't think it would be quite safe to ring that bell and call the police—or even to ask the reverend gentleman here to go and call them for you."

Galston was sidling toward the door. He made a dash for it but he was not quite quick enough. Colin caught him with a left full in the face and he fell back onto the bed.

"Here, stop that! Why have you come here?" demanded Leningway.

"Why have I come here!" echoed Colin. "O, chiefly to save my lawyer's expenses. You see, Stornack married my wife—the lady you know as Miss Cornboise. So I broke prison in order to kill him. Actually we came to terms. He signed a circumstantial confession implicating you two."

"Bluff!" cried Leningway.

"Bluff!" echoed Colin with sudden ferocity. "If it's bluff, you knock-kneed crook, ring the bell and send for the police!"

"Go on, Mr. Crook-lawyer, Leningway, ring that bell!"

"Aw! Steady on! How do I know that Stornack signed a confession?"

"Right!" snapped Colin. "It's not good enough for you. Well, I don't mind going back to jug while they're getting the pardon ready." As he spoke, he slipped to the door, turned the key and put it in his pocket. Then, before Leningway could stop him Colin pressed the bell push.

"I was going to give you two crooks a chance to get away, the same as I gave to Stornack. But you think I'm bluffing—and you're throwing your chance away. You'll find you're in on the murder as accessories."

"I wasn't accessory to the murder," cried Leningway.

"You made that power of attorney over the property to Stornack. That, I believe, is technically forgery. Perhaps you'll get off with five or six years."

"What d'you mean 'a chance'?" gasped Galston.

There came a knock on the door.

"The same chance as I gave Stornack. Sign a confession and take twelve hours to get clear—if you can."

Colin took the key from his pocket, went to the door and began to unlock it.

"It's a deal," said Leningway. And as Colin threw open the door: "Three whiskies and soda," he ordered.

Colin remained standing by the door.

"While we are waiting for the whiskies, Leningway, you can help Galston write his confession. Then start on your own."

"If you've got Stornack's confession, what the hell do you want ours for? You're safe without ours."

"Because, you tuppeny ha'penny lawyer, they'll probably keep me in the jug until they've tried and convicted you two. Whereas, if you sign a confession and bolt it'll suit me. I shall get my pardon tomorrow. I don't like either of you, but it'll suit me better if you both get clear."

Twenty minutes later Colin was leaving the hotel with two confessions to add to his "collection." Hard on his heels followed Galston and Leningway. They went separate ways, only to meet together on the night boat to Paris.

"That's fixed it!" he exclaimed.

"It's like a dream!" said Rhoda. She hugged the wallet to her as if it were the most precious possession in the world, as indeed it was. "Take me somewhere, Colin."

"No, dear. Sorry, but there's a lot to be done yet! You take everything to Jarroman directly he gets to his office tomorrow. I've got to get back."

"O!" For the moment she was crestfallen. "When we were driving away from the cottage I thought you said Jack had arranged it for three days."

"Yes. But within an hour of your handing those things to Jarroman there'll be a hullabaloo. I've got to get back before six—and change over again. And I don't mind telling you it'll take a bit of doing."

"How selfish of me not to think of Jack! He is still in danger."

"The thing is, where are you going to spend the night? What about putting up at this hotel?"

"No," said Rhoda firmly. "I'm going to the Dangerfield hotel. I want to see my father and tell him you and I are married."

"But then—won't your mother——?"

"No. I think I can manage my mother now, Colin," she said with quiet conviction. "Can you get back to Mardlehurst before six?"

"Not by train—I've missed the last one. But I can do it in this thing. I'll have to tell the garage. Dearest, you'll have to take a taxi to Kensington. In fact, I'm kicking you out."

He laughed joyfully and she echoed his laugh as she switched off the dome light and clung to him.

"It's almost fun saying good-by—now," she whispered.

She got out of the car and Colin immediately started. Almost he had put his own affairs out of his mind—only an inward glowing happiness kept him conscious of the great change in his life. His active thoughts now were for Jack Caermaen. Some little thing—say, a couple of punctures—might yet prove disastrous for his friend.

The night was still young—it was only a little after 10 o'clock—when Rhoda arrived at the Dangerfield hotel. She rebooked her room, then went upstairs and knocked on the door of her parents' sitting room.

"Come in!" said her mother's voice.

Mrs. Cornboise stared at her daughter. She put one hand on the mantelpiece to steady herself. The next moment she was firm.

"You have run away from your husband!" she gasped. "You need not try to explain. You have broken the spirit of our agreement. You will go back at once—or I shall send a telegram to the home office."

"A totally illegal form of coercion!" exclaimed Mr. Cornboise. He got out of his chair and for the first time in his life turned upon his wife. "I will not have the child bullied, Marion. I told her she was at liberty to come back to us if she wished, and she has come. As to her husband——"

"Thanks, Daddy darling!" said Rhoda. "But Maj. Stornack is not my husband."

Sharp Letters May Indicate Unkindly Wit

BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

[Copyright, 1934, by Muriel Stafford.]

The handwriting showed a friendly, interesting personality, a keen mind and much generosity, yet she wrote: "Why am I not more popular? People seem almost to avoid me! My friends often have parties and never invite me, though I'm sure I give plenty of parties for them! I am attractive enough, honestly. Please tell me what my trouble is?"

Supersensitiveness and imagination might cause the writer to be self-conscious and exaggerate her lack of popularity, but closer study reveals that it may be more than imagination.

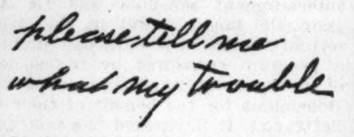
The writing, as you can see, is sharp, rigid with spear shaped t's. This lady has a keen wit that probably leads her into sarcasm! She talks frankly as you can see from her a's and o's which are open at the top.

There are many types of humor, but sarcasm is not likely to make any one popular. Therefore, I should advise you to look over your writing for signs that may indicate such a tendency and curb it if necessary.

It is well to examine your t bars first. If they start heavy and taper to a fine point in the shape of a spear, your sarcasm is the type that is aroused to ruthless extremes by temper. If the t bar is curved or wavy you have a more truly humorous satire. Then you are able to be sarcastic without being too unkind.

The more sharply the points of the letters stick up in the air the sharper the satire if this trait is shown in other ways. One graphologist says that sarcastic people have letters that stick up with points like tacks. I think this description is very appropriate.

You will usually find the writing undersized, direct and clear-cut, for true sarcasm takes a quick wit and much critical ability. There are no flourishes or bows to be noticed. Imagination is usually evident, too. That is almost always found in any tendency requiring quick thought.



please tell me what my trouble

Notice the slant of the writing, especially. If it is vertical as it very often is in this type of handwriting, the writer doesn't care in the slightest how much her wit may offend or hurt others. She is likely to say unforgivable things because she can't resist the temptation to make a witty remark. Handwriting that shows signs of humor and sarcasm combined with a forward leaning slant to the letters, may be provoked by emotion more easily and yet it is otherwise more inclined to be sympathetic.

"Parties for Growing-Ups," a booklet of children's parties with menus, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

With rabbits flirting their cotton tails in every thicket and backwoods lot and hunters storming out to pot a larderful before dinner, there turns up again the one serious phase of rabbit shooting and preparation—tularemia. This disease, which attacks rabbits and to some extent muskrats, woodchucks, quail, and certain other species of game, can be and frequently has been contracted by humans. In about 4 per cent of the cases it has proved fatal.

This may sound like spoil-sport talk. Don't take it that way, but rather as a warning tip given in order that this season's game hunting may be unalloyed fun for both hunters and diners, with no sorrows to darken the picture.

Medical statistics show that of the cases of human tularemia reported each season the great majority is contracted by women. This is due to the fact that the man brings home the bag and the woman dresses the game. If the rabbit does have tularemia and the cook is not protected by gloves, she stands the chance of being infected, for the organisms can penetrate even intact skin.

There are two all-important warnings, therefore, to the individual who prepares game susceptible to this disease. First, always wear rubber gloves when dressing the animal or bird. And secondly, carefully examine the liver before judging the game fit for food. If the game is diseased there will be whitish-yellow flecks on the liver. Bury such diseased carcasses at once. If no such spots are present the game is safe and edible. Tests have shown that thorough cooking destroys the organism. Incomplete cooking leaves it still dangerous.

And now a tip for the hunter. Rabbits with tularemia are sick rabbits. They are in most cases dopey; they will not run far when roused before stopping to rest. Shoot them, only to bury them at once. This rule will not hold in every case, but it will at least reduce the possibility of bringing home sick game from the hunt.

While on the subject of rabbits, what has been your experience in the matter of preparing your game for the pan or the roaster? Every year during the winter season we have the old problem coming up—to soak or not to soak. We do not soak rabbits primarily to reduce the gamey flavor, as some cooks suppose, but to remove the blood clots in the meat. This can be done, and clear, light meat result, with from 2 to 4 hours' soaking in slightly salted water after the rabbit has been dressed. Further soaking is unnecessary and will tend to leave the meat softened and to spoil the flavor. If you intend to hold the meat more than 24 hours after soaking it should be thoroughly frozen, either in the freezing unit of your refrigerator or in some other way.

Have you noticed the new TRIBUNE booklet, "Twenty Ways to Cook Game," just recently issued? The price is 3 cents by mail; 2 cents at Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and at the Tribune Tower.

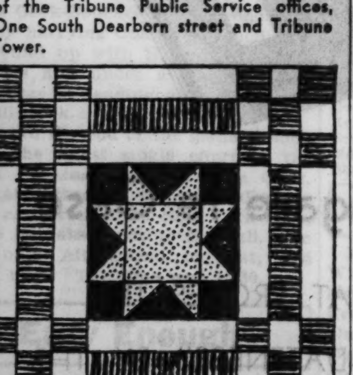
Fanciful Quilt Design Is Lovely in Clear Shades

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.



Mother's Fancy.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Mother's Fancy" is another of the many "fancies in the quilt world. When early quilters created original designs and were at a loss for a suitable name, the result usually was "somebody's fancy." This block was made in fresh, clear shades of rose, yellow, and white, consisting of squares, rectangles, and triangles. And a pretty one, it is, too.

Another edition is out—Nancy Cabot's second book of quilts is ready. It contains 96 more illustrations of favorite quilt patterns, together with one complete pattern, "The Rose Basket." Price, 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

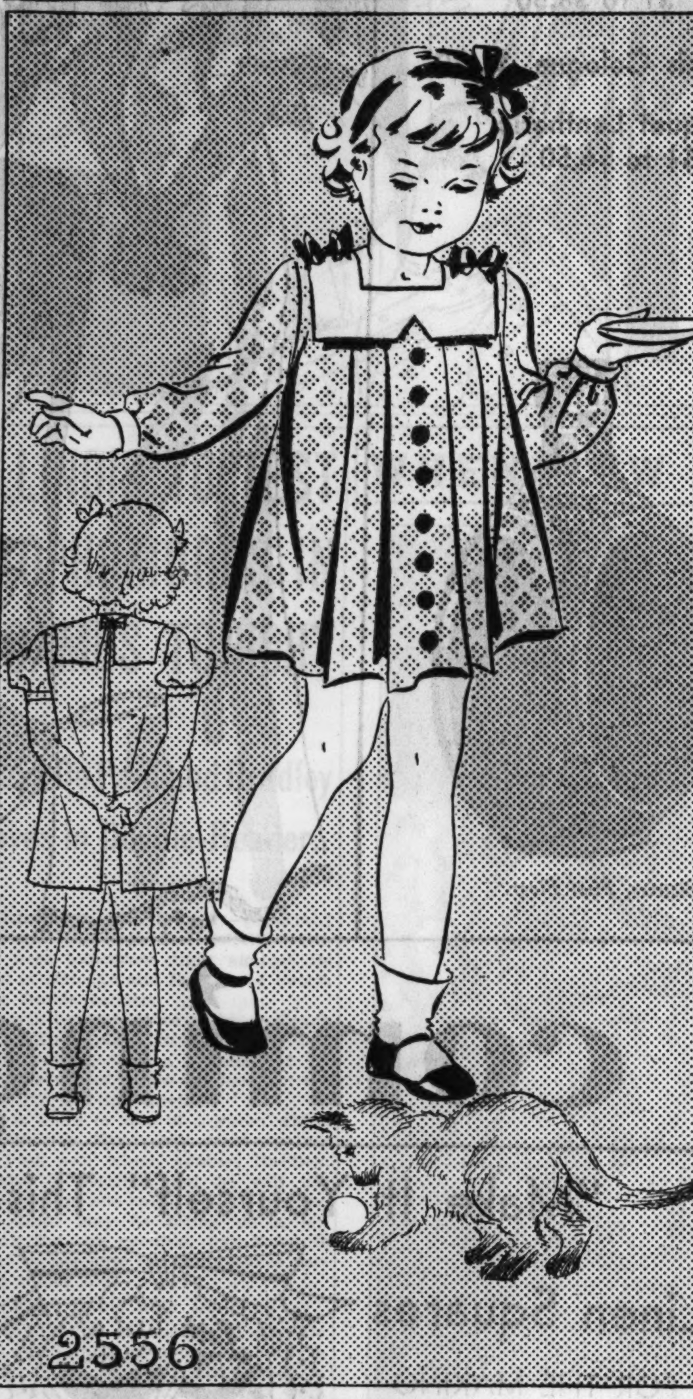
Smart Plaits for Juvenile



CHILD'S DRESS.

This pretty little dress has easy-to-handle skirt plaits, a collar with pert bows on the shoulders, and full length sleeves gathered at the wrists into narrow, fitted bands. The plaits are stitched down from the top, and this makes them fall easily into place when ironing is necessary. Collar and sleeve bands may be made of a contrasting color of material, but made of the dress material they will be pretty, particularly if the shoulder bows are added. French blue printed linen, with tiny grosgrain ribbon bows, made the original dress.

The pattern, No. 2556, comes in sizes 2, 4, and 6 years.

Divorce After Forty Doesn't Bring Romance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

We know a case in which the wife, a little over 40 years old, sees divorce as the beginning of a new dawn. Her husband doesn't want to be divorced and hasn't given any particular cause for it. Her argument is that she married too young to know what it was all about. And she would like to taste a bit of real life before it's too late.

As things stand now, she has a certain security in the paid-up home mortgage, the steady earnings of her man. She has rather good social position because of the man. He's decently generous to her. But, it's of love she feels she's been cheated, and that's what she is out to get. A great, romantic love that is!

The woman is only ordinarily attractive. She has no income of her own, and will have only what the poor devil of a husband has to scrape up for alimony, which won't be a great deal, if the divorce goes through. She has been married since she was 20 years old and has done nothing to fit her for any occupational rôle.

Now, the question is, what benefit will a woman like that draw from the so-called freedom she seeks? She doesn't hate the man, understand. She's just gone haywire on romanticism. Suppose she goes ahead and gets her divorce. Her income won't permit her to live as well as she is living now. Her chances of attracting another man, at her age and with nothing in particular to recommend her, aren't exceptionally good. She'll be an extra woman to the friends she knows. Her whole career will be to adjust herself to difficult situations. A little adjusting now would seem the wiser course.

Critic Assails Modern Show at Arts Club

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Arts club has opened two exhibitions which will continue through December. Both are modernist in character. The larger exhibit is of paintings owned by Leonide Massine, the smaller exhibit is of original drawings by Jean Cocteau.

The paintings are a graphic and detailed biography of modern art as developed by Picasso, Lhote, Survage, Carra, Braque, and Leger. It is the product of an unbalanced intelligence, which apparently was the universal possession of the creative artist of twenty years ago. The paintings are labored and their meaning obscure. Cubism is rampant.

Also obviously in force on the field is that factor in modernism which is too easily applauded as "amusing"—a trifling with and a belittling of composition, color, and sanity.

In fact, to be honest, the subject matter of practically every one of these paintings is swathed in mystery. One doubts if the artist himself, were he confronted with one of these compositions, would not be hard put to clear up the puzzle. He might easily be witty and exclaim with Robert Browning: "Once God and I knew what I intended, now only God knows." But in the case of these pictures it would not be God but his Satanic majesty who would be the more likely partner to the knowledge.

The drawings by Jean Cocteau are as easily deciphered as the scrawls of a twelve year old around the margins of his school books. They have the same pointed inanity, the same unskilled outline. Chiefly the drawings are caricatures and one thinks Cocteau possessed a monkeylike sense of humor. Massine is shown a trim manikin. Marie Laurencin is wantonly lampooned.

To be accurate, lampoon rather than caricature is the most fitting description of these drawings. A man named Auric is a persistent model, a pestilential obsession of Cocteau's pen that haunts every corner of the show. The "Andre Beucler" is sane. For the rest—tosh and again twaddle!

EXHIBITS AT INSTITUTE

Seven special exhibits of painting, drawing, photography, and textiles will be shown to the public Friday as the Art institute opens its galleries following their rearrangement after the close of World's Fair art exhibit.

Among the special showings will be an exhibit of the works of the late John Norton, Chicago artist; a salon of American humorists, a collection of political cartoons and caricatures, an exhibit of paintings sponsored by the College Art association, an International Salon of Photography, sponsored by the Chicago Camera club; a showing of the Hamilton Easter Field memorial collection of American painting, and a display of modern textiles from Germany and Austria.

The institute's winter season will be opened with a tea Friday afternoon. Representatives of the following organizations will pour: Antiquarian society, Chicago Woman's club, Fortnightly club, Municipal Art league, Chicago Woman's Aid society, Art Institute Alumni association, Archie club, Musicians' Club of Women, Association of Arts and Industries, Renaissance club, Chicago Drama league, Arts club, Contemporary club, and Friday club.

An exhibition of the works of four prominent American painters and etchers will open today in Mandel Brothers' department store, it was announced yesterday. The showing will include the works of Frances Foy, Gustaf Dalstrom, William Schwartz, and Todros Geller.

Miss Foy has contributed water colors and a number of etchings. Dalstrom, who was recently awarded a $500 prize by an etching society, will show six recent etchings, ten water colors, and an oil painting. Among the works of Schwartz will be a copy of "Self Portrait." Geller has contributed some Indian drawings made last summer in New Mexico.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

To our way of thinking any story about the fine Russian essence now in a Chicago shop should have a musical accompaniment—something utterly grand like "Pomp and Circumstance." In fact, you can consider it played on our typewriter keys.

It's a cross between a fresh eau de cologne and a luxurious oriental perfume; that is, it has all the "lift" of the distillation of delicate flowers plus the sway and depth of amber. The man who described it as a "symphony of perfumes from the gardens of the orient and the occident" is a golden tongued connoisseur.

Its practical uses are almost endless. Shake a few drops into the bath water and you're off on a vernal sea. Use it as a body lotion—and you love it for its refreshing virtues as well as for its scent. It takes to fur like a million dollars—and a gentle spray on the crowning glory after a shampoo does a lot for glamor.

For all its grandeur of fragrance it isn't overpowering in the least. It's as refreshing when the head pounds and life is just a bowl of lukewarm oatmeal as crisp smelling salts ever were.

Ritzy women on your Christmas list will love it. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Shoes Must Be Appropriate to Dress and Hour

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Just a word about suitability as it applies to certain items of smartness of appearance.

About shoes; first, because shoes are so vitally important a feature of a chic ensemble, and, secondly, because women frequently go a bit gaga on this shoe question. What brought up this topic was seeing a young woman in a smartly tailored black street ensemble, wearing satin slippers with high spiked heels when a pair of good looking street shoes would have been the fitting complement. Again there was seen a woman with dressy, cut-out patents, also spike heeled, which she wore with a street costume. Those shoes would have been all right at an afternoon tea or cocktail party, but they were not quite noonday Hoyle.

In fact, that extremely high heeled shoe for street wear begins to look passé, since smart women have taken to the low, sensible-heeled ones. I don't mean the flat heeled brogue, but a shoe with a heel not more than two inches high and constructed for easy walking, shopping, and general daytime wear.

It is no longer chic to go hobbling along in shoes that topple one's weight, cramp the toes, cramp one's easy walking style. Besides this type of shoe is not appropriate for day wear. One can get such grand looking shoes nowadays that are just right for the daytime costume.

Stockings, too, have an "appropriate" angle. The delicate, flesh shades that looked fine with summer things look most inappropriate with the heavy fall materials. The evening, sheer weight is not, strictly speaking, for wear with street shoes.

The show has some grand music in it, according to the Chicago committee, which is headed by Cyrus Hall Adams III. and Edwin M. Ashcraft III., including one sure-fire hit, "East of the Sun." The Trianglers are coming here from Baltimore, where they play the 21st and will be in town for four days, leaving Christmas night for Kansas City. The committee has informed the club, unofficially, however, that it will not be responsible for the welfare and comfort of the actors after 5 a. m. Dec. 23, the approximate time for "Home, Sweet Home" or "Good Night, Ladies" at the Barbara Fortune-Betty Babson-Mary Harrington ball at the Blackstone, which will follow the show and to which the Trianglers have been invited.

Mrs. Harry L. Street, who is giving a tea for her debutante daughter, Harriett, on Monday, Dec. 24, has invited the Trianglers, and some of the members will be included in one or two other parties.

Mrs. Albert F. Madlener, Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp, Mrs. Otto Stoll, Mrs. John Jennings, Mrs. Frederick L. McNally, Mrs. Robert W. Hyman, Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, and Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne are a few of those who will play bridge in the nurses' home of Grant hospital this afternoon for the benefit of the hospital.

The hospital auxiliary, which has Mrs. Bartholomay as its president, is having the card party this year instead of its usual bazaar, but there will be a suggestion of the selling of other years in the booth where Christmas cakes and cookies will be spread out in tempting array. At the tea hour coffee and delectable German coffee cakes are to be served. Mrs. Frank S. Porter is the able chairman of the party.

Mrs. Jeffries, Daughter Give Luncheon Today.

There is to be a nice mother and daughter luncheon this noon at the Arts club with Mrs. Robert M. Jeffries and her daughter, Virginia, as the hostesses. The party was originally planned for the new Mrs. John T. Beatty and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Ross J. Beatty, but there are now to be two more special guests, for Mrs. Jeffries' good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Dennis of London, are in town and she has invited them. Mrs. Dennis is perhaps better known by her pen name, Phyllis Bottome.

The Jeffrieses' second daughter, Helen, is in London studying at the Royal academy. She will not be home for the holidays, since she has just received the "double removal" which is a scholarship that advances her two quarters in her work. She has also been recognized by the British broadcasting system and is soon to do some special work over the air.

The Salon Français of the Chicago Woman's club is to hear Mme. John Storrs at 11 o'clock this morning in a lecture at the club. After Mme. Storrs' talk there will be a luncheon at which Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer, Signora Ester Perez de King, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. Westover Channon, and Miss Olga Valentine will be other special guests.

Adults Should Direct Child's Gift Making

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Do your children want to make the presents they are going to give this Christmas? If they do, you naturally will help them to plan, and, if they are young, advise on the making.

The important thing for you to keep in mind then is, as we have said before, that the making of the gift shall not require more manual skill than the little child has—nor take longer than his endurance will permit. Otherwise you will have a discouraged, weary child who loses his or her zest for the task in hand.

Remember, too, that the result will not be a grownup's perfectly finished product—but a child's whole hearted attempt at doing something "all by himself" for some one he loves.

First on our list are:

Gifts made from paper. These include fancy blotters, scrap books, portfolios, and kitchen memo pads.

Second are oilcloth gifts. These include place doilies, bridge table covers, traveling and toilet kits.

The third set of gifts are to be made from cloth. This covers such things as bean bags, bags for various uses [for sewing materials, for buttons, for clothespins, and so forth], envelope folders [for gloves, handkerchief, or underwear], and book covers. Lether bags are intriguing and simple to make.

Gifts of wood made by the young carpenter—boy or girl—may include a bird house or a feeding station, a waste paper basket, a kitchen "step," or large and small boxes for various uses.

Other gifts are goodies that children, even young ones, enjoy making, Christmas tree ornaments, and Christmas cards.

We have not attempted to do more here than give the list. If parents or children of any age would like directions for making these gifts, "double postage" and a self-addressed envelope will be required. Ask for the Enlarged Gift leaflet. If you want only directions for making Christmas cards, one stamped, self-addressed envelope will be enough. Be sure to state which you want.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

A TWO BID SITUATION WHICH REQUIRES PLENTY OF THOUGHT.

The relative rank of your suits is a factor of vital importance in your rebid procedure when you have made a two bid and your partner bids either two no trumps or three in a suit, which is useless to you. For instance, you rightly bid two spades on and the response is either two no trumps or three clubs. Now you gayly bid three hearts, hoping to hear your partner bid four hearts if he has four cards in that suit, or three spades if he has not less than three spades for you and not more than three hearts. However, your wish is not granted—he bids three no trumps, which tells you nothing except that he has less than four hearts and less than three spades. Of course, the matter of game is not what worries you—you were from the start willing to play at four spades, trusting that there would not be five trumps massed in one hostile hand against you. You still do not like to abandon all hopes of slam, as if your partner held the king of diamounds he could still have bid no differently, but that would be the slam card. Nevertheless, with this kind of suit grouping

Sp.—A K Q J x Di.—A Q J
Ht.—A K Q x Cl.—x

You Cannot Probe for That King

because your partner could not read a four diamond bid on your part as a probe bid; he would rightly think that you had 5-4-4-0 distribution, and were compelling him to choose the eventual trump suit for you. If your hand were of this pattern — convert the singleton club into a small diamond—you would bid in just this manner, would you not, in order to ascertain whether your partner held four small diamonds? You cannot use this same bidding at one time to fish for four small diamonds, and at another time to probe for the king. Consequently, with this hand you cannot bid for slam except as an out and out gamble. You have no assurance that you can get into dummy even once. To catch the king of diamonds, assuming it to be on your right, you would have to lead that suit twice. Unless the opponents chuck the defense, it may not help you at all if diamond king is on your right. Consequently, the slam would be a bad risk on the cards. Yet at times the gamble would be tempting. For instance, if your opponents were reasonably sure to lead diamonds blindly, just because you had bid the other three suits, your chances of slam would be very promising. You would now need merely not to be unlucky in the spade distribution, and also to find the jack of hearts in dummy or else to be able to ruff the small hearts before either opponent could outruff or overruff the dummy, in order to make six spades, losing only the club. Technically, you would be wrong to slam the hand; psychologically there might be good reasons to risk it if your partner had bid clubs. Of course, if he had bid no trumps and not clubs, you cannot expect anything but a club lead, and then you might be in difficulties even if playing at only four spades, as you will be reduced to four trumps right away.

Could Your Partner Take the Strain Off You?

Of course your partner does not hold both the ace of clubs and the king of diamonds, otherwise he could have bid three no trumps at once or, with five clubs and these two high cards, bid four no trumps over your rebid of three hearts or possibly rebid his clubs. However, he may have the material for a small slam and be able to signify this by making an ultimate move for you on grounds which I will explain tomorrow.

SCORE 3 GOALS IN 5 MINUTES OF FAST HOCKY

Morenz Makes His First Point.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

This might not seem like news to strangers to hocky, but it was highly gratifying to nearly 12,000 fans, who crowded into the Chicago Staduim last night to see Morenz score that goal, his first of the season, and lead the Blackhawks to a 4 to 0 victory over one of their favorite enemies, the New York Rangers.

The victory enabled the Hawks to tie the Boston Bruins for first place in the American section of the National Hocky league, while pushing the once powerful Rangers deeper into last place in that division.

Goal Pleases Fans.

The goal Morenz scored probably brought more satisfaction to Blackhawk followers than any other this season. Morenz, known for more than a decade as one of the game's finest workmen, had played an important part in keeping the world's champions up there to date, but had been unable to ignite the red light back of opposing goalies.

When he finally did, in spite of the terrible Ching Johnson, who was guarding him at the time, the customers cheered him as no other Hawk scorer has been cheered this season.

Morenz's goal would have been sufficient, as matters turned out, but Johnny Gottselig, Doc Romnes, and Bill Kendall also crowded into the scoring. Gottselig needed no assistance on his effort, outsmarting the Ranger defense single handed immediately after Morenz's goal. Romnes batted one home on a pass from Coulter, while Louie Trudell made a handsome dash through the whole Ranger outfit to pass out to Kendall for the latter's score. Mush March rated a large hand for his assist on the Morenz goal.

Red Wings Next.

The Hawks will have practically no rest, for tomorrow night they battle their old foes of the Stanley cup finals, the Detroit Red Wings, who come to the Stadium.

The clients were hardly settled in their pews for the third period before the Hawks had scored the first goal of the evening, the achievement requiring but 22 seconds. After a slight scrimmage in Ranger territory, March snared the puck and went the length of the ice, caught the rebound of his own shot and, circling the cage, passed out to Morenz, who was being annoyed by Johnson. In spite of this, Howie fielded the pass and sent it among the back cords for his first goal of the season.

Hawks Score Again.

The Hawks' cause was further heightened on the ensuing face-off when Keeling was jailed for high sticking. Not wishing to take any advantage of his absence, the Hawks delayed the scoring of their second goal until he was back at work. Then Gottselig got the puck against the right boards near the New York goal, crossed over, deceiving the Ranger defense, and fired from the left. The goal was scored in 3 minutes and 18 seconds.

Less than two minutes later Coulter took the puck down into Ranger country, passed to Romnes, and Doc lined it past Aitkenhead to make the score 3-0. The time was 5:03.

The Cook-Boucher line responded to this by harrying Chabot so much that he wound up with the puck beneath his legs and under a couple of his colleagues in fending off a hard shot by Bill Cook.

Toward the end of the game Trudell made the finest single effort of the night. Taking the puck from Cook, he skated through the entire Ranger team and around the New York cage, where he passed out to Kendall, who had only Aitkenhead to beat, and didn't miss. The time was 15:30.

ILLINOIS TO TEST SOPHOMORES IN GAMES TONIGHT

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—Illinois will open the basketball season here tomorrow night against De Paul of Chicago and Bradley of Peoria in a double header.

It will be sophomore night, as Coach Craig Ruby plans to utilize the two games to try out a number of recruits, seven of whom are listed in the tentative starting lineups.

It is more or less of a guess which combination Ruby will start against De Paul and which against Bradley. It also is possible that he will use each group one-half in both games. The Illini may be biting off a big chunk for one evening, but Ruby is eager to see how the sophomores perform under fire.

First Game with De Paul.

It is the first encounter between De Paul and Illinois, although the reserve teams of the two institutions met in 1931 when the De Paul seconds won.

This also is the first game for Bradley, which brings a group of veterans, with the exception of Bob Loskill, sophomore center from La Salle, 6 feet 6½ inches.

The Illini will play Wabash here on Friday night, their last appearance at home until they open the Big Ten season here Jan. 5 against Indiana.

ILLINOIS.		DE PAUL.
Froschauer	F	Adams
Combes	F	Campion
Dehner	C	Yost
Mickelson	G	Linsky
Vopicka	G	Wendt

ILLINOIS.		BRADLEY.
Guttschow	F	Getz
Swanson	F	N. Harms
Riegel	C	Loskil
Braun or Beynon	G	Zimmerman

PURDUE PLAYS OPENER

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—Purdue's Big Ten title defenders are likely to be pushed to the limit here tomorrow night in the Jefferson High school gymnasium, where they meet Western State's perennially strong quintet in the season's opener for the Boilermakers. The Kalamazoo, Mich., five gave an indication of its offensive power Friday night when it swamped Hope.

The Boilermaker squad starts the season as more or less of an unknown quantity, with two co-captains, Norman Cottom, forward, and Ed Shaver, floor guard, as the only holdover regulars.

Jim Sward, 6 foot 6 inch center from Indianapolis, is expected to be the only sophomore in the starting lineup. Two reserves from last season, Bob Kessler and Charles Meade, are expected to be in the starting combination. Probable lineups:

PURDUE.		WESTERN STATE.
Cottom	F	Freeland
Kessler	F	Smith
Seward	C	Arnold
Meade	G	J. Miller
Shaver	G	G. Miller

BADGERS FACE TWO GAMES

Madison, Wis., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's basketball team, which lost to the freshmen and then defeated Franklin and Carleton colleges, will play two games this week, meeting Wabash in the field house tomorrow night and Marquette Saturday night in the first of a home and home series.

If comparative scores mean anything, the Badgers will have their hands full with the Wabash quintet. After Northwestern had defeated Carleton, 48 to 33, the Badgers were extended to win a 27 to 26 victory. The Wildcats were hard pressed to defeat Wabash, 35 to 29.

Alabama Opens Practice Today for Rose Bowl Game

Cardinals Run Over Stanford Braves, 37 to 2

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—The Chicago Cardinals ran all over the Stanford Braves for a 37 to 2 victory before 12,000 fans at Gilmore stadium this afternoon.

Phil Sarboe threw four passes for touchdowns. Bill Smith caught two, and Homer Griffith, and Russell each one.

Sarboe Starts Firing.

After a scoreless first period, the Cardinals broke out with three touchdowns. With the ball on their 26 Sarboe fired a pass to midfield where Bill Smith took the ball in stride and ran to the goal. Dave Cook added the extra point.

A few plays later that Bree Cuppoletti intercepted a pass on the Braves' 26 yard line. Then Sarboe once more cut loose and Smith took the ball on the gallop to dash over. The attempt for the extra point was blocked. The third touchdown came after Mike Mikulak recovered a loose ball on the home team's 33 yard line. Cook crashed through left tackle from the five yard line for the score. Smith kicked the seventh point.

Homer Griffith accounted for the fourth touchdown soon after the second half opened. He returned a punt 30 yards to the Braves' 39 yard line, crashed around end for a first down on the 27 yard line and from this point took a pass from Sarboe for the score. Cook kicked the point. Sarboe's parting shot was fired from the Braves' 40 yard line into the end zone, where Doug Russell took the ball. Russell also added the extra point. In the fourth quarter Paul Pardonner drop kicked the final three points from the Braves' 37 yard line.

Play Again Sunday.

Next Sunday the Cardinals play the Trojan Maroons, who will be reënforced by Ernie Pinckert, Jim Musick, Nate Barragar and several other former Southern California stars. Lineup:

In the Wake of the News

SILVER FOOTBALL.

DEAR Wake: Let the Board of Award for the coveted Silver Football think of a losing team's most valuable player.

Iowa lost to Nebraska by point after touchdown, but Dick Crayne pounded the Cornhusker line for two Hawkeye touchdowns. When the great Gopher eleven came to Iowa City it was Crayne who passed to Walker and Bangs for two more Iowa touchdowns.

In the Indiana game it was all Crayne. His timely kicking saved the Iowa goal line on several occasions. Simmons starred against Northwestern, but Crayne enlightened the luminous Negro where to tote the ball.

Much of the time Crayne plays alone, and all the time the Iowa team depends on his running, passing, and kicking. For these reasons, and considering what Iowa would have been without him, Crayne should receive the Silver Football.—John E. Farber.

After seeing Minnesota's Thundering Herd run over Wisconsin, there is no doubt that Pug Lund is the best all-around back in the country. The unusual all around performance Lund has continually shown all year is the greatest reason why Minnesota is national champion. Lund certainly deserves THE TRIBUNE trophy.

—Badger Fan.

* *

Selection of Ell Patterson as Chicago's most valuable player was a surprise to football followers. It was, however, in accordance with the conditions of THE TRIBUNE award, in my opinion. Jay Berwanger, one of the greatest players in the country, has received the publicity because his kicking, passing, and running are visible. The fellow down there encouraging his men and making about half the tackles for his team was Patterson. His coach called him an "ideal captain." To see this type of player honored convinces me of the soundness of conditions for the Silver Football.—Maroon Alumnus.

BASEBALL MEN ASSEMBLE FOR ANNUAL MEETING

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Baseball executives were converging on New York today for the annual major league meetings which began Tuesday.

Such strictly executive matters as Emil Fuchs' plan to start dog racing in Braves' field, the installation of Ford Frick as national league president, disposition of a proposed ban on all post-season barnstorming tours, and the ever present problem of the ball itself, all may be overshadowed by further activity in the player market.

Frick will formally succeed John Arnold Heydler, retired, as national league president, just in time to find the league forced to rule on Fuchs' plan to operate a dog racing plant in Braves' field, hoping to pull the Braves' baseball club out of the red. Apparently the magnates will frown on any effort to mix baseball with dogs, but Fuchs may be able to get around the problem by having the Braves play their home games in Fenway Park, home of the Boston Red Sox.

Beating Costs Each Member of Bears $207

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 9.—Each Bear suffered an immediate loss of $207.01 as a result of getting licked in today's championship playoff game between New York and Chicago, but the ex-champions were consoled with a purse of $414.02 each.

Total receipts	$64,504.00
Net receipts	58,503.60
Players' pool	26,911.40
Winning share, each player	621.03
Losing share, each player	414.02
League share	5,850.36
Each club's share	8,775.40

Among the spectators, according to a statement circulated in the press rows, were Senator Robert Wagner of New York and Postmaster General Farley.

It was made known that the National Football league club owners will meet tomorrow morning. Questions of rule changes, drafting of players, etc., are scheduled to come up, it was said.

Bronko Nagurski apparently was the greatest cold sufferer as the game got under way. He fumbled the ball the first two times he handled it. He was warmed up thereafter.

The management had the crowd of 35,059 properly gauged. The boys could have got optimistic to the extent of placing chairs in the end field boxes, but they didn't.

The Bears will not return to Chicago until a week from tomorrow. They will remain in New York for several days, then entrain for Philadelphia for a post-season game with the Philadelphia Eagles, to be played a week from today.

NEW YORK GETS 4 TOUCHDOWNS IN 4TH PERIOD

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 9.—The Chicago Bears came to the end of their championship trail this bleak December afternoon at the Polo grounds.

New York's Giants are the new champions of all professional football. By an inspired charge these Giants, twice defeated this fall by the Bears, smashed through for four touchdowns in 10 minutes and an astounding victory, 30 to 13.

Official attendance was announced as 35,059. Nearly all these tickets had been sold in advance.

Strong Leads Rally.

For 50 minutes the Bears demonstrated their mastery. After an early spurt which netted the Giants three points on Ken Strong's field goal, the Giants were on the defensive. From several scoring opportunities the defending champions garnered 13 points. This was the Bears' advantage, 13 to 3, as the teams went into the fourth period. The Bears were following the formula of their many triumphs.

Fans Storm Field.

The thousands in the stands, chilled by the northwest breeze and only able to withstand the freezing temperatures because of blessings of the wintry sun, forgot their numb limbs. As the Giants swung their steam roller over the tiring Bears the thousands cheered. And then as the Giants added touchdown to touchdown, enthusiasm turned to delirium. Hats spun down from the heights of the stands. Hundreds poured over the retaining walls and banked solidly around the gridiron.

Only when a cordon of police, with the Giants' substitutes assisting, had lined up, could the crowd be controled.

After each touchdown hundreds ran onto the gridiron to slap the backs of their heroes. Twice police raced into the crowd to recover the football after points after touchdowns had been made.

Gym Shoes Aid Giants.

In searching for an adequate reason for the collapse of the Bears in the final fateful 10 minutes, the strategy of Steve Owen, Giants' coach, must be given proper consideration.

The gridiron turf was frozen solid. All during the first half the players of both teams had extreme difficulty keeping their feet and at least one possible additional Chicago touchdown was not made because battering Bronko Nagurski and the fleet footed Gene Ronzani and Keith Molesworth lacked the sure footing to make their charges effective.

At the start of the second half many of the Giants, including all of the back field men, came back to the field shod in rubber gymnasium shoes. This change in equipment apparently made no difference in the third period, probably because New York was on the defense. But when Strong unleashed his powerful drives he undoubtedly was able to dodge more quickly on the hard surface of the gridiron than the Bears, who wore the costumary cleated shoes.

Hammer Bears' Line.

However, the question of footwear cannot be rated as an excuse. For in their terrific four touchdown attack the Giants not only hammered through the Bear line until it crumbled, but capitalized on every opportunity.

The Giants went into the fourth period trailing 13 to 3. But they had the advantage of the stiff breeze. Their first onslaught, starting from their own 30 yard line, had collapsed on the Bears' four yard line, where Ed Kawal, Bears' center, intercepted Danowski's pass.

Molesworth kicked out from behind his goal line to Strong, who returned 9 yards to the Bears' 28 yard line. Then came the play which undoubtedly was the turn of the tide. Had it failed the Bears might conceivably have weathered the rising storm.

Frankian "Steals" Touchdown.

Danowski faded back to pass on the first play. Ike Frankian, right end, dashed straight down field toward the goal. Carl Brumbaugh, Bears' quarter back, covered him perfectly, and as

DAMEN DEFEATS ST. CYR, 28 TO 14, IN K. OF C. UPSET

Carroll Beats Hennepin Shields, 25 to 9.

St. Cyr, Knights of Columbus Basketball league champion for the last two years, received its first setback of the season yesterday when it lost to Damen, 28 to 14, in a west division game at the community clubhouse. Kluchinskas, playing his eighth season in the league, set the pace for the winners with 9 points. Damen led at the half, 12 to 9.

Carroll won its third straight game in the west division and dropped Hennepin-Shields from the unbeaten ranks with a 25 to 9 victory. Hennepin, trailing 11 to 6 at the half, was unable to score again until late in the second period.

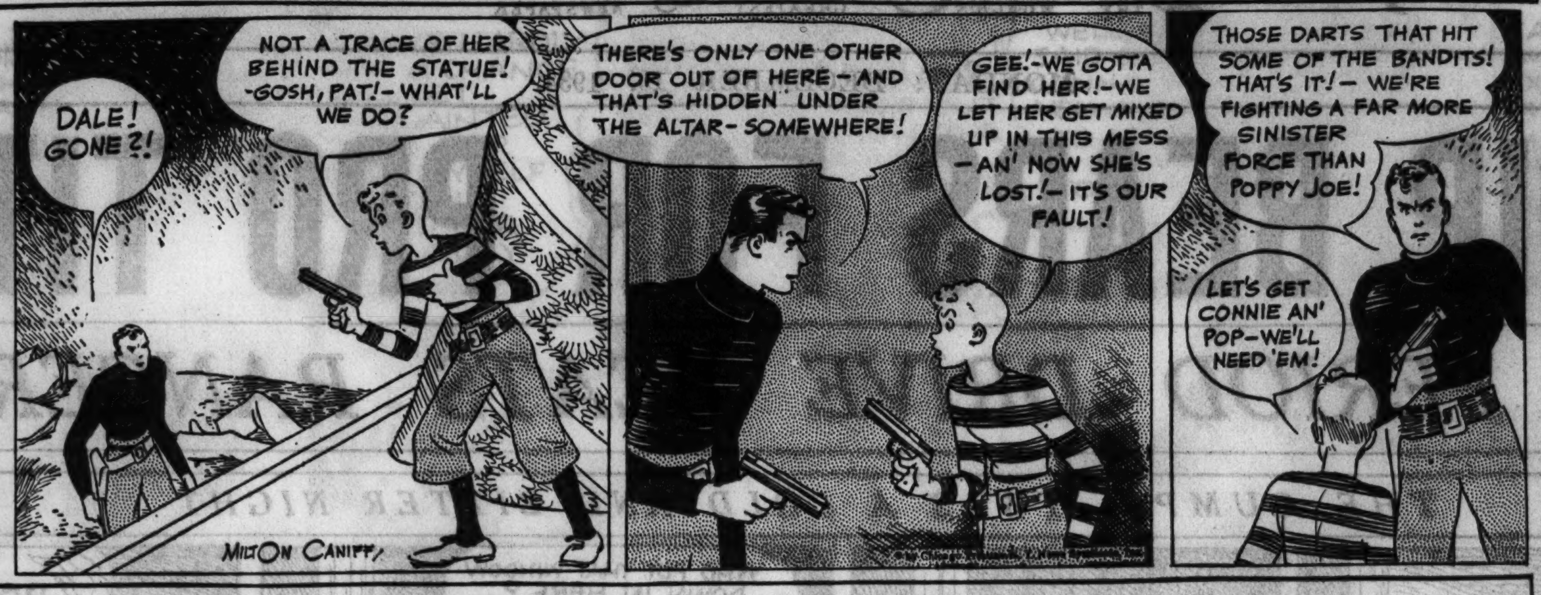
TERRY AND THE PIRATES—UNSEEN FOE



TERRY AND PAT HAVE BEATEN POPPY JOE AND HIS MEN — BUT DURING THE FIGHT DALE SCOTT HAS DISAPPEARED FROM HER HIDING PLACE BEHIND THE HUGE IDOL IN THE TEMPLE...
DALE! GONE?!
GEE!—WE GOTTA FIND HER!—WE LET HER GET MIXED UP IN THIS MESS—AN' NOW SHE'S LOST!—IT'S OUR FAULT!
THOSE DARTS THAT HIT SOME OF THE BANDITS! FIND HER! THAT'S IT!—WE'RE FIGHTING A FAR MORE SINISTER FORCE THAN POPPY JOE!
LET'S GET CONNIE AN' POP—WE'LL NEED 'EM!

DICK TRACY—The Purloined "Soup"

I THOUGHT ALL ALONG THAT BORIS ARSON'S GANG WAS SMUGGLING NITROGLYCERINE OUT OF THIS PLANT—AND NOW WE KNOW IT.
LOOK—HE'S BRINGING UP THE SECOND CAN OF THOSE CONTAINERS.
BUT TRACY, IF THAT'S ONE OF THE VENTILATORS TO THE UNDERGROUND NITROGLYCERINE PLANT, HOW DO YOU ACCOUNT FOR ITS NOT BEING BARRED OR LOCKED SOMEWAY.
THAT PARTY THAT'S DOING THE STEALING UNDOUBTEDLY IS AN EMPLOYEE—AND HAS A KEY OR ELSE UNLOCKS THE VENTILATOR GRATING DURING WORKING HOURS.
WAIT. LOOK, TRACY!
HE'S CRAWLED OUT OF THE VENTILATOR, AND HE'S GOING OFF SOMEWHERE WITH THOSE TWO DRUMS OF NITROGLYCERINE UNDER HIS ARMS AND HE'S CHANGED HIS CAP FOR A HAT.
WE MUST FOLLOW HIM, PAT.

OLYMPICS BEAT DETROIT, 3 TO 2, IN AMATEUR HOCKY

The Olympics continued their winning streak at the Chicago Stadium yesterday afternoon by taking a 3 to 2 amateur hocky game from the Detroit Motors before a crowd of 4,000. With 8 minutes and 58 seconds of the third period, Center Tesvin teamed with Janelle to beat Goalie Durham of Detroit.

2 Fight Shows Are Scheduled for Tonight

Chicago boxing fans will have two shows to pick from tonight. Jimmy Christy, north side featherweight, will encounter Dave Barry of Springfield, Ill., in the ten round feature bout of the program at the Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue. Corn Griffin, Columbus, Ga., heavyweight, will meet Tony Cancela, of Florida, in the main event of eight rounds at Marigold gardens, Broadway and Grace streets.

Both Christy and Barry hope to earn a place among the leading contenders for the featherweight title. Christy's most recent achievement was a draw with Young Rightmire. He defeated Barry in a previous meeting. The latter attributes the decision to the fact that he was floored in the first round and lost too many points by that mishap to gain an advantage by the good boxing he did later in the bout.

Fighters' Third Meeting.

Griffin and Cancela have met twice before, each having a victory to his credit. Their most recent encounter occurred at the Coliseum several months ago, Cancela taking the decision. Later he defeated Eddie Sims on the Levinsky-Lasky program at the Stadium.

In the supporting bouts at the Midway arena, Hughie Allen is matched against George Van Der Heyden, Bobby Mullins against Al Pahl, Sammy Adams against George Trapp, and Eddie Jackson against Joey Bosak.

The supporting bouts at Marigold gardens will consist of Sherrald Kennard vs. Eddie Stiegall, Milton Aron vs. Sammy Alfano, Sammy Scoglio vs. Johnny Mirabel, and Rudy Sterbenz vs. Merle Tonn.

ROSS FIGHTS TONIGHT

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Barney Ross, the scrappy Chicagoan who holds the lightweight and junior welterweight boxing titles, will risk the latter of his crowns tomorrow night when he meets Bobby Pacho, Los Angeles, in a twelve round bout at Cleveland, the feature of the week's national boxing program.

On the same card, Johnny Risko, heavyweight trial horse from Cleveland, will meet Patsy Perroni, Boston, in a ten round bout and Paul Pirrone of Cleveland, who knocked out Mickey Walker last week, will clash with Lou Halper, Newark, also in a ten rounder. Champion Max Baer's brother, Buddy, will battle four rounds or less with Mickey McGoorty of Detroit.

Tomorrow night's card also will see Eddie Ran, Polish welterweight from New York, in action against Harry Devine of Worcester in a ten round bout at Boston and Mike Belloise, New York featherweight, mixing it with Ebie Wasserman, New York, in the featured six rounder at St. Nicholas palace, New York.

SAVOLDI SEEKS PERMISSION TO USE DROP KICK

Joe Savoldi's dropkick will be a subject for discussion at the meeting of the Illinois athletic commission again this afternoon.

Doc Krone, promoter of the Jim McMillen-Savoldi wrestling contest at the Coliseum next Monday night, will offer the commission a communication from the former Notre Dame star urging that body to restore the trick to legal status so that he may not be handicapped.

RAMAGE IS HIS NAME, FANS, BUT HE'S AN IRISHMAN

Lee Ramage is the answer to the prayers of Jim Mullen and Nate Lewis. The two veteran promoters several weeks back were bemoaning the fact that there wasn't a good Irish heavyweight around. They finally consulted the boxing records and found two, one over in Ireland, a lad named Jack Doyle, and the other, Lee Ramage, 2,000 miles away in San Diego, Cal.

Mullen and Lewis first became annoyed by the fact that what the heavyweight division needed was a good Irish fighter when several weeks ago they matched Art Lasky, the Minneapolis Hebrew, with King Levinsky. Two Jewish boys fighting each other wasn't such a good business deal from the boxoffice standpoint, although the show was a financial success. Both boys were fighting for a chance at Max Baer's heavyweight crown, who also is part Hebrew.

Nothing but Irish Once.

They dug deep down in the record books and finally came upon Lee Ramage. The name deceived them at first, but after a little research work they found that Lee's mother's name was O'Hara. That was enough. They immediately set out to bring in Ramage.

They had Joe Louis, Detroit Negro puncher, who is the best heavyweight prospect of recent years. Ramage accepted the match without much dickering.

Ramage, who has boxed Hamas, Levinsky, Lasky, and other leading heavyweights, is a baby face type and appears to be a larger edition of Jimmy McLarnin. The coast fighter made a decided impression in his workouts here and will probably enter the ring a 7 to 5 favorite to beat Louis when they meet at the Stadium Friday night.

Yarosz Eager to Impress.

Teddy Yarosz, middleweight champion who is a feature with Louis and Ramage, has arrived for his 10 round battle against Kid Leonard of Moline. Yarosz is eager to establish himself in Chicago and feels that if he can stop Leonard he will make his home here.

BRUNDAGE STEPS OUT, MAHONEY IN AS A. A. U. CHIEF

Controversies Avoided as Convention Ends.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Carefully sidestepping controversial issues throughout the final session in carrying forward its far reaching sports program, the Amateur Athletic union closed its forty-sixth national convention tonight by unanimously electing Jeremiah T. Mahoney of New York, 56 year old former jurist, as president for the coming year, succeeding Avery Brundage of Chicago.

Brundage, who remains president of the American Olympic association, retired from office after holding the A. A. U. leadership for six years. Before turning over the gavel to Mahoney, who never before had held A. A. U. office, Brunadge steered the convention successfully through a program involving substantial redistricting of the union, distribution of 1935 championship events, and rules designed to bring the conduct of amateur sports in the United States into closer harmony with international regulations.

No Action on Olympics.

Although debate or further controversy over America's acceptance of Germany's invitation to the 1936 Olympic games was kept successfully from reaching the floor of the convention, during three days in which this was the livest topic of the lobbies, statements were made tonight with a view to clarifying the attitude of the A. A. U. toward the Berlin government's anti-Jewish activities. The consensus was that since the American acceptance is still conditional upon Germany upholding its "solemn pledges," no further necessity for A. A. U. action exists at this time.

Expected consideration by the convention of the amateur status of Eleanor Holm Jarrett, Olympic swimming star, failed to materialize. It is still possible for the national registration committee to consider charges growing out of the use of Mrs. Jarrett's name and picture in a swimming suit advertisment, but it appeared the A. A. U. will let the case rest upon the decision of the Metropolitan [New York] association, which cleared the swimmer of all charges.

Change Track Rules.

The convention, in carrying out a program of making American rules conform to international standards in most amateur sports, adopted the so-called "international start" for foot racing. Under this rule there is no penalty for one false start by a runner, but two "breaks" cause automatic disqualification.

The hurdling regulations were changed to conform with international standards, permitting the consideration of record performances, regardless of how many hurdles the competitor knocks down. Formerly, under American rules, hitting any hurdle was considered automatic cause for rejecting a record.

Steers Is Vice President.

Jack Rafferty, Houston, Tex., first vice president; Aaron M. Frank, Portland, Ore., second vice president; Fred L. Steers, Chicago, third vice president; J. B. Lemon, Miami Beach, Fla., fourth vice president; Daniel J. Ferris, New York, secretary treasurer; J. Lyman Bingham, Chicago, assistant to the president.

VIKING SOCCER TEAM BEATEN BY WIEBOLDTS, 7 TO 0

The Wieboldt Wonderbolts soccer team, leader in the Major league, routed the Vikings, who are leading the International league, at De Paul stadium yesterday. The score was 7 to 0. Scotty Neilson, center, led the Wonderbolts' attack, scoring five goals. The Wieboldts led at the half, 5 to 0.

In a double-header at Sparta stadium the Sparta Leaders defeated the Chicago Sport club, 4 to 2, and the Lawndale Wanderers triumphed over the Chicago Sport club second team, 3 to 1. In the first round of the national challenge cup Vienna won from the Besedas, 2 to 0.

NOTRE DAME HAS OLD PULL AT GATE

Draws Biggest Crowd of Season in 4 Cities.

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 9.—Winning or losing, Notre Dame is still America's football team.

Elmer Layden's first major league eleven, with a record of six victories and three defeats, has left a trail of broken attendance and receipt marks in its wake.

Notre Dame drew the largest crowds of the year in Pittsburgh, Chicago, New York, Cleveland, and Los Angeles. The 81,000 who jammed into Yankee stadium for the Army game constituted the greatest football gathering of the season.

While the 60,000 who saw the Irish whip Southern California yesterday were by no means the largest crowd that has seen Notre Dame play on the coast, they did make up the biggest throng that saw a contest in Pacific coast territory this fall.

Put on Real Celebration.

Enthusiasm over Elmer Layden's squad matched the attendance. There has been more genuine interest in the South Bend team this season than at any time since Rockne's death. The luster of Layden's name in Notre Dame tradition undoubtedly accounts for the revival.

Streets surrounding the Biltmore hotel, where the Irish were quartered, were littered with paper and feathers this morning. The celebrating became fierce as the evening wore on after the 14 to 0 victory over Southern California. And most of the toasts were offered to those Layden boys—Elmer and Mike. The latter, who is the junior member of the Notre Dame firm, was the boy who scored both Notre Dame touchdowns. His expert handling of forward passes and his brilliant runs off tackle and around end were the outstanding achievements of the game.

Not that it makes any difference, but those Layden boys are Irish. Mike, who was christened Francis in Davenport, Ia., will be the toast of the nation next year, or we miss our guess. He has been held back by his relationship to the Notre Dame coach. Elmer is a modest chap who doesn't care about pushing the family name. Yesterday was the first time Mike has had a real chance to show his worth. If he corrects a tendency to fumble when tackled hard he will establish himself as one of Notre Dame's greatest backs next season.

Tour Movie Studio.

After attending mass in a group the squad went to the ranch of Edward Doheny for lunch today. The players made a tour of a movie studio this afternoon and left for Chicago at 7 o'clock this evening.

Coach Layden did not accompany the team home. He is scheduled for speaking engagements on the coast that will keep him busy until Dec. 22.

REPORT FAUROT NEW MISSOURI FOOTBALL COACH

Columbia, Mo., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The selection of Don Faurot, Kirksville, Mo., Teachers' college coach, as head football coach at the University of Missouri was indicated in sources close to the university tonight after a meeting of the university's committee on intercollegiate athletics.

The committee declined to announce the name of the man chosen to succeed Frank Carideo, pending action by the board of curators, but athletic circles here believed the selection was Faurot, former Missouri back field man, who piloted the Kirksville Bulldogs to 26 consecutive victories.

New York College Football Player Dies of Injuries

New York, Dec. 9.—[Special.]—Aaron H. Greenwald, City college football player who was injured in a game against New York university on Nov. 10, died tonight. He had received a ruptured intestine in the game, but was not aware of the critical nature of his injuries for several days. His condition then became alarming and he was taken to a hospital. He contracted pneumonia and he was placed in an oxygen tent in an effort to save his life.

Danowski's long pass came down at the Bears' three yard line, Brumbaugh, running backward, caught the ball. Frankian also was under the ball and in some fashion he snatched the ball from Brumbaugh's hands as Carl fell and skidded into the end zone.

Momentarily the ball was lost to view, but as Frankian jogged behind the goal line with the ball held above his head the crowd broke loose in a crescendo of cheers. Strong place kicked the extra point and the Giants trailed, 13 to 10.

The Bears received the kickoff. Three plays later Molesworth kicked out of bounds on the Bears' 46 yard line. Here Strong took command. He smashed through guard for four yards. Again he took the ball, swung to attack the right side of the Bears' line, piled through a gap between tackle and end, and, preceded by a wave of interferers who smothered the secondary, raced to the goal. It was a power drive with every Bear defender stretched on the ground. Strong's placement sent the Giants into the lead 17 to 13.

One Final Flutter.

The Bears again received the kickoff. One play, Brumbaugh's lateral to Molesworth, who forward passed to Luke Johnsos, made first down on the Bears' 47 yard line. But this was a final weak flutter of an attack once feared throughout professional football. On fourth down thereafter, battering Nagurski was thrown without gain when two yards were needed.

Strong went into action. On four successive plays he hammered through the line to the Bears' 30 yard stripe. Danowski sped around end for 17 yards, hit the line for five more, and then Strong went around the Bears' left end on a reverse play to score standing up in the corner of the zone.

Molenda fumbled the ball as he knelt to hold for Strong's placement, and when he jumped up to try a drop kick, the ball was blocked. The Giants led, 23 to 13.

Giants Intercept Pass.

Brumbaugh returned Molenda's kickoff to the Bears' 27 yard line. But the first play, a pass by Molesworth down center, was intercepted by Molenda in midfield, who lateraled to Dale Burnett. Burnett was chased out of bounds on the Bears' 21 yard line.

Strong had retired to the clubhouse, surrounded by hundreds of fans. But Danowski, equally popular in the orgy of scoring, carried the ball four times. On the last he crossed the Bears' goal line and was yanked to his feet by a horde of spectators who invaded the field. Molenda place kicked the point. The Giants had arrived at the final tabulation of their championship, 30 to 13.

Almost Get Another.

The Bears received the kickoff. Again a first down forward pass from their 38 yard line was intercepted, this time by Danowski, who lateraled to Burnett. As the game ended, Burnett was run out of bounds on the Bears' 15 yard line and into the crowd jammed along the side line.

Strong's first period place kick was made as he stood on the Bears' 38 yard line. It ended the Giants' offense until the final ten minutes.

Early in the second quarter the Bears drove 36 yards for a touchdown. Molesworth's 18 yard return of Strong's punt set the stage. Principal item in the march was a pass by Molesworth to Ronzani, who took the ball as it bounded from Flaherty's hands on the Giants' eight yard line and ran to within one foot of the goal, where he stepped out. Nagurski smashed over for the touchdown, and Manders, replacing Ronzani kicked the extra point.

Manders Kicks Goal.

Immediately after the Bears journeyed from their own 46 yard line to the Giants' nine yard line. Here on fourth down, Manders place kicked from the 17 yard line for the half time score of Bears, 10; Giants, 3.

The Bears lost a touchdown a minute later because of penalty. Strong fumbled Manders' kickoff as the ball came down just under the goal posts cross bar. He followed it out into the field, failed to pick it up at the six yard line, and Bill Karr recovered for the Bears on the Giants' eight yard line.

On the first play, Nagurski turned the right end of the Bear line for a touchdown, but he was called back and the Bears lost five yards for backfield in motion. On fourth down, thereafter, Manders missed a field goal from the Giants' 24 yard line.

The Bears also failed to capitalize on a Giant misplay in the third period. Mel Hein, Giant center, passed the ball inaccurately to Strong, who had to turn around to bat down the ball. Bill Hewitt fell on the ball on New York's 10 yard line.

Three plays lost five yards, and then Manders place kicked from the Giants' 23 yard line to give the Bears their 13 to 3 advantage.

12-11 on First Downs.

New York was not penalized during the game. The Bears, on the other hand, lost thirty yards, but in this list of four penalties were penalties for back field in motion, offside, and holding, which checked the Chicagoans' attack on two occasions.

The Bears made eleven first downs, nine of them by rushing. Only one was accomplished in the fateful fourth period, a first down by passing. The Giants made twelve first downs, five of them by forward passing. Five of the Giants' first downs came in the fourth quarter, four in the first quarter.

In fifteen forward passes the Bears completed six for seventy-three yards, failed six times, and had three intercepted. New York tried thirteen passes, completed seven for 101 yards, had four failures, and two interceptions. The Bears fumbled four times and recovered all of their misplays. In contrast New York had four fumbles and the Bears recovered three of them.

Olin Dutra's 70 Leads in Miami Golf

Miami, Fla., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Shooting the same steady golf that won for him the last national open championship, Olin Dutra of Coral Gables, Fla., today carded a par smashing 70 to take the lead from a record breaking field of 300 players at the end of the first 18 holes of the $12,500 Miami Biltmore open.

He toured the first side of the 6,640 yard par 71 course in 34, one under regulation figures, and came back with a par 36 to head the second half of the field that swung into action today and nosed out Leonard Schmutte of Findlay, O., who led the first half of the entry list with a 35—37—72 yesterday.

Mehlhorn Fights

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 9.—(AP)—In a meeting that broke up in a fist fight, members of the first division of golf professionals participating in the Miami Biltmore open tournament tonight decided to redistribute the $7,500 prize money offered the group.

The fight, between Bill Mehlhorn, Louisville professional, and Frank Godwin, sports writer for the Miami Daily News, started when Mehlhorn contended the decision to redistribute the prizes should not be made public. The contestants were parted before either received any injuries. By unanimous consent, first prize was cut from $2,500 to $1,200 and the other prizes were revised to suit the contestants.

Many of the first division players had signed a petition asking the redistribution. It was said they felt the first prize was too large in proportion to the other awards.

Anderson, Lewis Score in Overtime.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The action was crammed into the third and overtime periods tonight as the Detroit Red Wings handed the St. Louis Eagles a 3 to 1 defeat in a National Hockey league match.

After two scoreless periods Goodfellow of Detroit beat Beveridge on a pass from Weiland while Frew was in the penalty box. Joe Lamb tied up the count while Aurie was off for tripping, and the game went into overtime.

After five minutes of cautious play, Anderson got his second goal of the season when he grabbed the puck and scored after a face off near the St. Louis net. DENY REPORT OF GAMBLING COUP IN TITLE GAME

New York, Dec. 9.—[Special.]—Reports that gamblers had made a clean-up by betting on the New York Giants to whip the favorite Chicago Bears for the pro football title today were circulated after the Giants had won the game 30 to 13.

George Halas, owner and coach of the Bears, Steve Owen, coach of the Giants, and Joe Carr, president of the league were vehement in stating that the game, as all other National league games, was square.

"We just got licked in the fourth quarter, that's all," Halas said. "It had to come some time. [The Bears had not been defeated in 33 games.] We're sorry we are no longer champions, but remember, we beat the Giants twice this year."

The Giants will meet an all-star team of Pacific coast players at San Francisco Jan. 20 in a charity game.

Lil' man, with all the air and gestures, my magnet to smiles—
Lil' man, I've loved you even when a child,
From a block of wood, carved by the hand
Of some gray haired Italian,
Fantastically you jumped into curiosity and ever since—
In the hearts of kiddies you have been immense.
Two dot mischievous eyes, and a long, long nose
That grows when you tell those naughty lies;
Cherry-red suit and cocky hat,
Lil' Pinocchio—you're all o' that!
It was in Italy, down a cobbled street, one day I stopped
'Fore a quaint wood carver's shop—
Mid shavings and gay colored paint.
So plain there came "Buon Giorno" from you, Pinocchio.
Said I, "Little Puppet, come with me across the sea,
Tell Gepeppo, need not fear—
For you I'll pay 'big mount lire.'"
And lil' man, now, with me evenings at home alone—
Sorta sleepy I sit on a story book shelf
Watching you reel my childhood o'er,
Playing pranks from your story book lore;
Taking me away to the cobbled street where I used to play,
Holding hands with youth's yesterday.
Lil' Pinocchio, my heart is your stage,

DUCK BAITING IN ILLINOIS TARGET OF EDITORIAL FIRE

Minnesota Asks Feeding Practice Be Abolished.

BY BCB BECKER.

While Illinois duck hunters are coasting toward the end of the 1934-'35 waterfowl hunting season they should not forget that ahead of them are more days of fighting to protect themselves from attacks such as appeared recently in the columns of the Minnesota Conservationist, the official publication of the Minnesota department of conservation.

We would not be a bit surprised if the heavy "firing" started again next month when the American game conference is held in New York. Minnesota has been criticizing Illinois duck hunters, attacking the Illinois conservation department, and demanding that all baiting be abolished. In Minnesota and neighboring states the general belief is that Illinois is the worst offender on every count.

Editorial Widely Reprinted.

The vitriolic editorial which the Minnesota Conservationist published this fall calling attention to the lack of conservation spirit here in this state has been reprinted far and wide. Every duck hunter in the state should be made aware of how many groups are continually attacking this state.

One of the most amusing parts of the editorial which attacks Illinois for taking an open season of 15 two day week-ends, is that which concerns "wealthy duck clubs" and baiting. This part shows the ignorance of some of our Minnesota friends regarding baiting or feeding of ducks. It reads: "Duck baiting is of necessity practiced only by wealthy men as the average duck hunter is hard pressed to gather together an old single or double barreled gun and a few shells."

Baiting General Practice in State.

We do not belong to a duck club, wealthy, "medium," or any other kind. We haven't hunted at any of the big clubs on the Illinois river. But we do feel pretty certain about this point. When any one in Minnesota or anywhere else says that here in Illinois so called baiting is practiced only by wealthy clubs he doesn't know what he is talking about.

Thousands of shooters who do not belong to clubs are able to hunt only because they can patronize a day shooting place that does feed ducks. Cut out that feeding [or baiting] and most of these men wouldn't get any shooting, because these small marshes could not accommodate them.

MURPHY ORDERS BUDGET BALANCE FOR PHILIPPINES

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 9.—Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy's legislative roundup, completed yesterday, marked the possible end of direct American control over Philippine legislation.

In an attempt to establish a policy that will continue after the islands become independent, the governor general vetoed a large number of appropriation bills to compel the government to live within its income. This has resulted in bitter controversy. Some legislators will appeal for a special session to repass their pet measures over the veto.

Revenue Not Provided.

Gov. Murphy has pointed out that additional revenues are not provided and that it is therefore necessary to curtail government services as well as costly projects. The total appropriations vetoed will exceed $2,000,000, including some projects which Gov. Murphy himself proposed but is now killing in order to conclude his administration with a completely balanced budget. The vetoes assure the insular government of a cash surplus of at least $1,000,000.

The governor has approved a considerable volume of social legislation. The social reforms include new housing programs, attacking the slum problem; additional facilities for insane hospitals, $500,000 for typhoon relief, more money for the care of orphaned and delinquent children, antiusury laws, additional aid for schools, public health centers, and general hospital facilities.

Keeps Two House System.

Gov. Murphy does not expect that all these reforms will be kept up after the Philippines commonwealth is set up, but he regards it as essential to start the government in this direction while the United States is still in control.

The constitutional convention made the first important change in the proposed draft of the future commonwealth's basic law when it killed a proposal to establish a permanent commission to replace the senate, leaving the legislature unicameral.

THREE AMERICANS IN STOCKHOLM TO GET NOBEL PRIZES

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Four Americans will be collectively richer by $43,618 tomorrow when they are made formal recipients of Nobel prizes in medicine and chemistry. King Gustaf Adolf of Sweden will make the awards. It will be predominantly a United States ceremony, four out of five of the Nobel prizes awarded in Stockholm this year have been to Americans. Italy, through Luigi Pirandello, 1934 literature winner, is the only other nation represented.

The Americans honored are Drs. George Minot and William P. Murphy of Harvard medical school and George H. Whipple of the University of Rochester, joint winners of the medicine award, and H. C. Urey of Columbia university, winner of the prize in chemistry.

The three medical men have been recognized because of their research and discoveries in the treatment of anemia. Prof. Urey was singled out for his discovery of "heavy water." All of the Americans with the exception of Dr. Urey have arrived here.

SERVICES TODAY IN EVANSTON FOR DR. GEORGE BETTS

Funeral services for Dr. George Herbert Betts, professor and research director of Northwestern university school of education, who died Saturday in his apartment in the Georgian hotel in Evanston, will be held at 10 a. m. today at the chapel of the First Methodist church in Evanston. Burial will be in Lake Geneva, Wis., where the family has a summer home. Dr. Betts' death, as the result of a heart attack, followed an illness of influenza from which he was believed to be recovering. He was nationally known as an educator and the author of a large number of books on education and related subjects. Surviving him are his widow, Anna, and their son, Harlan C.

Bury Flyer Bowen Dec. 11; Blame Weather for Crash

Columbia, Mo., Dec. 9.—[Special.]—The body of Lewis L. Bowen of Chicago, Braniff Airways mail pilot, killed when his plane crashed a mile east of here Saturday, was shipped tonight to Mount Sterling, Ill. Funeral services will be held there Tuesday afternoon. Bowen is survived by a former wife and three children at Mount Sterling, in addition to his widow, who resided with him at Chicago. Braniff Airways officials announced after inquiry that bad weather, either a low ceiling—1,000 feet or less—which forced dangerously low flying or a freezing mist forming ice on the wings or both caused the crash.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Ferde Grofe's orchestra will open an engagement at the Drake hotel Saturday, Dec. 29, broadcasting exclusively over W-G-N. Grofe, nationally known for his musical arrangements for Paul Whiteman, has been directing his own orchestra for 18 months now. They will conclude an engagement in Philadelphia at Christmas time. At the Drake and on W-G-N they will succeed Earl Burtnett who has had a fine record of almost a year there. Burtnett will go to the Lowry hotel, St. Paul. Grofe is also well known as a composer. His "Grand Canyan Suite" in three years has become a sort of modern classic. Grofe uses a movement from this suite, "On the Trail" as his signature number.

Sophie Tucker is coming back to radio for a regular sustaining series. The favorite of the night clubs is to sing on Tuesday and Sunday evenings with Henry Busse's orchestra from the Chez Paree over WBBM-CBS. Miss Tucker's first broadcast is scheduled for 10:45 tomorrow evening. Her numbers will be "Some of These Days" and "For All We Know." The world prèmiere of Mascagni's opera "Nerone," at La Scala, Milan, Italy, is to be broadcast in part over NBC networks. "Nerone," by the 70 year old composer of "Cavalleria Rusticana," deals with the more human side of the emperor who fiddled while Rome burned.

PIECE OF LINDY LADDER LINKED TO HAUPTMANN

Flemington, N. J., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The state disclosed tonight that a rung in the Lindbergh kidnaping ladder has been traced by an expert to the Bronx home of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Arthur Kohler, wood expert of the United States forestry service laboratory at Madison, Wis., announced this finding in his report to Attorney General David T. Wilentz.

The rung traced to Hauptmann's home was half of a piece of wood which originally had been nailed against the wall of a second floor room in the Hauptmann house, the report shows. The other half of the piece has been removed from the wall and brought to New Jersey, where it rests among the state exhibits to be used in Hauptmann's trial starting Jan. 2.

WHEAT REGAINS LEADERSHIP IN GRAIN MARKETS

Speculative Interest Shifts from Corn.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A distinct shift in the speculative emphasis in the grain market took place last week. Corn for several weeks had been the real leader, attracting much of the speculative activity usually found in the wheat pit. Once again, however, corn now occupies a secondary position, and wheat, the customary market leader, has moved to the fore.

In analyzing the causes of the change grain men point out that the price spread between wheat and corn had been warped out of its usual proportions. Speculators felt this was justified in view of the tremendous shortage of corn and the absence of substitutes. The wheat crop also was short, but the surplus from last year is large enough to carry the country until the next crop is ready, with some to spare.

Corn Price Ratio Rises.

In view of this it is reasonable that corn should be worth more than the customary 65 per cent of wheat. So rapidly did corn advance that it was predicted all corn futures eventually would sell above the comparable wheat contracts.

A week ago all corn futures in the Chicago market were selling within 10 cents a bushel of wheat. On Dec. 1 May wheat was selling slightly less than 9 cents higher than May corn. During the last week the differential widened to 13 cents a bushel. May corn sold at a new high quotation of 93¼ cents a bushel during the week, but closed Saturday 1¼ cents a bushel below the preceding week's final quotation.

The advance in corn prices, however, in itself laid the basis for the comeback in wheat prices. Speculators who were buying corn used the wheat market as a hedge for their purchases.

Buying in Wheat Expands.

Last week these spreads between the two grains were being retired and provided an important source of the buying in wheat. Moreover, as corn prices advanced the incentive for using wheat for feed naturally was enhanced.

Toward the close of the week trading in the wheat pit broadened materially and there was evidence of a revival in speculation on a big scale.

More than 193 million bushels of wheat were traded in the Chicago market, compared with about 117 million bushels in the corresponding period of 1933. In the preceding week the wheat volume was below a year ago, although trading in corn was above last year.

GEN. DAWES MAY PREDICT UPTURN IN U. S. BUSINESS

When Gen. Charles G. Dawes addresses the luncheon meeting of the Chicago Association of Commerce at the Palmer house on Wednesday he will predict an early spurt in American manufacturing, sales, and employment figures, based on his personal study made over a period of months, it is reported.

China's Effort to Protect Her Silver Failing

New York, Dec. 9.—[Special.]—China's effort to protect herself from the deflationary effects of the American silver policy is failing. Despite the equalization tax recently placed upon exports of silver by the Chinese government, the country is slowly being drained of its circulating medium, money is tightening, banks are suffering withdrawals and the process of deflation is in full swing.

The profound effect the effort to raise the world price of silver is having upon China is due largely to the developments which occurred within China itself in the last three or four years.

In 1930 the stock of silver in Shanghai, while only about half of what it is today, was sufficient to take care of the needs of trade and finance. After that year, however, large amounts of silver were transferred from the interior of China to Shanghai for deposit in the banks there.

Leads to Expansion.

At the same time China was developing in Shanghai a system of modern banking along the lines of American and European practice. The deposit of funds in banks increased in volume and the banks issued paper currency against their holdings of silver.

This influx of funds to Shanghai during a period when imports of silver from abroad were still going on created extreme ease of credit leading to expansion. A large part of the money was invested at long term, both in real estate and in government bonds, the total issue of which is currently reported to be at least 500,000,000 Shanghai dollars in excess of the amount outstanding three years ago.

At the beginning of the present year the stock of silver in Shanghai was about 600,000,000 Shanghai dollars. When foreign banks, in response to the silver-raising efforts of the United States, exported a total of 250,000,000 Shanghai dollars of actual silver, the stock of ready money in that center was depleted to an extent that made it barely sufficient to carry on business.

Credit Is Tightened.

Credit began to tighten. The Chinese government became alarmed and, following protests to the American state department, a prohibitive tax upon silver exports was imposed Oct. 15.

For a short time it appeared as though this policy might be successful. Recently, however, the interior of the country has become aware of the fact that silver abroad is worth more than the face value of China's silver coins. At the same time rumors have spread to the interior that there is a possibility that the bank notes issued by Chinese banks will not be worth their face amount in silver.

The interior of the country has begun to call for the repayment of the large amounts of silver which it had intrusted to the Shanghai banks and silver is flowing out of Shanghai at the rate of 1,000,000 Shanghai dollars a day.

FLORSHEIM SHOE COMPANY ORDERS TWO DIVIDENDS

The Florsheim Shoe company has declared dividends of 25 cents on the class A common stock and of 12½ cents on the class B common stock, payable Jan. 2 to stockholders of record Dec. 20 and like amounts on both classes of stock, payable April 1 to stockhelds of record March 20. There are 236,293 shares of class A and 327,414 shares of class B stock outstanding. The corporation early this year redeemed and canceled the 31,875 shares of preferred stock, amounting to $3,187,500, outstanding at the close of the fiscal year, Oct. 31, 1933.

While the final figures for the year ended Oct. 31, 1934, have not been released, it is reported that the corporation has had a satisfactory year and the officers feel optimistic regarding the future as "forward" orders are considerably larger than they were a year ago.

NRA GRANTS 145 COTTON FIRMS WAGE EXEMPTION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—(AP)—NRA today granted 145 firms and 10 trade associations temporary exemptions from President Roosevelt's order directing wage increases in the cotton garment industry.

Exemption was granted on the ground the applicants were placed at a competitive disadvantage with 31 concerns which obtained an order from the District of Columbia Supreme court restraining application of the shorter work week and high pay scale.

Mr. Roosevelt's order cut the work week in the cotton garment industry from 40 to 36 hours and boosted wages and piece rates 10 per cent in order to maintain the same weekly pay envelope.

STEEL OUTPUT RISES TO 30%; SCRAP SOARING

Review Finds Signs of New Confidence.

Along with a 2 point rise in steel operations to 30 per cent of capacity last week, there was one of the sharpest gains in scrap prices since the world war, according to the magazine Steel. The rise in scrap was the greatest since 1929, the journal states.

"This evidence of present market conditions, and promising portent for the near future, adds to the feeling of confidence spreading throughout the industry," the review asserts. In several districts there was an increase of $1.50 a ton in scrap, these including Pittsburgh, Cleveland, and Youngstown, while in other centers the price rose 25 to 75 cents a ton. The magazine's scrap composite rose 62 cents a ton. It is further stated that pig iron buying has expanded, with a lake producer booking 9,000 tons.

Demand Shows Irregularity.

"Despite this encouraging trend," the review states, "steel demand does not yet appear to be moving forward proportionately on all fronts. There is fairly brisk buying of the lighter products for automobile and agricultural consumption, structural work is in reverse and railroads are marking time.

"This situation may be corrected shortly by what is transpiring at Washington. Evidence is accumulating that the President is to lean very heavily on spending, and that large public works projects, which should mean substantial buying of material and equipment, are probable."

Freight Car Awards Large.

It is stated that Japanese producers are inquiring for plate and strip mills, while Russian inquiries are more promising. The army ordnance department at Washington has purchased $479,000 of machine tools, it is stated. Steel ingot output in November was 8.7 per cent above October, with the daily average 12.9 per cent higher. Pig iron production during the month was .58 per cent greater.

Gains in operation last week included 3 points to 23 per cent at Pittsburgh, 16 to 70 at Wheeling, 2 to 48 at Cleveland, 2 to 20½ in eastern Pennsylvania, and ½ to 34 in Chicago. In other centers the rate was unchanged, with Youngstown at 35 per cent of capacity, Detroit, 48; New England, 47; Buffalo, 24, and Birmingham, 27½.

The magazine's iron and steel composite is up 13 cents to $32.35 a ton, while the finished steel index remains at $54 a ton.

TRADE LEADERS IN BERLIN WATCH BIG COTTON DEAL

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—(AP)—German and American business men here found new encouragement today in prospects for completion of a giant cotton and nitrate barter deal which reports from the United States said might involve $30,000,000. The proposals had come to be regarded here as a vain hope because of governmental red tape.

Americans pointed out, however, that the project still has its pitfalls. Jealousy on the part of cotton dealers was one of them, and it was said the Germans believe their government is trying to drive too hard a bargain. Both Germans and Americans have expressd the belief that if the deal is consummated it may be an industrial turning point for Germany, especially in view of the concentrated national effort to get and keep foreign exchange and badly needed raw materials.

It was intimated in official quarters that a Reichsbank announcement on the subject is expected tomorrow. Reliable sources emphasized, however, that some 500 barter schemes already have been considered and have failed because of governmental red tape.

Cost of Living Reported in Slight Decrease

The cost of living of industrial wage earners declined .1 per cent from October to November, according to the national industrial conference board. Living costs were 3.9 per cent higher than a year ago, but were 19.9 per cent lower than in November, 1929. The purchasing value of the dollar was 123.8 in November.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING, LIVE STOCK EXHIBITION BOOST CHICAGO TRADE

Sharp improvement in nearly every line of business activity was experienced in Chicago last week, the Chicago Association of Commerce reports. Pre-Christmas shopping, coupled with an influx of visitors attending the International Live Stock exposition, accounted for a considerable portion of the upturn.

State street retail stores, as well as nearly all community establishments, reported turnover far ahead of last year. Similarly a marked pickup in local wholesale volume was noticeable as colder weather added to the Yule rush. Demand was particularly heavy for seasonal clothing, winter bedding, and last minute giftware and toy fill-ins for already emptied retail shelves.

NEW AIR FLEET PURCHASED FOR DETROIT ROUTE

Pennsylvania Airlines has purchased a fleet of Boeing twin motored transport planes for service on its Detroit-Washington route, it was announced yesterday by C. Bedell Monro, president.

Present schedules from Chicago to Pittsburgh and Washington via Cleveland will be materialy speeded up by the new ships. A four and a half hour flight from Chicago and one of three and three-quarters from Detroit to Washington are expected, according to W. A. Patterson of United Air Lines.

GENERAL FOODS WORKERS JOIN PENSION PLAN

New York, Dec. 9.—[Special.]—Within eight days after the announcement 97 per cent of the eligible employés of the General Foods corporation applied to participate in the retirement income plan, according to C. M. Chester, president. The plan is supported by joint contributions of the company and employés. Participation is voluntary.

"Our entire western and Pacific sales divisions wired in notice of 100 per cent enrollment three days before the official canvass began," Mr. Chester said. "In the 100 per cent column now are all twenty-nine sales divisions and districts and twenty plants, while only three of the remaining plants have enrolled fewer than 90 per cent of their eligible employés."

The plan provides that upon retirement at the age of 65 for men and 60 for women a participating employé will receive a monthly income equivalent to 2 per cent of his average monthly earnings multiplied by the number of years of his participation.

Austrian Standstill Pact Will Terminate Today

New York, Dec. 9.—It was announced today by S. Stern, chairman of the Austrian standstill committee and vice president of the Chase National bank, that at the suggestion of the Austrian parties concerned it had been agreed to terminate on Dec. 10 the standstill agreement entered into between Austrian banks and the American and British bank creditors. Most of the credits covered have been repaid, he said.

Bankers War on Irregular Security Deals

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Investment bankers in the Chicago district have already ironed out fifty complaints of fraud through the efforts of their code committee, according to Francis F. Patton of A. G. Becker & Co., chairman of the Chicago area code committee.

"It is the policy of the code committee to keep out of the courts as far as possible," Mr. Patton stated. "We try to settle all cases in an informal way. When we get a complaint we endeavor to get the party making it and the person the object of it together. Oftentimes we find that there has been a misunderstanding which can be cleared up.

Use Regular Channels.

"In cases where recourse to the courts is necessary we proceed through the regularly constituted authorities and through special organizations handling such cases. Thus we go through the state's attorney's office, the federal district attorney's office, the Securities and Exchange commission, the Investors' Protective bureau, and Better Business bureaus.

"Investment bankers have very satisfactory means of enforcement in provisions of their code for suspension or cancelation of registrations of members violating the code of fair practice. If a dealer has his registration suspended or canceled no other dealers are permitted to enter into any group arrangement with him. They must treat any nonregistered dealer as they would the public. In this way their income may be cut off.

108 Registrations Suspended.

"So far there have been 108 cancelations or suspensions of registrations, the greater part of which were for nonpayment of assessments. In these cases many dealers should not have registered in the first place, since their business did not warant the expense."

Mr. Patton said investment bankers are trying to reduce their operating costs through the institution of charges for special services.

Some of the services cited were the safekeeping of bonds during periods of which coupons are clipped and cashed, and analyzing long lists of securities for persons who never made a purchase through the house. He said a questionnaire recently sent out discloses there is a preponderance of opinion in favor of establishing charges.

REPORT BRITISH BUY U. S. STOCKS IN BIG VOLUME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Observers in the city [financial district] of London report a tremendous movement of British funds for investment in the United States in the last few weeks. This indicates London's confidence in America's future and is influenced by the low price at which American industrial stocks are selling in proportion to dividend yields.

Some of the best American stocks are being bought on the basis of 7 per cent yields.

MANY FACTORS UNITE TO CHEER STOCK TRADERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 9.—Holiday trade and prospects of increased buying on the basis of larger rural purchasing money—ladled out for the most part from government coffers — combined with the psychological effect of the treasury's remarkably successful quarterly financing to furnish the stock market with a good bullish setting over the week. Activity picked up to more than a million shares daily.

Industrials in Good Showing.

Industrial shares made the best group showing on the week, as they have been doing for some time. Aided by a number of dividend declarations, some of them rose to the best prices of the movement. Public utilities, long the "Orphan Annies" of the list, actually lost ground on the week and the rails were barely able to hold their own—thanks to rumors of further government aid in the form of higher freight rates and further financing and in spite of a sharp decline in the weekly car loading figures.

Metal shares looked up a bit, particularly those of copper producing companies which came in for some favorable publicity on the score of the approaching international conferences called to frame ways and means for further curtailing the industry's output. The fresh inflationary talk arising out of Washington as the congressional currency sharks forgather brought some buying into the silver group.

Preferred Shares in Demand.

Preferred stocks continue in good demand and a longish list of them achieved new highs for the year or longer.

The week's upturn in trading volume ran the total of million or more share days since Nov. 7 up to twelve, the largest total for a similar period since the latter part of April and the first half of May. Market letters reflected a hope, if not a belief, in brokerage circles that the exchange may see some two million share sessions during the holidays, this being the volume of business which brokers say they must have before they can hope to pocket any commission money after taking care of their overhead.

YULETIDE SPIRIT ABROAD IN LAND BOOMS BUSINESS

Largest Volume Expected Since 1929 Season.

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The flow of Yuletide spirit percolated through the nation's business during the last week, as the Christmas shopping season opened with such a bang that trade authorities predicted the physical volume of merchandise sold this month would be the highest since 1929, and the dollar volume the best since 1930.

At the same time industry, usually almost dormant toward the end of the year, showed further stirrings. The publication Steel estimated that steel works operations had risen to 30 per cent of capacity last week, compared with 28 per cent the week before, and pointed to one of the sharpest rises in steel scrap prices since the world war.

Slow to Get Started.

The automobile industry is slow in getting into production with its new models, but production has at last started to climb, with one of the largest volume manufacturers beginning assemblies of 1935 models. Industrial activity as a whole remains spotty, as is to be expected at this time of year.

Dun & Bradstreet's weekly mercantile review said cold weather had instilled fresh vigor into the flow of merchandise at retail, which, coinciding with the swarming of stores by Christmas shoppers, boosted totals from 5 to 25 per cent above last year at this time. Sharpest gains are still reported from the south and southwest, where merchants report sales 20 to 25 per cent above 1933. But despite a few days of rain and snow, the middle west was able to report advances of 15 to 20 per cent.

The weekly report of the movement of freight, covering the Thanksgiving day week, showed a somewhat larger than seasonal decline, but electric power production sagged less than usual for the period, and the gain in steel production, for the seventh consecutive week, was in contrast to the seasonal slump usually in evidence at this time. The automobile industry is at last taking more steel. Structural steel buying has subsided somewhat, and railroad buying is slow.

Report Increased Activity.

Miscellaneous industrial lines reporting well maintained or increased activity include textiles, farm implements, hardware, paints, building materials, glassware, radios, electrical equipment, and others. Completion of plans for the federal housing and building drive for 1935 are being awaited with keen interest.

Wholesale markets report that recent volumes are well maintained. Last minute rush orders for Christmas goods, and fill-in orders of winter clothing, are providing considerable activity. The wholesale markets are already receiving some orders for spring merchandise.

Continental Can.

Investors' Guide: I thank you for any information on Continental Can. —A. C.

Answer: Continental Can company is the second largest maker of metal containers in the United States. It has 40 plants scattered throughout this country and Cuba.

About two-thirds of its output consists of standard cans used for perishable food products. The remainder consists of the general line, used for oils, paints, varnishes, chemicals, drugs, and staple foods. Two important additions to general line cans have been announced in the last few years—coffee cans [for vacuum packs] and oil cans, which are now being supplied to 30 concerns.

Food can production depends on crop conditions and on the carryover of canned foods from the previous year. General can production fluctuates with business activity.

For the twelve months to Sept. 30, 1934, net income was $10,077,000, or $5.67 per share, against net of $6,221,000, or $3.59 per share, for the preceding 12 months. The company earned a profit of $7,547,000, or $4.31 a share, in 1933, against $4,819,000, or $2.78 a share, for 1932. Net income in 1931 was $5,671,000 and in 1930, $8,738,000.

On Oct. 25, 1934, a 50 per cent stock dividend was paid. This brought the total number of shares outstanding to 2,664,741. The stock has a par value of $20 per share, and currently pays quarterly dividends of 60 cents. It is high grade.

Bailey Cobalt Mines.

Investors' Guide: In 1907 I bought 1,000 shares in Bailey Cobalt Mines, but have not heard from the company for years. Please let me know.—Z. J.

Answer: Bailey Cobalt Mines, Ltd., was incorporated in Ontario in 1906. In 1914 a permanent liquidator was appointed—the company owed $90,000 to its president, N. A. Benson. A reorganization was effected and the property was transferred to Bailey Silver Mines, Ltd., Inc., in February, 1920. The new company paid Benson's claim. On May 31, 1926, Bailey Silver Mines' property and equipment were offered for sale under the bankruptcy act.

Bailey Cobalt Mines, Ltd., stock is worthless, as of 1926. On Dec. 29, 1926, 9,000 shares of its stock were sold at auction at $1 for the lot—we find no later quotations.

Dividends Will Accumulate.

Investors' Guide: Are dividends on the eight per cent preferred stock of Pure Oil company cumulative and are the dividends on the other preferred stocks cumulative?—K. K. N.

EXCESS FILLING STATIONS HELD PRICE WAR CAUSE

Petroleum Board Reports on Oil Problems.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The petroleum administrative board said today in its annual 1934 fiscal year report that under the oil code conditions in the petroleum industry "changed in many ways for the worse."

Since June 30, the end of the fiscal year, however, there have been changes which the oil board administrating the code is convinced are for the better. The report is incorporated into the annual report of Secretary Ickes for the interior department.

The board took note particularly of a price structure "more chaotic than it has been for several years," of distressing price wars, and a maladjustment between the price of crude oil and that of gasoline at wholesale.

Surplus Retail Outlets.

The board discussed corrective measures that had been tried and said there had been an "attempt to work out a technic for stabilizing markets." "There is no question," the board said, "but that some action must be taken to curb overexpansion of retail outlets."

It is estimated this overexpansion had put 350,000 filling stations on choice corners in every American community—far more than are necessary to supply consumers adequately. This huge number was given as one of the causes of "vicious price wars."

With a few possible exceptions, depending upon future events, the process of amending and modifying the code "is now over," the board asserted.

Filling Station Question.

On the filling station question the board said that less gasoline was being consumed than in 1929 but that there were perhaps twice as many service stations in operation.

"The increase in stations," the report asserted, "has greatly diluted the gallonage throughout for each outlet with a two-fold result:

"Overhead costs have greatly increased, and an oversensitive market structure has been created since the slightest decrease in volume in individual outlets induces market breaks, which creates vicious price wars.

"It is obvious that any program directed toward the solution of the evils with which the industry is faced must include an equitable solution of this problem."

U. S. Acts Anew to Curb Oil Flow in East Texas

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes announced today that federal permits will be required hereafter for withdrawal of any crude oil from storage in east Texas. This was another move in the campaign to stop the flow of illegal oil from the huge east Texas field.

ALL DIVISIONS IN BOND MARKET SHOW ADVANCES

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—All classes of listed loans forged ahead in last week's bond market, with the averages recording their best gains for any similar period since August.

The principal factor in the revival of interest in senior securities apparently was the highly favorable reception accorded the treasury's December financing program involving nearly $2,000,000,000 in refunding and cash offerings.

Any skepticism regarding the attitude toward the new 3⅛ per cent bond issue was short lived. The treasury was literally swamped with subscriptions for both the bonds and notes and the books were closed at the conclusion of business on the first day. Cash subscriptions for the $900,000,000 of bonds and notes amounted to some $5,400,000,000. At the same time virtually all of the maturing $992,496,500 of maturing certificates were turned in for conversion into the new 18 months 1⅛ per cent notes, or 4½ years 2⅛ per cent notes.

Federal Issues Rise.

Notwithstanding the fact that the treasury's borrowing of $900,000,000 in new money pushed the public debt to another record high of more than $28,500,000,000, listed federal issues enjoyed an expanded demand that sent most of these up briskly. The new treasury obligations immediately sold over the counter at a premium.

Bondholders generally interpreted the rush for the new offerings as a revival of confidence, not only in the betterment of business and industry, but in the credit of the government. While the public debt is at a record peak, and is expected to get much higher, the financial sector was cheered by indications that the administration is making plans to balance the budget and limit future expenditures. It was recalled that, considering even the most extreme estimates, America's debt position is relatively far ahead of all other countries.

Rails Show Most Strength.

In the corporate divisions the rails probably exhibited the most strength. Aside from generally improved sentiment, the transportation liens reflected renewed reports that the administration was considering plans to give substantial aid to the harassed carriers. There were many firm industrials, the average for this group recording more 1934 highs. The utilities were less cheerful, but even they moved forward moderately.

German obligations rallied on rumors that repatriation dealings in the Reich issues were being conducted through Amsterdam. The French-German Saar settlement was also viewed as highly constructive. The Jugo-Slav-Hungarian row was not particularly unsettling. The Argentines registered new year's tops on completion of the conversion loan in London.

There was considerable late profit taking in all bond departments, but the majority of prices held around their tops of the week.

OIL MEN OF TWO STATES IRON OUT PRICE TROUBLES

Members of the state stabilization committees for Missouri and Kansas under the petroleum code, meeting at the Blackstone hotel yesterday with representatives of the national committee, ironed out a number of problems faced by the industry in the two states. H. T. Ashton, chairman of the meeting, announced that prospects are good for early restoration of normal prices for tractor and domestic fuel in both states and for normal gasoline prices at a great majority of points in Missouri. Special conditions make stabilization of the gasoline market in Kansas less extensive.

At a meeting of Illinois and Indiana marketers on Saturday it was found that there were more than 150 points in Illinois, exclusive of the large centers, in which local gasoline price wars could probably be terminated. Conditions in Indiana were found to be relatively good.

Following the restoration by Continental Oil of the 1 cent spread between regular and third grade gasoline prices at various points throughout the middle west, other marketers will raise their third grade gasoline prices where they were reduced to meet the Continental company's practice.

DO YOU WANT A CHANCE TO CREATE A REAL JOB FOR YOURSELF?

How many men do you suppose there are today who are waiting for their old jobs to come back, or one just like it to blossom around the corner? There's about as much chance of getting that old place back under old conditions as there was for thousands of buck privates who returned from the war, after the hooray was dead, only to find fresher, younger men holding their old places—and not a possibility in the world to get into the old position! The same condition exists today! We have been through another war—an economic war—and millions of promises were made when things folded up the same as when the boys went to the front in the world war. You can't cash in on these delayed hopes, but you have every right to be successful, and you can succeed if you will turn your thoughts in a new and different direction!

Now, positively, we don't want a man who is not willing to make a job for himself and underwrite his own growing income with his efforts. The fact is, this big electrical service, equipment and unit corporation has abundant cash—pays its way—has done so all during the depression; pays its men promptly, and regularly, with cashable full commission checks. We train you. We select a place on the North or Northwest Sides, or in some adjacent suburb, convenient to your residence, where you can build your business. Under our plan, you have a good-will area that equals the trade area of about 75 grocery stores, or 10 hardware stores. You control the good will in this area. You build yourself on a basis so strong and sound that inside a few weeks your income will grow from a modest beginning, to good fat checks—and inside 6 months, if you do no better than many who have come into this business in the past, you should be making far more than any one of the merchants in that trade territory—without their being in competition with you in any sense!

We don't want your money. No man with us could invest in this business if he wanted to. We do expect him to invest time and energy and exclude all other industrial interests and work. We do expect him to have character, courtesy, neatness and vigor, and be a man living in these parts of Chicago and not a floater. This is not incidental or experimental, and therefore we must have men who can concentrate on one business and build it up to its vast possibilities. Are YOU that type of man? Are you desirous of making a place for yourself that nobody can dislodge you from? Do you want to place your family on a basis of safety and plenty? We spare no time, expense, and effort to make you succeed, and all we ask—and must have—is like co-operation and interest on your part. We are on the dead-level in inviting you, and expect you to come in the same spirit of sincerity. Therefore, we invite you to call at Suite 215-226 at 1046 Wilson-av., just east of Broadway, from 10 a. m. to 12 noon, or from 1 to 3 p. m., Monday, December 10th!

A MAN MAKING $75 A WEEK IS HAPPY AND LUCKY.

Hundreds of our men are making from $50 to as high as $250 a week cash comms. with a new invention added to our present electrical product invention that has everybody amazed in the specialty field.

Priced to sell today for as low as fifteen cents a day, this invention is being accepted by public buildings, stores, homes, theaters, is passed by the U. S. Bureau of Standards, used by Government Buildings throughout the U. S., in the White House and comes as near to selling itself as any product you will ever see.

You don't have to be a salesman, because we will discount sales experience in favor of a genuine desire to learn and work hard. A new man just starting can expect to earn from $38 to $70 his first week.

We will interview men at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m., no other time, Monday, Room 1021 Mather Tower, 75 E. Wacker Drive.
